PREFACE TO THE TWELFTH EDITION

The Law of Acceleration has been busy. Henry Adams said in 1904 (The Education of Henry Adams, chapter 34) that Acceleration "prolonger one generation longer, would require a new social mind."

In 1937 we thought that BARTLETT as then newly compiled might last until 1960.<sup>1</sup> But by 1940 it was plain that enlargement was already desirable. Man in his Penultimate War was saying words that had to be recoiled. To give the one outstanding example, the 1937 edition did not contain a single quotation from Winston Churchill.

Throughout the war, 1939-1945, both Miss Everett and I had been checking probable and possible matter. After what was then known as V.E. (Victory in Europe; May 1945) my colleague sent me her large collection of excerpts. A quotation apt for our hopes would be that of Keats's sonnet: Hold like rich garners the full-ripened grain. But grain needs threshing, and we were at it when the bomb fell at Hiroshima (August 1945). This, as Einstein has said, "brought into the world the most revolutionary force since man's discovery of fire."<sup>2</sup>

Publishers and editors concurred that there was no need, at this time, to reconsider BARTLETT from the beginning. What was urgent was to subsume pertinent matter become newly famous in these past anxious years.

In the commonwealth of quotation there is one obvious modern landmark in our language, Rudyard Kipling—already so perished as political thinker, so enduringly alive as magician in words. Only the other day, rereading From Sea to Sea (1889), I noticed him using our now universally familiar phrase, "We have the know-how," which he picked up from a cowboy at Yellowstone. No one appointed overseer from the beginning; a taskmaster as tactful as tenacious. And as before, Miss Louella D. Everett did the most laborious part of the work. I personally am under great obligation to my editorial assistant, Helen Hare Carroll, for untiring help.

P R E F A C E.

THE object of this work is to show, to some extent, the obligations our language owes to various authors for numerous phrases and familiar quotations which have become "household words."

This Collection, originally made without any view of publication, has been considerably enlarged by additions from an English work on a similar plan, and is now sent forth with the hope that it may be found a convenient book of reference.

Though perhaps imperfect in some respects, it is believed to possess the merit of accuracy, as the quotations have been taken from the original sources.

Should this be favorably received, endeavors will be made to make it more worthy of the approbation of the public in a future edition.

CAMBRIDGE, May, 1855.

PREFACE TO THE NINTH EDITION

“Out of the old fieldes cometh al this new corne fro yere to yere,”
And out of the fresh woodes cometh al these new flowres here.

The small thin volume, the first to bear the title of this collection, after passing through eight editions, each enlarged, now culminates in its ninth, — and with it, closes its tentative life.

This extract from the Preface of the fourth edition is applicable to the present one: —

“It is not easy to determine in all cases the degree of familiarity that may belong to phrases and sentences which present themselves for admission; for what is familiar to one class of readers may be quite new to another. Many maxims of the most famous writers of our language, and numberless curious and happy turns from orators and poets, have knocked at the door, and it was hard to deny them. But to admit these simply on their own merits, without assurance that the general reader would readily recognize them as old friends, was aside from the purpose of this collection. Still, it has been thought better to incur the risk of erring on the side of fulness.”

With the many additions to the English writers, the present edition contains selections from the French, and from the wit and wisdom of the ancients. A few passages have been admitted without a claim to familiarity, but solely on the ground of coincidence of thought.

I am under great obligations to M. H. Morgan, Ph.D., of Harvard University, for the translation of Marcus Aurelius, and for the translation and selections from the Greek tragic writers. I am indebted to the kindness of Mr. Daniel W. Wilder, of Kansas, for the quotations from Pilpay, with contributions from Diogenes Laertius, Montaigne, Burton, and Pope's Homer; to Dr. William J. Rolfe for quotations from Robert Browning; to Mr. James W. McIntyre for quotations from Coleridge, Shelley, Keats, Mrs. Browning, Robert Browning, and Tennyson. And I have incurred other obligations to friends for here a little and there a little.

It gives me pleasure to acknowledge the great assistance I have received from Mr. A. W. Stevens, the accomplished reader of the University Press, as this work was passing through the press.

In withdrawing from this very agreeable pursuit, I beg to offer my sincere thanks to all who have assisted me either in the way of suggestions or by contributions; and especially to those lovers of this subsidiary literature for their kind appreciation of former editions.

Accepted by scholars as an authoritative book of reference, it has grown with its growth in public estimation with each reissue. Of the last two editions forty thousand copies were printed, apart from the English reprints. The present enlargement of text equals three hundred and fifty pages of the previous edition, and the index is increased with upwards of ten thousand lines.

[Floruit 670]

From the text of Benjamin Thorpe
[1782-1870]

Light was first Through the Lord's word Named day:
Beauteous, bright creation!
                    Creation. The First Day
The fiend with all his comrades
Fell then from heaven above, Through as long as three nights and days,
The angels from heaven into hell;
And them all the Lord transformed to devils,
Because they his deed and word
Would not revere.

Ibid. The Fall of the Rebel Angels

ANONYMOUS

[Circa 1250]

Sumer is icumen in,
Lhude sing cuccu!
Groweth sed, and bloweth med,

<sup>1</sup> It is pleasant to remember that the Muse of English Verse was born in a stable. The Venerable Bede in his Ecclesiastical History (Book IV, Chapter 24) tells the legend of Caedmon, the bashful hostler, who retired to the barn when his turn came to recite. There, in his sleep, he was visited by "a person" who said "Caedmon, sing me something." With those words begins the story of English poetry.

And springth the wude nu —

<sup>4</sup> This proverb occurs in Rabelais, Book I, Chap. XI; in Vulgaria Stambrigi [circa 1510]; in Butler, Part I, Canto I, Line 490. longs of sea for an acre of barren ground.

I would fain die a dry death.

Ibid. Line 73

What seest thou else

In the dark backward and abysm of time?

Ibid. Sc. 2, Line 49

I, thus neglecting worldly ends, all dedicated

To closeness and the bettering of my mind.

The soldier's pole is fallen.

From the still-vexed Bermoothes.

Ibid. Line 229

I will be correspondent to command,
And do my spiriting gently.

Come unto these yellow sands,

And then take hands:

Courtsied when you have, and kiss'd

The wild waves whist.

Ibid. Line 375

Full fathom five thy father lies;

Of his bones are coral made;

Those are pearls that were his eyes:

Nothing of him that doth fade

But doth suffer a sea-change

Into something rich and strange.<sup>1</sup>

Ibid. Act IV, Sc. 1, Line 51

Our revels now are ended. These our actors,

As I foretold you, were all spirits, and
Are melted into air, into thin air;

And, like the baseless fabric of this vision,

The cloud-capp'd towers, the gorgeous palaces,

The solemn temples, the great globe
itself,

Yea, all which it inherit, shall dissolve;
And, like this insubstantial pageant faded,

Leave not a rack behind. We are such

Ibid. Line 59

Why, all the souls that were, were forfeit once;

As make the angels weep.

Ibid. Line 93

Ay, but to die, and go we know not where;

To lie in cold obstruction and to rot;
This sensible warm motion to become A kneaded clod; and the delighted spirit

To bathe in fiery floods, or to reside
In thrilling region of thick-ribbed ice;
To be imprison'd in the viewless winds,
And blown with restless violence round about

The pendent world.

The lunatic, the lover, and the poet
Are of imagination all compact:
One sees more devils than vast hell can hold,

That is, the madman: the lover, all as frantic,

Sees Helen's beauty in a brow of Egypt:
The poet's eye, in a fine frenzy rolling,

Doth glance from heaven to earth, from earth to heaven;

And as imagination bodies forth

The forms of things unknown, the poet's pen

Turns them to shapes, and gives to airy nothing

A local habitation and a name.

Such tricks hath strong imagination,
That if it would but apprehend some
joy,

It comprehends some bringer of that
joy;

Or in the night, imagining some fear,
How easy is a bush supposed a bear!

Ibid. Line 416

How sweet the moonlight sleeps upon this bank!

Here we will sit and let the sounds of music

Creep in our ears: soft stillness and the night

Become the touches of sweet harmony.
Sit, Jessica. Look how the floor of heaven

Is thick inlaid with patines of bright gold:

There's not the smallest orb which thou behold'st

But in his motion like an angel sings,

Still quiring to the young-eyed cheru-bins.

Such harmony is in immortal souls;

But whilst this muddy vesture of decay
Doth grossly close it in, we cannot hear it.

Act V, Sc. 1, Line 54

I am never merry when I hear sweet
music.

Ibid. Line 69

The man that hath no music in himself,
Nor is not moved with concord of sweet sounds,

Is fit for treasons, stratagems, and spoils;

The motions of his spirit are dull as
night,

And his affections dark as Erebus.

Let no such man be trusted.

How far that little candle throws his

As many other mannish cowards have.

Ibid. Line 123

Sweet are the uses of adversity;
Which, like the toad, ugly and venomous,

Wears yet a precious jewel in his head;
And this our life, exempt from public haunt,

Finds tongues in trees, books in the running brooks,

Sermons in stones, and good in every thing.

Ibid. Act II, Sc. 1, Line 12

The big round tears

Therefore my age is as a lusty winter.
Frosty, but kindly.

Ibid. Line 52

O, good old man; how well in thee appears

The constant service of the antique world,

When service sweat for duty, not for meed!

Thou art not for the fashion of these times,

Where none will sweat but for promotion.

Ay, now am I in Arden: the more fool I. When I was at home I was in a better place; but travellers must be content.

And then he drew a dial from his poke,
And looking on it with lack-lustre eye,
Says, very wisely, "It is ten o'clock:
Thus we may see," quoth he, "how the

And so from hour to hour we ripe and ripe,
And then from hour to hour we rot and rot;
And thereby hangs a tale.<sup>2</sup>

Ibid. Line 26

My lungs began to crow like chanti-cleer,
That fools should be so deep-contemplative;
And I did laugh sans intermission
An hour by his dial.

Ibid. Line 30

Motley 's the only wear.

If ladies be but young and fair,
They have the gift to know it; and in Oppress'd with two weak evils, age and hunger.

Ibid. Line 132

The wide and universal theatre.

Ibid. Line 137

All the world 's a stage,
And all the men and women merely players.<sup>1</sup>

They have their exits and their entrances;

And one man in his time plays many parts,

His acts being seven ages. At first the infant,

Mewling and puking in the nurse's arms.

And then the whining school-boy, with his satchel

And shining morning face, creeping like snail

Unwillingly to school. And then the lover,

Sighing like furnace, with a woful ballad

Made to his mistress' eyebrow. Then a soldier,

Full of strange oaths, and bearded like the pard;

Jealous in honour, sudden and quick in quarrel,

Seeking the bubble reputation

Even in the cannon's mouth. And then the justice,

Which God and Nature do with actors fill.

THOMAS HEYWOOD: Apology for Actors

emperors have for so many ages played their parts, and to which the whole vast universe serves for a theatre. — MONTAIGNE: Of the most Excellent Men

In fair round belly with good capon lined,
With eyes severe and beard of formal cut, Full of wise saws and modern instances;
And so he plays his part. The sixth age shifts
Into the lean and slipper'd pantaloon, With spectacles on nose and pouch on side;
His youthful hose, well saved, a world too wide
For his shrunk shank; and his big manly voice,
Turning again toward childish treble,
pipes
And whistles in his sound. Last scene of all,
That ends this strange eventful history,
Is second childishness, and mere oblivion,
Sans teeth, sans eyes, sans taste, sans everything.

Let still the woman take

An elder than herself: so wears she to

So sways she level in her husband's heart:

Our fancies are more giddy and unfirm,
More longing, wavering, sooner lost and

And with a green and yellow melan-

She sat like patience on a monument,
Smiling at grief.

I have touched the highest point of all my greatness;

And no man see me more.

Ibid. Line 224

Press not a falling man too far!

Ibid. Line 334

Farewell! a long farewell, to all my greatness!

This is the state of man: to-day he puts forth

The tender leaves of hopes; to-morrow blossoms,

And bears his blushing honours thick
upon him;

The third day comes a frost, a killing frost;

And, when he thinks, good easy man, full surely

His greatness is a-ripening, nips his root,

And then he falls, as I do. I have ventured,

Like little wanton boys that swim on bladders,

This many summers in a sea of glory,

But far beyond my depth: my high-blown pride

At length broke under me, and now has left me,

Weary and old with service, to the mercy

Of a rude stream, that must forever hide me.

Vain pomp and glory of this world, I hate ye:

I feel my heart new opened. O! how wretched

Is that poor man that hangs on princes' favours!

There is, betwixt that smile we would aspire to,

That sweet aspect of princes, and their ruin,

More pangs and fears than wars or women have —

And when he falls, he falls like Lucifer, Never to hope again.

A sure and safe one, though thy master missed it.

Ibid. Line 436

I charge thee, fling away ambition:
By that sin fell the angels.

Ibid. Line 441

Love thyself last: cherish those hearts that hate thee;

Corruption wins not more than honesty.
Still in thy right hand carry gentle peace,

To silence envious tongues: be just, and fear not:

Let all the ends thou aim'st at be thy country's,

Thy God's, and truth's; then if thou
fall'st, O Cromwell, Thou fall'st a blessed martyr!

*King Henry VIII. Act III,
Sc. 2, Line 444*

sun;

The sea's a thief, whose liquid surge re-

Why, man, he doth bestride the narrow world

Like a Colossus; and we petty men
Walk under his huge legs, and peep

Sc. 2, Line 204*

But, for my own part, it was Greek to me.

Ibid. Line 288

'Tis a common proof,

That lowliness is young ambition's ladder,

Whereto the climber-upward turns his face;

He then unto the ladder turns his back,
Looks in the clouds, scorning the base degrees

By which he did ascend.

Ibid. Act II, Sc. 1, Line 21

Between the acting of a dreadful thing
And the first motion, all the interim is

Cowards die many times before their deaths;

The valiant never taste of death but once.

It seems to me most strange that men should fear;

Seeing that death, a necessary end,
Will come when it will come.

Friends, Romans, countrymen, lend me your ears;

I come to bury Caesar, not to praise
him.

The evil that men do lives after them,
The good is oft interred with their bones.

Sc. 2, Line 220*

I only speak right on.

It useth an enforced ceremony.

There are no tricks in plain and simple

The earth hath bubbles, as the water has,

And these are of them.

Macbeth. Act I, Sc. 3, Line 79

The insane root

That takes the reason prisoner.

Ibid. Line 84

And oftentimes, to win us to our harm,
The instruments of darkness tell us truths,

Win us with honest trifles, to betray 's
In deepest consequence.

Ibid. Line 123

Come what come may,

Time and the hour runs through the roughest day.

Ibid. Line 146

Nothing in his life

Became him like the leaving it; he died
As one that had been studied in his death

To throw away the dearest thing he owed,

As 'twere a careless trifle.

Ibid. Sc. 4, Line 7

There's no art

To find the mind's construction in the face:

He was a gentleman on whom I built
An absolute trust.

Ibid. Line 11

More is thy due than more than all can pay.

Ibid. Line 21

Yet do I fear thy nature;

It is too full o' the milk of human kindness.<sup>1</sup>

Ibid. Sc. 5, Line 17

That no compunctious visitings of nature

Shake my fell purpose.

Ibid. Line 46

Your face, my thane, is as a book where men

May read strange matters. To beguile the time,

Look like the time; bear welcome in your eye,

Your hand, your tongue: look like the innocent flower,

But be the serpent under 't.

Ibid. Line 63

<sup>1</sup> The thunder of your words has soured the milk of human kindness in my heart.—
R. B. SHERIDAN: The Rivals, Act III, Sc. 4

This castle hath a pleasant seat; the air
Nimbly and sweetly recommends itself
Unto our gentle senses.

Macbeth. Act I, Sc. 6, Line 1

The heaven's breath

Smells wooingly here: no juttty, frieze, Buttress, nor coign of vantage, but this bird

Hath made his pendent bed and procreant cradle:

Where they most breed and haunt, I have observed

The air is delicate.

Ibid. Line 5

If it were done when 'tis done, then
'twere well

It were done quickly; if the assassination

Could trammel up the consequence, and catch

With his surcease success; that but this blow

Might be the be-all and the end-all here,
But here, upon this bank and shoal of
time,

We'd jump the life to come. But in these cases

We still have judgment here; that we but teach

Bloody instructions, which, being taught, return

To plague the inventor; this even-handed justice

Commends the ingredients of our poison'd chalice

To our own lips.

Ibid. Sc. 7, Line 1

Besides, this Duncan

Hath borne his faculties so meek, hath been

So clear in his great office, that his virtues

Will plead like angels, trumpet-tongued against

The deep damnation of his taking-off;
And pity, like a naked new-born babe,

Striding the blast, or heaven's cheru-bim, horsed

Upon the sightless couriers of the air,
Shall blow the horrid deed in every eye,
That tears shall drown the wind. I have no spur

To prick the sides of my intent, but only

Vaulting ambition, which o'erleaps itself

And falls on the other.

Macbeth. Act I, Sc. 7, Line 16

I have bought

Golden opinions from all sorts of people.

Ibid. Line 32

Letting "I dare not" wait upon "I would,"

Like the poor cat i' the adage.<sup>1</sup>

Ibid. Line 44

I dare do all that may become a man;
Who dares do more is none.

Ibid. Line 46

Nor time nor place

Did then adhere.

Ibid. Line 51

Macbeth. If we should fail, —

Lady Macbeth. We fail!

But screw your courage to the sticking-place,

And we'll not fail.

Ibid. Line 59

Memory, the warder of the brain.

Ibid. Line 65

There's husbandry in heaven;

Their candles are all out.

Ibid. Act II, Sc. 1, Line 4

Shut up

In measureless content.

Ibid. Line 16

Is this a dagger which I see before me,
The handle toward my hand? Come, let me clutch thee:

I have thee not, and yet I see thee still.

Art thou not, fatal vision, sensible

To feeling as to sight? or art thou but

A dagger of the mind, a false creation,

Proceeding from the heat-oppressed brain?

Ibid. Line 33

Now o'er the one half-world

Nature seems dead.

Ibid. Line 49

Thou sure and firm-set earth,

Hear not my steps, which way they walk, for fear

Thy very stones prate of my where-about.

<sup>1</sup> See Heywood, page 14.

The bell invites me.
Hear it not, Duncan; for it is a knell
That summons thee to heaven or to hell.
Macbeth. Act II, Sc. 1, Line 62

It was the owl that shriek'd, the fatal
bellman,
Which gives the stern'st good-night.
Ibid. Sc. 2, Line 4

The attempt and not the deed
Confounds us.
Ibid. Line 12

I had most need of blessing, and
"Amen"
Stuck in my throat.
Ibid. Line 33

Methought I heard a voice cry, "Sleep
no more!
Macbeth does murder sleep!" the innocent sleep,
Sleep that knits up the ravell'd sleeve
of care,
The death of each day's life, sore labour's bath,
Balm of hurt minds, great nature's second course,
Chief nourisher in life's feast.
Ibid. Line 36

Infirm of purpose!
Ibid. Line 53

Will all great Neptune's ocean wash
this blood Clean from my hand? No, this my hand will rather
The multitudinous seas incarnadine,
Making the green one red.
Ibid. Line 61

Go the primrose way to the everlasting bonfire.
Ibid. Sc. 3, Line 22

It [drink] provokes the desire, but it takes away the performance.
Ibid. Line 34

The labour we delight in physics pain.
Ibid. Line 56

Tongue nor heart
Cannot conceive nor name thee!
Ibid. Line 70

Confusion now hath made his masterpiece!

Most sacrilegious murder hath broke ope

The Lord's anointed temple, and stole thence

The life o' the building!
Macbeth. Act II, Sc. 3, Line 72

Downy sleep, death's counterfeit.
Ibid. Line 83

The wine of life is drawn, and the mere lees

Is left this vault to brag of.
Ibid. Line 102

Who can be wise, amazed, temperate and furious,

Loyal and neutral, in a moment?
Ibid. Line 115

To show an unfelt sorrow is an office
Which the false man does easy.
Ibid. Line 143

A falcon, towering in her pride of place,
Was by a mousing owl hawk'd at and kill'd.
Ibid. Sc. 4, Line 12

I must become a borrower of the night
For a dark hour or twain.
Ibid. Act III, Sc. 1, Line 27

Let every man be master of his time
Till seven at night.
Ibid. Line 41

Murderer. We are men, my liege.
Macbeth. Ay, in the catalogue ye go for men.
Ibid. Line 91

I am one, my liege, Whom the vile blows and buffets of the world

Have so incensed that I am reckless what

I do to spite the world.
Ibid. Line 108

So weary with disasters, tugg'd with fortune,

That I would set my life on any chance,
To mend it or be rid on 't.
Ibid. Line 112

Things without all remedy
Should be without regard; what's done is done.
Ibid. Sc. 2, Line 11

We have scotch'd the snake, not kill'd
it.
Ibid. Line 13

Duncan is in his grave;
After 'life's fitful fever he sleeps well;

Treason has done his worst: nor steel,
nor poison,
Malice domestic, foreign levy, nothing
Can touch him further.

Macbeth. Act III, Sc. 2, Line 22

In them Nature's copy's not eterne.
Ibid. Line 38

Now spurs the lated traveller apace
To gain the timely inn.
Ibid. Sc. 3, Line 6

But now I am cabin'd, cribb'd, confined, bound in
To saucy doubts and fears.

Ibid. Sc. 4, Line 24

Now, good digestion wait on appetite,
And health on both!

Ibid. Line 38

Thou canst not say I did it; never shake
Thy gory locks at me.

Ibid. Line 50

The air-drawn dagger.
Ibid. Line 62

The times have been
That, when the brains were out, the man would die,
And there an end; but now they rise
again,
With twenty mortal murders on their crowns,
And push us from our stools.

Ibid. Line 78

I drink to the general joy of the whole
table.

Ibid. Line 89

Thou hast no speculation in those eyes
Which thou dost glare with!

Ibid. Line 95

A thing of custom: 'tis no other;
Only it spoils the pleasure of the time.

Ibid. Line 97

What man dare, I dare: Approach thou like the rugged Russian
bear,
The arm'd rhinoceros, or the Hyrcan tiger,
Take any shape but that, and my firm nerves
Shall never tremble.

Ibid. Line 99

Hence, horrible shadow!
Unreal mockery, hence!

Ibid. Line 106

Stand not upon the order of your going,
But go at once.

Macbeth. Act III, Sc. 4, Line 119

Macbeth. What is the night?

Lady Macbeth. Almost at odds with morning, which is which.

Ibid. Line 126

I am in blood
Stepp'd in so far, that, should I wade
no more,

Returning were as tedious as go o'er.

Ibid. Line 136

My little spirit, see,
Sits in a foggy cloud, and stays for me.

Ibid. Sc. 5, Line 35

Double, double toil and trouble;
Fire burn and cauldron bubble.

Ibid. Act IV, Sc. 1, Line 10

Eye of newt, and toe of frog,
Wool of bat, and tongue of dog.

Ibid. Line 14

By the pricking of my thumbs,
Something wicked this way comes.

Open, locks,

Whoever knocks!

Ibid. Line 44

How now, you secret, black, and midnight hags!

Ibid. Line 48

I'll make assurance double sure,
And take a bond of fate.

Ibid. Line 83

Macbeth shall never vanquish'd be until

Great Birnam wood to high Dunsinane
hill

Shall come against him.<sup>1</sup>

Ibid. Line 92

Show his eyes, and grieve his heart;

Come like shadows, so depart!

Ibid. Line 110

What! will the line stretch out to the crack of doom?

Ibid. Line 117

The weird sisters.

Ibid. Line 136

When our actions do not,
Our fears do make us traitors.

<sup>1</sup> Till Birnam wood remove to Dunsinane,
I cannot taint with fear.

Act V, Sc. 2, Line 2

Things at the worst will cease, or else climb upward
To what they were before.

Macbeth. Act IV, Sc. 2, Line 24

Angels are bright still, though the brightest fell.

Ibid. Sc. 3, Line 22

Pour the sweet milk of concord into hell,

Uproar the universal peace, confound
All unity on earth.

Ibid. Line 98

Stands Scotland where it did?

Ibid. Line 164

Give sorrow words; the grief that does not speak

Whispers the o'er-fraught heart and bids it break.

Ibid. Line 209

What! all my pretty chickens and their dam

At one fell swoop?

Ibid. Line 218

O! I could play the woman with mine eyes

And braggart with my tongue.

Ibid. Line 229

Out, damned spot! out, I say!

Ibid. Act V, Sc. 1, Line 38

Fie, my lord, fie! a soldier, and afeard?

Ibid. Line 40

Yet who would have thought the old man to have had so much blood in him?

Ibid. Line 42

All the perfumes of Arabia will not sweeten this little hand.

Ibid. Line 56

My way of life

Is fall'n into the sere, the yellow leaf;
And that which should accompany old age,

As honour, love, obedience, troops of friends,

I must not look to have.

Ibid. Sc. 3, Line 22

Doctor. Not so sick, my lord,

As she is troubled with thick-coming fancies,

That keep her from her rest.

Macbeth. Cure her of that:

Canst thou not minister to a mind diseas'd.

Pluck from the memory a rooted sorrow,

Raze out the written troubles of the brain,

And with some sweet oblivious antidote
Cleanse the stuff'd bosom of that perilous stuff

Which weighs upon the heart?

Doctor. Therein the patient
Must minister to himself.

Macbeth. Throw physic to the dogs:

I'll none of it.

Macbeth. Act V, Sc. 3, Line 37

I would applaud thee to the very echo,
That should applaud again.

Ibid. Line 53

Hang out our banners on the outward walls;

The cry is still, "They come"; our castle's strength

Will laugh a siege to scorn.

Ibid. Sc. 5, Line 1

My fell of hair

Would at a dismal treatise rouse and stir

As life were in 't. I have supp'd full with horrors.

Ibid. Line 11

To-morrow, and to-morrow, and tomorrow,

Creeps in this petty pace from day to day,

To the last syllable of recorded time;

And all our yesterdays have lighted fools

The way to dusty death. Out, out, brief candle!

Life's but a walking shadow, a poor player

That struts and frets his hour upon the stage

And then is heard no more: it is a tale
Told by an idiot, full of sound and fury, Signifying nothing.

Ibid. Line 19

I 'gin to be aweary of the sun.

Ibid. Line 49

Blow, wind! come, wrack!

At least we'll die with harness on our back.

Ibid. Line 51

I bear a charmed life.

Ibid. Sc. 7, Line 41

And be these juggling fiends no more believ'd,
That palter with us in a double sense;
That keep the word of promise to our ear

And break it to our hope.

Macbeth. Act V, Sc. 7, Line 48
Live to be the show and gaze o' the time.

Ibid. Line 53

Lay on, Macduff,
And damn'd be him that first cries,
"Hold, enough!"

Ibid. Line 62

For this relief much thanks; 'tis bitter cold,
And I am sick at heart.

Hamlet. Act I, Sc. 1, Line 8
Not a mouse stirring.

Ibid. Line 10

But in the gross and scope of my opinion,
This bodes some strange eruption to our state.

Ibid. Line 68

Whose sore task Does not divide the Sunday from the week.

Ibid. Line 75

This sweaty haste
Doth make the night joint-labourer with the day.

Ibid. Line 77

In the most high and palmy state of Rome,
A little ere the mightiest Julius fell,
The graves stood tenantless and the sheeted dead
Did squeal and gibber in the Roman streets.

Ibid. Line 113

And then it started like a guilty thing
Upon a fearful summons.

Ibid. Line 148

The cock, that is the trumpet of the morn.

Ibid. Line 150

Whether in sea or fire, in earth or air,
The extravagant and erring spirit hies
To his confine.

Ibid. Line 153

It faded on the crowing of the cock.
Some say that ever 'gainst that season comes

Wherein our Saviour's birth is celebrated,
The bird of dawning singeth all night long:

And then, they say, no spirit can walk abroad;

The nights are wholesome; then no
planets strike,

No fairy takes, nor witch hath power to charm,

So hallow'd and so gracious is the time.

Hamlet. Act I, Sc. 1, Line 157

So have I heard, and do in part believe
it.

But, look, the morn in russet mantle clad,

Walks o'er the dew of yon high eastern hill.

The memory be green.<sup>1</sup>

Ibid. Sc. 2, Line 2

With one auspicious and one dropping
eye,

With mirth in funeral and with dirge
in marriage,

In equal scale weighing delight and dole.

Ibid. Line 11

A little more than kin, and less than kind.

Ibid. Line 65

All that live must die,
Passing through nature to eternity.

Ibid. Line 72

Seems, madam! Nay, it is; I know not "seems."

'Tis not alone my inky cloak, good mother,

Nor customary suits of solemn black.

Ibid. Line 76

But I have that within which passeth show;

These but the trappings and the suits of woe.

Ibid. Line 85

O! that this too too solid flesh would melt,

Thaw and resolve itself into a dew;

Or that the Everlasting had not fix'd

God! O God!

How weary, stale, flat, and unprofitable
Seem to me all the uses of this world.

Hamlet. Act I, Sc. 2, Line 129

That it should come to this!

Ibid. Line 137

Hyperion to a satyr; so loving to my mother

That he might not betwixt the winds of heaven

Visit her face too roughly.

Ibid. Line 140

Why, she would hang on him,
As if increase of appetite had grown
By what it fed on.

Ibid. Line 143

Frailty, thy name is woman!

Ibid. Line 146

Like Niobe, all tears.

Ibid. Line 149

A beast, that wants discourse of reason.

Ibid. Line 150

It is not nor it cannot come to good.

Ibid. Line 158

Thrift, thrift, Horatio! the funeral baked meats

Did coldly furnish forth the marriage tables.

In my mind's eye, Horatio.

Ibid. Line 185

He was a man, take him for all in all,
I shall not look upon his like again.

Ibid. Line 187

Season your admiration for a while.

Ibid. Line 192

In the dead vast and middle of the night.

Ibid. Line 198

Arm'd at points exactly, cap-a-pe.

Distill'd

Almost to jelly with the act of fear.

Ibid. Line 204

A countenance more in sorrow than in anger.

Ibid. Line 231

While one with moderate haste might tell a hundred.

Ibid. Line 237

Hamlet. His beard was grizzled, no?

Horatio. It was, as I have seen it in his life,

A sable silver'd.

Hamlet. Act I, Sc. 2, Line 239

Give it an understanding, but no tongue.

Ibid. Line 249

Foul play.

Ibid. Line 255

The chariest maid is prodigal enough
If she unmask her beauty to the moon:

Virtue itself 'scapes not calumnious strokes;

The canker galls the infants of the spring

Too oft before their buttons be disclosed,

And in the morn and liquid dew of youth

Contagious blastments are most imminent.

Ibid. Sc. 3, Line 36

Do not, as some ungracious pastors do, Show me the steep and thorny way to heaven,

Whiles, like a puff'd and reckless libertine,

Himself the primrose path of dalliance treads,<sup>1</sup>

And reck's not his own rede.<sup>2</sup>

Ibid. Line 47

Give thy thoughts no tongue.

Ibid. Line 59

Be thou familiar, but by no means vulgar;

Those friends thou hast, and their adoption tried,

Grapple them to thy soul with hoops of steel.

Ibid. Line 61

Beware

Of entrance to a quarrel, but, being in,
Bear 't that the opposed may beware of thee.

ROBERT BURNS: Epistle to a Young Friend

Give every man thy ear, but few thy voice;

Take each man's censure, but reserve
thy judgment.

Costly thy habit as thy purse can buy,
But not express'd in fancy; rich, not gaudy;

For the apparel oft proclaims the man.

Hamlet. Act I, Sc. 3, Line 65

Neither a borrower, nor a lender be;
For loan oft loses both itself and friend,
And borrowing dulls the edge of husbandry.

This above all: to thine own self be true,
And it must follow, as the night the day,
Thou canst not then be false to any man.

Springs to catch woodcocks.

Ibid. Line 115

When the blood burns, how prodigal the Lends the tongue vows.

Ibid. Line 116

Be somewhat scanter of your maiden

Ibid. Line 121

Hamlet. The air bites shrewdly; it is very cold.

Horatio. It is a nipping and an eager air.

Ibid. Sc. 4, Line 1

But to my mind, though I am native
here

And to the manner born, — it is a custom

More honoured in the breach than the observance.

Ibid. Line 14

Angels and ministers of grace defend

Ibid. Line 39

Be thy intents wicked or charitable,
Thou comest in such a questionable shape

That I will speak to thee.

Ibid. Line 42

Hath oped his ponderous and marble jaws.

Ibid. Line 50

What may this mean,

That thou, dead corse, again in complete steel

Revisit'st thus the glimpses of the moon,

Making night hideous,<sup>1</sup> and we fools of nature

So horridly to shake our disposition With thoughts beyond the reaches of our souls?

Hamlet. Act I, Sc. 4, Line 51

I do not set my life at a pin's fee.

Ibid. Line 65

My fate cries out,

And makes each petty artery in this body

As hardy as the Nemean lion's nerve.

Ibid. Line 81

Unhand me, gentlemen,

By heaven! I'll make a ghost of him that lets me!

Ibid. Line 84

Something is rotten in the state of Denmark.

Ibid. Line 90

I could a tale unfold whose lightest word Would harrow up thy soul, freeze thy young blood,

Make thy two eyes, like stars, start from their spheres,

Thy knotted and combined locks to part,

And each particular hair to stand an end,

Like quills upon the fretful porpentine.

Ibid. Sc. 5, Line 15

Brief let me be. Sleeping within my

O villain, villain, smiling, damned villain!

My tables, — meet it is I set it down,
That one may smile, and smile, and be a villain;

Rest, rest, perturbed spirit!

Ibid. Line 182

The time is out of joint; O cursed spite,
That ever I was born to set it right!

Ibid. Line 188

Brevity is the soul of wit.

Ibid. Act II, Sc. 2, Line 90

More matter, with less art.

Ibid. Line 95

That he is mad, 'tis true; 'tis true 'tis pity;

And pity 'tis 'tis true.

Ibid. Line 97

Find out the cause of this effect,
Or rather say, the cause of this defect,
For this effect defective comes by cause.

Ibid. Line 101

Doubt thou the stars are fire;

Doubt that the sun doth move;

Doubt truth to be a liar;

But never doubt I love.

Hamlet. Act II, Sc. 2, Line 115

To be honest, as this world goes, is to be one man picked out of ten thousand.

Ibid. Line 179

Still harping on my daughter.

Ibid. Line 190

Polonius. What do you read, my lord?

Hamlet. Words, words, words.

Ibid. Line 195

They have a plentiful lack of wit.

Ibid. Line 204

Though this be madness, yet there is method in 't.

Ibid. Line 211

There is nothing either good or bad,
but thinking makes it so.

Ibid. Line 259

This goodly frame, the earth, seems to me a sterile promontory; this most excellent canopy, the air, look you, this brave o'erhanging firmament, this majestic roof fretted with golden fire, why, it appears no other thing to me than a foul and pestilent congregation of vapours. What a piece of work is a man! how noble in reason! how infinite in faculty! in form and moving how express and admirable! in action how like an angel! in apprehension how like a god!

Ibid. Line 317

Man delights not me; no, nor woman neither.

Ibid. Line 330

There is something in this more than natural, if philosophy could find it out.

Ibid. Line 392

I know a hawk from a handsaw.

Ibid. Line 406

They say an old man is twice a child.

Ibid. Line 413

O Jephthah, judge of Israel, what a treasure hadst thou!

Ibid. Line 431

One fair daughter and no more,

The which he loved passing well.

Ibid. Line 435

Come, give us a taste of your quality.

Ibid. Line 460

The play, I remember, pleased not the million; 'twas caviare to the general.

Hamlet. Act II, Sc. 2, Line 465

They are the abstracts and brief chronicles of the time: after your death you were better have a bad epitaph than their ill report while you live.

Ibid. Line 555

Use every man after his desert, and who should 'scape whipping?

Ibid. Line 561

What's Hecuba to him or he to Hecuba,
That he should weep for her?

Ibid. Line 593

Unpack my heart with words,
And fall a-cursing, like a very drab.

Ibid. Line 622

The play's the thing Wherein I'll catch the conscience of the king.

Ibid. Line 641

With devotion's visage
And pious action we do sugar o'er
The devil himself.

Ibid. Act III, Sc. 1, Line 47

To be, or not to be: that is the question:

Whether 'tis nobler in the mind to suffer

The slings and arrows of outrageous fortune,

Or to take arms against a sea of troubles,

And by opposing end them? To die: to sleep:

No more; and by a sleep to say we end
The heartache and the thousand natural shocks

That flesh is heir to, 'tis a consummation

Devoutly to be wish'd. To die, to sleep;
To sleep: perchance to dream: ay, there's the rub:

For in that sleep of death what dreams
may come,

When we have shuffled off this mortal
coil,

Must give us pause. There's the respect

That makes calamity of so long life;
For who would bear the whips and
scorns of time,

The oppressor's wrong, the proud man's contumely,

The pangs of dispriz'd love, the law's delay,

The insolence of office and the spurns
That patient merit of the unworthy takes,

When he himself might his quietus make

With a bare bodkin? who would fardels
bear,

To grunt and sweat under a weary life,
But that the dread of something after death,

The undiscover'd country from whose bourn

No traveller returns, puzzles the will
And makes us rather bear those ills we have

Than fly to others that we know not of?
Thus conscience does make cowards of us all;

And thus the native hue of resolution Is sicklied o'er with the pale cast of thought,

And enterprises of great pith and moment

With this regard their currents turn awry,

And lose the name of action.

Hamlet. Act III, Sc. 1, Line 56

Nymph, in thy orisons
Be all my sins remember'd.

Ibid. Line 89

Rich gifts wax poor when givers prove unkind.

Ibid. Line 101

Be thou as chaste as ice, as pure as snow, thou shalt not escape calumny.
Get thee to a nunnery, go.

Ibid. Line 142

I have heard of your paintings too, well enough; God has given you one face, and you make yourselves another.

Ibid. Line 150

O! what a noble mind is here o'er-thrown:

The courtier's, soldier's, scholar's eye,
tongue, sword.

Ibid. Line 159

The glass of fashion and the mould of form,

The observed of all observers!

Hamlet. Act III, Sc. 1, Line 162

Now see that noble and most sovereign reason,

Like sweet bells jangled, out of tune and harsh.

Ibid. Line 166

O, woe is me,

To have seen what I have seen, see what I see!

Ibid. Line 169

Nor do not saw the air too much with your hand, thus; but use all gently: for in the very torrent, tempest, and as I may say the whirlwind of passion, you must acquire and beget a temperance, that may give it smoothness. Oh, it offends me to the soul to hear a robustious periwig-pated fellow tear a passion to tatters, to very rags, to split the ears of the groundlings, who for the most part are capable of nothing but inexplicable dumb-shows and noise. I would have such a fellow whipped for o'erdoing Termagant; it out-herods Herod.

Ibid. Sc. 2, Line 4

Suit the action to the word, the word to the action; with this special observance, that you o'erstep not the modesty of nature.

To hold, as 'twere, the mirror up to nature.

Ibid. Line 25

To show the very age and body of the time his form and pressure.

Ibid. Line 27

Though it make the unskilful laugh, cannot but make the judicious grieve.

Ibid. Line 29

Not to speak it profanely.

Ibid. Line 35

I have thought some of Nature's journeymen had made men and not made them well, they imitated humanity so abominably.

Ibid. Line 38

First Player. I hope we have reformed that indifferently with us, sir.

Hamlet. O, reform it altogether.

Ibid. Line 41

No; let the candied tongue lick absurd
pomp,

And crook the pregnant hinges of the knee

Where thrift may follow fawning.

Hamlet. Act III, Sc. 2, Line 65

A man that fortune's buffets and rewards

Hast ta'en with equal thanks.

Ibid. Line 72

They are not a pipe for fortune's finger
To sound what stop she please. Give me that man

That is not passion's slave, and I will wear him

In my heart's core, ay, in my heart of heart,

As I do thee. Something too much of this.

Ibid. Line 75

And my imaginations are as foul

As Vulcan's stithy.

Ibid. Line 88

Nay, then, let the devil wear black,
for I'll have a suit of sables.

Ibid. Line 138

There's hope a great man's memory

Ibid. Line 242

Let the galled jade wince, our withers are unwrung.

Why, let the stricken deer<sup>1</sup> go weep,

The hart ungalled play;

For some must watch, while some must
sleep:

So runs the world away.

Ibid. Line 287

Pluck out the heart of my mystery.

Ibid. Line 389

Do you think I am easier to be played on than a pipe?

Ibid. Line 393

Hamlet. Do you see yonder cloud
that's almost in shape of a camel?

Polonius. By the mass, and 'tis like a camel, indeed.

PER: The Task. Book III

Hamlet. Methinks it is like a weasel.

Polonius. It is backed like a weasel.

Hamlet. Or like a whale?

Polonius. Very like a whale.

Hamlet. Act III, Sc. 2, Line 400

They fool me to the top of my bent.

Ibid. Line 408

By and by is easily said.

Ibid. Line 411

'Tis now the very witching time of night,

When churchyards yawn and hell itself breathes out

Contagion to this world.

Ibid. Line 413

I will speak daggers to her, but use none.

Ibid. Line 421

O! my offence is rank, it smells to heaven;

It hath the primal eldest curse upon 't, A brother's murder.

Ibid. Sc. 3, Line 36

With all his crimes broad blown, as flush as May.

Ibid. Line 81

My words fly up, my thoughts remain below:

Words without thoughts never to heaven go.

Ibid. Line 97

Dead, for a ducat, dead!

Ibid. Sc. 4, Line 23

And let me wring your heart; for so I shall,

If it be made of penetrable stuff.

Ibid. Line 35

False as dicers' oaths.

Ibid. Line 45

A rhapsody of words.

Ibid. Line 48

What act

That roars so loud and thunders in the index?

Ibid. Line 51

Look here, upon this picture, and on this,

The counterfeit presentment of two brothers.

See, what a grace was seated on this brow;

Hyperion's curls; the front of Jove himself;

An eye like Mars, to threaten and command,

A station like the herald Mercury

New-lighted on a heaven-kissing hill,

A combination and a form indeed,

Where every god did seem to set his seal,

To give the world assurance of a man.

Hamlet. Act III, Sc. 4, Line 53

At your age

The hey-day in the blood is tame, it's humble.

Ibid. Line 68

O shame! where is thy blush? Rebellious hell,

If thou canst mutine in a matron's bones,

To flaming youth let virtue be as wax, And melt in her own fire: proclaim no shame

When the compulsive ardour gives the charge,

Since frost itself as actively doth burn, And reason panders will.

A king of shreds and patches.<sup>1</sup>

Ibid. Line 102

How is 't with you,

That you do bend your eye on vacancy?

Ibid. Line 115

This is the very coinage of your brain:

This bodiless creation ecstasy

Is very cunning in.

Ibid. Line 136

Lay not that flattering unction to your soul.

Ibid. Line 145

Assume a virtue, if you have it not.

Refrain to-night,

And that shall lend a kind of easiness

To the next abstinence: the next more easy;

For use almost can change the stamp of nature.

Ibid. Line 165

I must be cruel, only to be kind.

A man may fish with the worm that hath eat of a king, and eat of the fish that hath fed of that worm.

Ibid. Line 29

Sure, he that made us with such large discourse,

Looking before and after, gave us not
That capability and godlike reason
To fust in us unused.

Ibid. Sc. 4, Line 36

Rightly to be great

Is not to stir without great argument,
But greatly to find quarrel in a straw
When honour's at the stake.

Ibid. Line 53

So full of artless jealousy is guilt,
It spills itself in fearing to be spilt.

Ibid. Sc. 5, Line 19

We know what we are, but know not what we may be.

Ibid. Line 43

Come, my coach! Good night, sweet ladies; good night.

Ibid. Line 72

When sorrows come, they come not single spies,
But in battalions.

Ibid. Line 78

There's such divinity doth hedge a king,
That treason can but peep to what it would.

Ibid. Line 123

There's rosemary, that's for remembrance; . . . and there is pansies, that's for thoughts.

Ibid. Line 174

You must wear your rue with a difference. There's a daisy; I would give you some violets, but they withered.

Ibid. Act V, Sc. 1, Line 20

There is no ancient gentlemen but

Ibid. Line 32

Cudgel thy brains no more about it.

Ibid. Line 61

Has this fellow no feeling of his busi-

Ibid. Line 71

Custom hath made it in him a property

The hand of little employment hath the

Ibid. Line 150

Alas, poor Yorick! I knew him, Horatio: a fellow of infinite jest, of most excellent fancy; he hath borne me on his back a thousand times; and now, how abhorred in my imagination it is!
my gorge rises at it. Here hung those lips that I have kissed I know not how oft. Where be your gibes now? your gambols? your songs? your flashes of merriment, that were wont to set the table on a roar? Not one now, to mock your own grinning? quite chap-fallen?
Now get you to my lady's chamber, and tell her, let her paint an inch thick, to thief. Hark, in thine ear: change places;

and, handy-dandy, which is the justice;
which is the thief?

My story being done,
She gave me for my pains a world of sighs:

She swore, in faith, 'twas strange, 'twas passing strange,
'Twas pitiful, 'twas wondrous pitiful:
She wish'd she had not heard it, yet she wish'd

That Heaven had made her such a man; she thank'd me,
And bade me, if I had a friend that loved her,

I should but teach him how to tell my story,
And that would woo her. Upon this hint I spake:

She loved me for the dangers I had pass'd,
And I loved her that she did pity them.

This only is the witchcraft I have used.

Good name in man and woman, dear
my lord,

Is the immediate jewel of their souls:

Who steals my purse steals trash; 'tis something, nothing;

'Twas mine, 'tis his, and has been slave to thousands;

But he that filches from me my good name

Robs me of that which not enriches
him,

And makes me poor indeed.

O! beware, my lord, of jealousy;

It is the green-eyed monster which doth

Farewell the neighing steed, and the shrill trump,

The spirit-stirring drum, the ear-piercing fife,

The royal banner, and all quality,

Ne'er feels retiring ebb, but keeps due on

To the Propontic and the Hellespont, Even so my bloody thoughts, with violent pace,

Shall ne'er look back, ne'er ebb to hum-

No more of that. I pray you, in your letters,

When you shall these unlucky deeds relate,

Speak of me as I am; nothing exten-
uate,

Nor set down aught in malice: then,
must you speak

Of one that loved not wisely but too well;

Of one not easily jealous, but, being wrought.

Perplex'd in the extreme; of one whose hand,
Like the base Indian, threw a pearl away

Richer than all his tribe; of one whose subdued eyes
Albeit unused to the melting mood,
Drop tears as fast as the Arabian trees

Purple the sails, and so perfumed that

The winds were love-sick with them;
the oars were silver,

Which to the tune of flutes kept stroke,
and made

The water which they beat to follow faster,

As amorous of their strokes. For her rhyme.

Sonnet 55

Like as the waves make towards the

So do our minutes hasten to their end.

Sonnet 60

Ruin hath taught me thus to ruminate.

Sonnet 64

Since brass, nor stone, nor earth, nor boundless sea,

But sad mortality o'ersways their

How with this rage shall beauty hold a plea,

Whose action is no stronger than a

When all the breathers of this world are dead;

You still shall live — such virtue hath my pen —

Where breath most breathes, — even in the mouths of men.

Sonnet 81

Who is it that says most? which can say

Than this rich praise, — that you alone

FRANCIS BACON

[1561-1626]

I hold every man a debtor to his profession; from the which as men of course do seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavour themselves by way of amends to be a help and ornament thereunto.

Maxims of the Law. Preface

Come home to men's business and bosoms.

Dedication to the Essays

[Edition 1625]

No pleasure is comparable to the standing upon the vantage-ground of truth.

Of Truth

Men fear death as children fear to go in the dark; and as that natural fear in children is increased with tales, so is the other.

Of Death

Revenge is a kind of wild justice, which the more man's nature runs to,
 the more ought law to weed it out.

Of Revenge

It was a high speech of Seneca (after the manner of the Stoics), that "The good things which belong to prosperity are to be wished, but the good things that belong to adversity are to be admired."

Of Adversity

It is yet a higher speech of his than the other, "It is true greatness to have in one the frailty of a man and the security of a god."

Ibid.

Prosperity is the blessing of the Old Testament; adversity is the blessing of the New.

Ibid.

Prosperity is not without many fears and distastes; and adversity is not without comforts and hopes.

Ibid.

Virtue is like precious odours,— most fragrant when they are incensed or crushed.<sup>1</sup>

Ibid.

He that hath wife and children hath given hostages to fortune; for they are

<sup>1</sup> As aromatic plants bestow
 No spicy fragrance while they grow;
 But crushed or trodden to the ground,
 Diffuse their balmy sweets around.

GOLDSMITH: The Captivity, Act I

The good are better made by ill,
 As odours crushed are sweeter still.

ROGERS: Jacqueline, Stanza 3

impediments to great enterprises, either of virtue or mischief.

Of Marriage and Single Life

Wives are young men's mistresses, companions for middle age, and old men's nurses.<sup>1</sup>

Ibid.

The monuments of wit survive the monuments of power.

Essex's Device [1595]

A good name is like a precious ointment; it filleth all around about, and will not easily away; for the odors of ointments are more durable than those of flowers.<sup>2</sup>

Of Praise

Men in great place are thrice servants, — servants of the sovereign or state, servants of fame, and servants of business.

Of Great Place

Mahomet made the people believe that he would call a hill to him, and from the top of it offer up his prayers for the observers of his law. The people assembled. Mahomet called the hill to come to him, again and again; and when the hill stood still he was never a whit abashed, but said, "If the hill will not come to Mahomet, Mahomet will go to the hill."

Of Boldness

The desire of power in excess caused the angels to fall; the desire of knowledge in excess caused man to fall.<sup>3</sup>

Of Goodness

The remedy is worse than the disease.<sup>4</sup>

Of Seditions

I had rather believe all the fables in the legends and the Talmud and the Alcoran, than that this universal frame is without a mind.

Of Atheism

Men would be angels, angels would be gods.

Aspiring to be gods if angels fell,

Aspiring to be angels men rebel.

POPE: Essay on Man, Ep. I, L. 125

A little philosophy inclineth man's mind to atheism, but depth in philosophy bringeth men's minds about to religion.<sup>1</sup>

Of Atheism

Travel, in the younger sort, is a part of education; in the elder, a part of experience. He that travelleth into a country before he hath some entrance into the language, goeth to school, and not to travel.

Of Travel

Princes are like to heavenly bodies, which cause good or evil times, and which have much veneration but no rest.<sup>2</sup>

Of Empire

Fortune is like the market, where many times, if you can stay a little, the price will fall.

Of Delays

In things that a man would not be seen in himself, it is a point of cunning to borrow the name of the world; as to say, "The world says," or "There is a speech abroad."

Of Cunning

There is a cunning which we in England call "the turning of the cat in the pan"; which is, when that which a man says to another, he lays it as if another had said it to him.

Ibid.

It is a good point of cunning for a man to shape the answer he would have in his own words and propositions, for it makes the other party stick the less.

Ibid.

It hath been an opinion that the French are wiser than they seem, and the Spaniards seem wiser than they are; but howsoever it be between nations,

A little skill in antiquity inclines a man to Popery; but depth in that study brings him about again to our religion. — FULLER: The Holy State, The True Church Antiquary

A little learning is a dangerous thing. — POPE: Essay on Criticism, Part II, L. 15

<sup>2</sup> Kings are like stars: they rise and set; they have

The worship of the world, but no repose.

SHELLEY: Hellas

certainly it is so between man and man.

Of Seeming Wise

There is a wisdom in this beyond the rules of physic. A man's own observation, what he finds good of and what he finds hurt of, is the best physic to preserve health.

Of Regimen of Health

Discretion of speech is more than eloquence; and to speak agreeably to him with whom we deal is more than to speak in good words or in good order.

Of Discourse

Men's thoughts are much according to their inclination,<sup>1</sup> their discourse and speeches according to their learning and infused opinions.

Of Custom and Education

Chiefly the mould of a man's fortune is in his own hands.<sup>2</sup>

Of Fortune

If a man look sharply and attentively, he shall see Fortune; for though she is blind, she is not invisible.<sup>3</sup>

Ibid.

Young men are fitter to invent than to judge, fitter for execution than for counsel, and fitter for new projects than for settled business.

Of Youth and Age

Virtue is like a rich stone, — best plain set.

Of Beauty

There is no excellent beauty that hath not some strangeness in the proportion.

Ibid.

God Almighty first planted a garden.<sup>4</sup>

Of Gardens

His own character is the arbiter of every one's fortune. — PUBLIUS SYRUS: Maxim 283

<sup>4</sup> And the Lord God planted a garden eastward in Eden. — Genesis, II, 8
God the first garden made, and the first city Cain

COWLEY: The Garden. Essay V

And because the breath of flowers is far sweeter in the air (where it comes and goes, like the warbling of music) than in the hand, therefore nothing is more fit for that delight than to know what be the flowers and plants that do best perfume the air.

Of Gardens

It is generally better to deal by speech than by letter.

Of Negotiating

Some books are to be tasted, others to be swallowed, and some few to be chewed and digested.

Of Studies

Reading maketh a full man, conference a ready man, and writing an exact man.

Ibid.

Histories make men wise; poets, witty; the mathematics, subtle; natural philosophy, deep; moral, grave; logic and rhetoric, able to contend.

Ibid.

The greatest vicissitude of things amongst men is the vicissitude of sects and religions.<sup>1</sup>

When you wander, as you often delight to do, you wander indeed, and give never such satisfaction as the curious time requires. This is not caused by any natural defect, but first for want of election, when you, having a large and fruitful mind, should not so much labour what to speak as to find what to leave unspoken. Rich soils are often to be weeded.

<sup>1</sup> As in the little, so in the great world, reason will tell you that old age or antiquity is to be accounted by the farther distance from the beginning and the nearer approach to the end,—the times wherein we now live being in propriety of speech the most ancient since the world's creation.—GEORGE HAKEWILL: An Apologie or Declaration of the Power and Providence of God in the Government of the World [London, 1627]

According to Dr. A. S. Bettelheim, rabbi this is found in the Hebrew fathers. He cites Phinehas ben Yair, as follows: "The doctrines of religion are resolved into carefulness; carefulness into vigorousness; vigorousness into guiltlessness; guiltlessness into abstemiousness; abstemiousness into cleanliness; cleanliness into godliness,"—literally, next to godliness.

Equity is a roguish thing. For Law we have a measure, know what to trust to; Equity is according to the conscience of him that is Chancellor, and as that is larger or narrower, so is Equity. 'Tis all one as if they should make the standard for the measure we call a "foot" a Chancellor's foot; what an uncertain measure would this be! One Chancellor has a long foot, another a short foot, a third an indifferent foot. 'Tis the same thing in the Chancellor's conscience.

Of which, if thou be a severe, sour-complexioned man, then I here disallow thee to be a competent judge.

The Compleat Angler. Author's Preface

I have laid aside business, and gone a-fishing.

Angling may be said to be so like the mathematics that it can never be fully learnt.

Ibid.

As no man is born an artist, so no man is born an angler.

I shall stay him no longer than to wish him a rainy evening to read this following discourse; and that if he be an honest angler, the east wind may never blow when he goes a fishing.

I am, sir, a Brother of the Angle.

The Compleat Angler. Part I, Chap. I

Doubt not but angling will prove to be so pleasant that it will prove to be, like virtue, a reward to itself.<sup>1</sup>

Ibid.

Sir Henry Wotton was a most dear lover and a frequent practiser of the Art of Angling; of which he would say, "Twas an employment for his idle time, which was then not idly spent, a rest to his mind, a cheerer of his spirits, a diverter of sadness, a calmer of unquiet thoughts, a moderator of passions, a procurer of contentedness"; and "that it begat habits of peace and patience in those that professed and practised it."

Ibid.

You will find angling to be like the virtue of humility, which has a calmness of spirit and a world of other blessings attending upon it.<sup>2</sup>

Ibid.

I remember that a wise friend of mine did usually say, "That which is everybody's business is nobody's business."

Ibid. Chap. II

A draught of Red Cow's milk.

Ibid.

No man can lose what he never had.

Ibid. Chap. V

We may say of angling as Dr. Boteler<sup>1</sup> said of strawberries: "Doubtless God could have made a better berry, but doubtless God never did"; and so, if I might be judge, God never did make a more calm, quiet, innocent recreation than angling.

Ibid.

Thus use your frog: put your hook through his mouth and out at his gills, and then with a fine needle and silk sew the upper part of his leg with only one stitch to the arming wire of your hook, or tie the frog's leg above the upper joint to the armed wire; and in so doing use him as though you loved him.

Ibid. Chap. VIII

This dish of meat is too good for any but anglers, or very honest men.

Roger Williams, in his Key into the Language of America, [1643] P. 98, says: "One of the chiefest doctors of England was wont to say, that God could have made, but God never did make, a better berry."

I know one person who is simular enough to think Cambridge the very best spot on the habitable globe. "Doubtless God could have made a better, but doubtless he never did." — JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL: On a Certain Condescension in Foreigners

[1613-1667]

I end with a story which I find in the Jews' <sup>1</sup> Books. When Abraham sat at <sup>1</sup> In the Latin dedication to the Senate of Hamburg of a Rabbinical work, The Rod of Judah, the translator, George Genz, gives the story substantially as found in Jeremy Taylor's Liberty of Prophesying. The work of Genz was published at Amsterdam in 1651, and the parable was credited to "a most noble author Sadus." It was afterward found in the Bostan, or Flower Garden, of Saadi, the Persian poet of the twelfth century.

Henry Home, Lord Kames [1696-1782], published the Parable on Persecution in Volume II of his Sketches of the History of Man in 1774, saying it had been communicated to him by Benjamin Franklin

From Lord Kames' book the parable was taken for the first English edition of Franklin's writings, edited by Benjamin Vaughan [1751-1835], published in London in 1779. Franklin had a copy of the parable bound in his Bible as an added chapter to the Book of Genesis.

The Reverend Sydney Smith read the apologue before the Mayor and Corporation of Bristol, England, November 5, 1828, and it is included in Chapter 8 of A Memoir of the Reverend Sydney Smith by his daughter, Lady Holland, 1855, where it is followed by a letter from Edward Everett, giving information concerning the parable.

No. 8 of Edward Everett's Mount Vernon Papers, a series first published in The New

his tent-door, according to his custom, waiting to entertain strangers, he espied an old man stooping and leaning on his staffe, weary with age and travel, coming toward him, who was an hundred years of age; he received him kindly, washed his feet, provided supper, caused him to sit down; but observing that the old man eat and prayed not, nor begged for a blessing on his meat, asked him why he did not worship the God of heaven. The old man told him that he worshiped the fire only, and acknowledged no other God: at which answer Abraham grew so zealously angry, that he thrust the old man out of his tent, and exposed him to all the evils of the night and an unguarded condition. When the old man was gone, God called to him and asked him where the stranger was; he replied, "I thrust him away because he did not worship thee"; God answered him, "I have suffered him these hundred years, although he dishonored me, and couldst thou not endure him one night, when he gave thee no trouble?" Upon this, saith the story, Abraham fetcht him back again, and gave him hospitable entertainment and wise instruction. Go thou and do likewise, and thy charity will be rewarded by the God of Abraham.

which was first used by Handel in Joshua, and afterwards transferred to Judas Maccabæus.
The text of both oratorios was written by Dr.
Thomas Morell [1703-1784], a clergyman.

("Appius and Virginia"), had invented a new species of thunder, which was approved of by the actors, and is the very sort that at present is used in the theatre. The tragedy however was coldly received, notwithstanding such assistance, and was acted but a short time. Some nights after, Mr. Dennis, being in the pit at the representation of "Macbeth," heard his own thunder made use of; upon which he rose in a violent passion, and exclaimed, with an oath, that it was his thunder. "See," said he,
"how the rascals use me! They will not let my play run, and yet they steal my thunder!" —

Rule 12*

SIR RICHARD STEELE

[1672-1729]

Though her mien carries much more invitation than command, to behold her is an immediate check to loose behaviour; to love her was a liberal education.<sup>2</sup>

Tatler. No. 49

Every rich man has usually some sly way of jesting, which would make no great figure were he not a rich man.

March 2, 1711*

When you fall into a man's conversation, the first thing you should consider is, whether he has a greater inclination to hear you, or that you should hear him.

Ibid. No. 49, April 26, 1711

Of all the affections which attend human life, the love of glory is the most ardent.

Ibid. No. 139, August 9, 1711

If we would consider how little of this vicissitude of motion and rest, which we call life, is spent with satisfaction, we should be more tender of our friends, than to bring them little sorrows which do not belong to them.

Ibid. No. 143, August 14, 1711

An old gentleman t'other day in discourse with a friend of his, (reflecting upon some adventures they had in youth together) cry'd out, Oh Jack, those were happy days!

Ibid. No. 153, August 25, 1711

Age in a virtuous person, of either sex, carries in it an authority which makes it preferable to all the pleasures of youth.

<sup>1</sup> Hoyle published [1742] a Short Treatise on Whist, which, in subsequent editions, added rules for playing piquet, backgammon, chess, and other games. His Laws [1760] ruled whist-playing until 1864. Hence the saying, "according to Hoyle." His book on chess was reissued in 1808.

*The Spectator. No. 153,
August 25, 1711*

Among all the diseases of the mind there is not one more epidemical or more pernicious than the love of flattery.

Ibid. No. 238, December 3, 1711

Will Honeycomb calls these over-offended ladies the outrageously virtuous.

Ibid. No. 266, January 4, 1712

I beg of you to burn it when you've read it.

Ibid. No. 274, January 14, 1712

That sex which is therefore called fair.

Ibid. No. 302, February 15, 1712

They that live in a trading street are not disturbed at the passage of carts.

Ibid. No. 479, September 9, 1712

A favour well bestowed is almost as great an honour to him who confers it as to him who receives it.

From the Letters to His Wife<sup>1</sup>

I am come to a tavern alone to eat a stake, after which I shall return to the office.

October 28, 1707

I have partly succeeded in my business today, and enclose two guineas. Dear Prue, I can't come home to dinner.

January 3, 1708

I was going home two hours ago, but was met by Mr. Griffith, who has kept me ever since. I will come within a pint of wine.

Eleven at Night, January 5, 1708

A little in drink, but at all times yr. faithful husband.

September 27, 1708

I am busy about the main chance.

October 13, 1708

<sup>1</sup> Selected and collated by R. BRIMLEY JOHNSON [1927]. The letters to Prue (his wife) are a classic of matrimonial humors; the perfect wedding present; what O. Henry would have called "A Handbook of Hymen."

If you do not hear of me before three tomorrow afternoon, believe I am too fuddled to take care to observe yr. orders.

October 25, 1708

The finest woman in nature should not detain me an hour from you; but you must sometimes suffer the rivalry of the wisest men.

September 17, 1712

NICHOLAS ROWE

[1673-1718]

As if Misfortune made the throne her seat,

And none could be unhappy but the great.<sup>1</sup>

The Fair Penitent. Prologue

At length the morn and cold indifference came.<sup>2</sup>

Ibid. Act I, Sc. 1

Is this that haughty gallant, gay Lothario?

Ibid. Act V, Sc. 1

ISAAC WATTS

[1674-1748]

Let dogs delight to bark and bite,
For God hath made them so;
Let bears and lions growl and fight,
For 'tis their nature too.

Divine Songs. XVI

But, children, you should never let Such angry passions rise;
Your little hands were never made
To tear each other's eyes.

Ibid.

Birds in their little nests agree;
And 'tis a shameful sight
When children of one family
Fall out, and chide, and fight.

Ibid. XVII

<sup>2</sup> But with the morning cool reflection came. — SCOTT: Chronicles of the Canongate, Chap. IV

Scott also quotes it in his notes to The Monastery, Chap. III, note 11; and with "calm" substituted for "cool" in The Antiquary, Chap. V; and with "repentance" for "reflection" in Rob Roy, Chap. XII.

How doth the little busy bee
Improve each shining hour,
And gather honey all the day
From every opening flower!

Divine Songs. XX

For Satan finds some mischief still For idle hands to do.

Ibid.

Hush, my dear, lie still and slumber!
Holy angels guard thy bed!
Heavenly blessings without number Gently falling on thy head.

A Cradle Hymn

How they served the Lord of Glory
Makes me angry while I sing.

Ibid.

'Tis the voice of the sluggard; I heard him complain,
"You have wak'd me too soon, I must slumber again."

The Sluggard. Stanza 1

But thanks to my friends for their care
in my breeding,
Who taught me betimes to love working and reading.

Ibid. Stanza 5

How proud we are! how fond to shew
Our clothes, and call them rich and new!
When the poor sheep and silkworm wore
That very clothing long before.

Against Pride in Clothes.

Stanza 3

Lord, in the morning thou shalt hear
My voice ascending high.

Psalms V

And while the lamp holds out to burn,
The vilest sinner may return.

Hymns and Spiritual Songs.

Book I, Hymn 88

Strange that a harp of thousand strings
Should keep in tune so long!

Ibid. Book II, Hymn 19

Hark! from the tombs a doleful sound.

Ibid. Hymn 63

The tall, the wise, the reverend head
Must lie as low as ours.

Ibid.

When I can read my title clear
To mansions in the skies,

I'll bid farewell to every fear,
And wipe my weeping eyes.

Hymns and Spiritual Songs.

Book II, Hymn 65

There is a land of pure delight,
Where saints immortal reign;
Infinite day excludes the night,
And pleasures banish pain.

Ibid. Hymn 66

So, when a raging fever burns,
We shift from side to side by turns;
And 'tis a poor relief we gain
To change the place, but keep the pain.

Ibid. Hymn 146

Were I so tall to reach the pole,
Or grasp the ocean with my span,
I must be measured by my soul:
The mind's the standard of the man.

Horæ Lyricæ. Book II,

False Greatness

To God the Father, God the Son,
And God the Spirit, Three in One,
Be honour, praise, and glory given
By all on earth, and all in heaven.

Doxology

[1675-1742]

How humble, and how complaisant
Is the proud man reduced to want!
With what a silly, hanging face
He bears his unforeseen disgrace!

Ready Money

Let all the learned say what they can,
'Tis ready money makes the man.

Ibid.

There is something in a face,
An air, and a peculiar grace,
Which boldest painters cannot trace.

The Lucky Hit

So in each action 'tis success
That gives it all its comeliness.

Ibid.

For what is virtue, courage, wit,
In all men, but a lucky hit?

Ibid.

So, safe on shore the pensioned sailor lies,
And all the malice of the storm defies;

<sup>1</sup> Of whom DR. JOHNSON, in his Lives of the Poets, made the famous remark: "He writes very well for a gentleman."

With ease of body blest and peace of mind

Pities the restless crew he left behind;
Whilst, in his cell, he meditates alone
On his great voyage to the world unknown.

The Author, an Old Man, to His Arm-chair

JOHN PHILIPS

[1676-1709]

My galligaskins, that have long withstood

The winter's fury, and encroaching frosts,

By time subdued (what will not time subdue!),

A horrid chasm disclosed.

The Splendid Shilling [1701].
Line 121

SIR ROBERT WALPOLE

[1676-1745]

The balance of power.

Speech [1741]

Flowery oratory he despised. He ascribed to the interested views of themselves or their relatives the declarations of pretended patriots, of whom he said, "All those men have their price."<sup>1</sup>

WILLIAM COXE [1747-1828]:
Memoirs of Walpole [1798],
Vol. IV, P. 369

Anything but history, for history must be false.

Walpoliana. No. 141

The gratitude of place-expectants is a lively sense of future favours.<sup>2</sup>

<sup>1</sup> "All men have their price" is commonly ascribed to Walpole. See Bulwer Lytton, page 425.

All who prove that each man has his price.
— AKENSIDE: An Epistle to Curio

<sup>2</sup> HAZLITT, in his Wit and Humour, says,
"This is Walpole's phrase."

The gratitude of most men is but a secret desire of receiving greater benefits. — ROCHE-FOUCAULD: Maxim 298

HENRY ST. JOHN,
VISCOUNT BOLINGBROKE

[1678-1751]

I have read somewhere or other, — in Dionysius of Halicarnassus, I think,
— that history is philosophy teaching by examples.<sup>1</sup>

On the Study and Use of History.
Letter 2

The dignity of history.<sup>2</sup>

Ibid. Letter 5

It is the modest, not the presumptuous, inquirer who makes a real and safe progress in the discovery of divine truths. One follows Nature and Nature's God; that is, he follows God in his works and in his word.<sup>3</sup>

Letter to Mr. Pope

GEORGE FARQUHAR

[1678-1707]

Like hungry guests, a sitting audience looks.

The Inconstant [1702]. Prologue

The prologue is the grace,
Each act, a course, each scene, a different dish.

Ibid.

Necessity, the mother of invention.<sup>4</sup>

The Twin Rivals [1702]. Act I

Cos. Pray now, what may be that same bed of honour?

Kite. Oh, a mighty large bed! bigger by half than the great bed at Ware:
ten thousand people may lie in it together, and never feel one another.

The Recruiting Officer [1706].
Act I, Sc. 1

<sup>1</sup> The contact with manners then is educa-

when he says history is philosophy learned from examples. — DIONYSIUS OF HALICARNAS-

Tired nature's sweet restorer, balmy sleep!

Night Thoughts. Night I, Line 1

Night, sable goddess! from her ebon throne,

In rayless majesty, now stretches forth
Her leaden sceptre o'er a slumbering
world.

Ibid. Line 18

Creation sleeps! 'Tis as the general pulse

Of life stood still, and Nature made a pause, —

An awful pause! prophetic of her end.

Ibid. Line 23

Poor pensioner on the bounties of an hour.

Ibid. Line 67

Be wise to-day; 'tis madness to defer.<sup>1</sup>

Ibid. Line 390

Procrastination is the thief of time.

Ibid. Line 393

At thirty, man suspects himself a fool;
Knows it at forty, and reforms his plan;
At fifty chides his infamous delay,
Pushes his prudent purpose to resolve;
In all the magnanimity of thought Resolves, and re-resolves; then dies the same.

Ibid. Line 417

All men think all men mortal but them-

too high

The price for knowledge!) taught us how to die.<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> The time of paying a shot in a tavern among good fellows, or Pantagruelists, is still called in France a "quart d'heure de Rabelais," — that is, Rabelais's quarter of an hour, when a man is uneasy or melancholy. — Life of Rabelais (Bohn's edition), P. 13

Remote from cities liv'd a swain,
Unvex'd with all the cares of gain;
His head was silver'd o'er with age,
And long experience made him sage.

I thought so once, but now I know it.

My Own Epitaph

ALEXANDER POPE <sup>2</sup>

[1688-1744]

Awake, my St. John! leave all meaner things

To low ambition and the pride of kings.

Let us, since life can little more supply
Than just to look about us, and to die, Expatriate free o'er all this scene of
man;

A mighty maze! but not without a plan.

Essay on Man. Epistle I, Line 1

Eye Nature's walks, shoot folly as it flies,

And catch the manners living as they rise;

Laugh where we must, be candid where we can,

But vindicate the ways of God to man.

<sup>1</sup> When vice prevails, and impious men bear sway,

The post of honour is a private station.

ADDISON: Cato, Act IV, Sc. 4

<sup>2</sup> A thousand years may elapse before there shall appear another man with a power of versification equal to that of Pope. — DR.
JOHNSON

Say first, of God above or man below, What can we reason but from what we know?

Essay on Man. Epistle I, Line 17

Heaven from all creatures hides the book of Fate,
All but the page prescrib'd, their present state.

Ibid. Line 77

Pleased to the last, he crops the flowery
food,
And licks the hand just raised to shed
his blood.

Ibid. Line 83

Who sees with equal eye, as God of all,
A hero perish or a sparrow fall,
Atoms or systems into ruin hurl'd,
And now a bubble burst, and now a world.

Ibid. Line 87

Hope springs eternal in the human breast:
Man never is, but always to be, blest.

Ibid. Line 95

Lo, the poor Indian! whose untutor'd
mind Sees God in clouds, or hears him in the wind;
His soul proud Science never taught to stray
Far as the solar walk or milky way.

Ibid. Line 99

But thinks, admitted to that equal sky,
His faithful dog shall bear him company.

Ibid. Line 111

Seas roll to waft me, suns to light me
rise;
My footstool earth, my canopy the skies.<sup>1</sup>

Ibid. Line 139

Die of a rose in aromatic pain.

The spider's touch, how exquisitely fine,

<sup>1</sup> All the parts of the universe I have an interest in: the earth serves me to walk upon; the sun to light me; the stars have their influence upon me. — MONTAIGNE: Apology for Raimond Sebond

Feels at each thread, and lives along the line.<sup>1</sup>

Essay on Man. Epistle I, Line 217

Remembrance and reflection how allied!

What thin partitions sense from thought divide!<sup>2</sup>

Ibid. Line 225

All are but parts of one stupendous whole,
Whose body Nature is, and God the soul.

Ibid. Line 267

As full, as perfect, in vile man that mourns

As the rapt seraph that adores and burns.

To Him no high, no low, no great, no small;<sup>3</sup>

He fills, he bounds, connects, and equals
all!

Ibid. Line 277

All nature is but art, unknown to thee;
All chance, direction, which thou canst not see;

All discord, harmony not understood;
All partial evil, universal good;

And spite of pride, in erring reason's spite,

One truth is clear, Whatever is, is right.<sup>4</sup>

Ibid. Line 289

Know then thyself, presume not God
to scan;

The proper study of mankind is man.<sup>5</sup>

Ibid. Epistle II, Line 1

Chaos of thought and passion, all confused;

Still by himself abused or disabused;

Created half to rise, and half to fall;

Great lord of all things, yet a prey to
all;

Trees and fields tell me nothing: men are my teachers. — PLATO: Phædrus

Sole judge of truth, in endless error hurled;

The glory, jest, and riddle of the world.

Essay on Man. Epistle II, Line 13

Fix'd like a plant on his peculiar spot,
To draw nutrition, propagate, and rot.

Ibid. Line 63

On life's vast ocean diversely we sail,
Reason the card, but passion is the gale.

Ibid. Line 107

And hence one master-passion in the breast,

Like Aaron's serpent, swallows up the rest.<sup>1</sup>

Ibid. Line 131

The young disease, that must subdue
at length,

Grows with his growth, and strengthens with his strength.

Ibid. Line 135

Vice is a monster of so frightful mien,
As to be hated needs but to be seen;
Yet seen too oft, familiar with her face,
We first endure, then pity, then embrace.

Ibid. Line 217

Behold the child, by Nature's kindly law,

Pleased with a rattle, tickled with a straw:

Some livelier plaything gives his youth
delight,

A little louder, but as empty quite:

Scarfs, garters, gold, amuse his riper
stage,

And beads and prayer-books are the toys of age.

Pleased with this bauble still, as that before,

Till tired he sleeps, and life's poor play is o'er.

Ibid. Line 274

Learn of the little nautilus to sail, Spread the thin oar, and catch the driving gale.

Ibid. Epistle III, Line 177

For forms of government let fools contest;

Whate'er is best administer'd is best:

For modes of faith let graceless zealots fight;

His can't be wrong whose life is in the right.

In faith and hope the world will disagree,

But all mankind's concern is charity.

Essay on Man. Epistle III, Line 303

O happiness! our being's end and aim!
Good, pleasure, ease, content! whate'er thy name:

That something still which prompts the eternal sigh,

For which we bear to live, or dare to die.

Ibid. Epistle IV, Line 1

Reason's whole pleasure, all the joys of sense,

Lie in three words — health, peace, and competence.

Ibid. Line 79

Worth makes the man, and want of it
the fellow;

The rest is all but leather or prunella.

Ibid. Line 203

What can ennoble sots or slaves or cowards?

Alas! not all the blood of all the Howards.

Ibid. Line 215

A wit's a feather, and a chief a rod;
An honest man's the noblest work of God.

Ibid. Line 247

One self-approving hour whole years
outweighs

Of stupid starers and of loud huzzas:
And more true joy Marcellus exil'd feels

Than Caesar with a senate at his heels.

Ibid. Line 255

If parts allure thee, think how Bacon
shin'd,

The wisest, brightest, meanest of mankind!

Or ravish'd with the whistling of a
name,

See Cromwell, damn'd to everlasting fame!

Ibid. Line 281

Slave to no sect, who takes no private road.

and they became serpents: but Aaron's rod swallowed up their rods. — Exodus, VII, 12

From grave to gay, from lively to severe.<sup>2</sup>

Say, shall my little bark attendant sail,
Pursue the triumph and partake the gale?

Ibid. Line 385

Thou wert my guide, philosopher, and friend.<sup>3</sup>

Ibid. Line 390

The fate of all extremes is such:

Men may be read, as well as books, too much.

Moral Essays. Epistle I, Line 9

To observations which ourselves we make,

We grow more partial for th' observer's sake.

Ibid. Line 11

Like following life through creatures you dissect,

You lose it in the moment you detect.

Ibid. Line 29

Not always actions show the man; we find

Who does a kindness is not therefore kind.

Ibid. Line 109

Who combats bravely is not therefore brave,

He dreads a death-bed like the meanest slave

Who reasons wisely is not therefore wise;

His pride in reasoning, not in acting, lies.

Ibid. Line 115

'Tis education forms the common mind:

Just as the twig is bent the tree's inclined.

Ibid. Line 149

Manners with fortunes, humours turn with climes,

Tenets with books, and principles with times.<sup>1</sup>

And you, brave Cobham! to the latest breath

Shall feel your ruling passion strong in death.

Most women have no characters at all.

To rest, the cushion and soft dean invite,

Who never mentions hell to ears polite.<sup>3</sup>

Ibid. Line 60

Be Homer's works your study and delight,

Read them by day, and meditate by night.

Ibid. Line 124

Music resembles poetry; in each
Are nameless graces which no methods teach,

And which a master-hand alone can reach.

Ibid. Line 143

Those oft are stratagems which errors seem,

Nor is it Homer nods, but we that dream.<sup>2</sup>

Ibid. Line 177

Of all the causes which conspire to blind

Man's erring judgment, and misguide the mind,

What the weak head with strongest bias rules,

Is pride, the never-failing vice of fools.

Ibid. Part II, Line 1

A little learning is a dangerous thing;<sup>3</sup>

Drink deep, or taste not the Pierian spring;

There shallow draughts intoxicate the brain,

And drinking largely sobers us again.

True wit is Nature to advantage
dress'd,
What oft was thought, but ne'er so well
express'd.

Words are like leaves; and where they most abound,
Much fruit of sense beneath is rarely found.

Ibid. Line 109

Such labour'd nothings, in so strange a style,
Amaze th' unlearn'd, and make the learned smile.

Ibid. Line 126

In words, as fashions, the same rule will
hold,
Alike fantastic if too new or old:
Be not the first by whom the new are tried,
Nor yet the last to lay the old aside.

Ibid. Line 133

Some to church repair,
Not for the doctrine, but the music
there.

These equal syllables alone require,
Though oft the ear the open vowels
tire;

While expletives their feeble aid do join,
And ten low words oft creep in one dull
line.

Ibid. Line 142

A needless Alexandrine ends the song, That like a wounded snake, drags its slow length along.

Ibid. Line 156

True ease in writing comes from art, not chance,<sup>1</sup>

As those move easiest who have learn'd to dance.

'Tis not enough no harshness gives offence;

The sound must seem an echo to the sense.

Ibid. Line 162

Soft is the strain when zephyr gently
blows,

And the smooth stream in smoother
numbers flows;

But when loud surges lash the sounding
shore,

The hoarse rough verse should like the torrent roar.

When Ajax strives some rock's vast weight to throw,

The line, too, labours, and the words
move slow:

Not so when swift Camilla scours the plain,

Flies o'er th' unbending corn, and skims along the main.

<sup>1</sup> Men who content themselves with the semblance of truth and a display of words talk much of our obligations to Great Britain for protection. Had she a single eye to our advantage? A nation of shopkeepers are [sic] very seldom so disinterested. — From an oration purporting to have been delivered by SAMUEL ADAMS [1722-1803] at the State House in Philadelphia, Aug. 1, 1776. (Philadelphia, printed; London, reprinted for E.
Johnson, No. 4 Ludgate Hill, 1776.) W. V.
Wells, in his Life of Adams, says: "No such American edition has ever been seen, but at least four copies are known of the London issue. A German translation of this oration was printed in 1778, perhaps at Berne; the place of publication is not given."

To found a great empire for the sole purpose of raising up a people of customers may at first sight appear a project fit only for a nation of shopkeepers. It is, however, a project altogether unfit for a nation of shopkeepers;
but extremely fit for a nation whose Government is influenced by shopkeepers. — ADAM SMITH [1723-1790]: Wealth of Nations, Vol.
II, Book IV, Chap. 7, Part 3 [1776]

But it may be said as a rule, that every Englishman in the Duke of Wellington's army fact surely becomes a nation of shopkeepers.

Though the change from day to night is by a motion so gradual as scarcely to be perceived, yet when night is come we behold it very different from the day; and thus as people become wise in their own eyes, and prudent in their own sight, customs rise up from the spirit of this world, and spread by little, and little, till a departure from the simplicity that there is in Christ becomes as distinguishable as light from darkness, to such who are crucified to the world.

*Works. Vol. I, Preface, A Vin-

"War," says Machiavel, "ought to be the only study of a prince"; and by a prince he means every sort of state, however constituted. "He ought," says this great political doctor, "to consider peace only as a breathing-time, which gives him leisure to contrive, and furnishes ability to execute military plans." A meditation on the conduct of political societies made old Hobbes imagine that war was the state of nature.

[1735-1826]

Yesterday the greatest question was decided which ever was debated in America; and a greater perhaps never was, nor will be, decided among men.
A resolution was passed without one dissenting colony, that those United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent States.

*Letter to Mrs. Adams
[July 3, 1776]*

The second day of July, 1776, will be the most memorable epocha in the history of America. I am apt to believe that it will be celebrated by succeeding generations as the great anniversary festival. It ought to be commemorated as the day of deliverance, by solemn acts of devotion to God Almighty. It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires, and illuminations, from one end of this continent to the

There's a sweet little cherub that sits up aloft,

To keep watch for the life of poor Jack.

Did you ever hear of Captain Wattle? He was all for love, and a little for the bottle.

Captain Wattle and Miss Roe

Here, a sheer hulk, lies poor Tom Bowling,

The darling of our crew;

No more he'll hear the tempest howling,

For death has broach'd him to.

His form was of the manliest beauty,

His heart was kind and soft;

Faithful below he did his duty,

But now he's gone aloft.

For though his body's under hatches,

His soul has gone aloft.

But were it to my fancy given

To rate her charms, I'd call them heaven;

For though a mortal made of clay,

Angels must love Ann Hathaway;

She hath a way so to control,

And sweetest heaven on earth display,

That to be heaven Ann hath a way;

She hath a way,

Ann Hathaway, —

To be heaven's self Ann hath a way.

We owe it, therefore, to candor, and to the amicable relations existing between the United States and those powers to declare that we should consider any attempt on their part to extend their system to any portion of this we . . . shall not interfere. But with the governments . . . whose independcould not view any interposition for the purpose of oppressing them, or controlling, in any other manner, their destiny, by any European power, in any other light than as a manifestation of an unfriendly disposition towards the United States.

Preface

In spite of difference of soil and climate, of language and manners, of laws and customs, — in spite of things silently gone out of mind, and things violently destroyed, the Poet binds together by passion and knowledge the vast empire of human society, as it is spread over the whole earth, and over all time.

To-morrow — oh, 'twill never be,

What I preserve can perish never,

What I forego is lost forever."

WILLIAM HAZLITT

[1778-1830]

One of the pleasantest things in the world is going a journey; but I like to go by myself.

On Going a Journey

<sup>1</sup> There is a well-authenticated anecdote of Cromwell. On a certain occasion, when his troops were about to cross a river to attack the enemy, he concluded an address, with these words: "Put your trust in God; but mind to keep your powder dry!" — HAYES: Ballads of Ireland, Vol 1, P. 191

The soul of a journey is liberty, perfect liberty, to think, feel, do just as one pleases.

On Going a Journey

Oh! it is great to shake off the trammels of the world and of public opinion — to lose our importunate, tormenting, everlasting personal identity and become the creature of the moment, clear of all ties . . . to be known by no other title than the Gentleman in the parlour!

Ibid.

What I mean by living to one's self is living in the world, as in it, not of it. . . . It is to be a silent spectator of the mighty scene of things; . . . to take a thoughtful, anxious interest or curiosity in what is passing in the world, but not to feel the slightest inclination to make or meddle with it.

On Living to One's Self

Even in the common affairs of life, in love, friendship, and marriage, how little security have we when we trust our happiness in the hands of others!

Ibid.

There is not a more mean, stupid, dastardly, pitiful, selfish, spiteful, envious, ungrateful animal than the Public. It is the greatest of cowards, for it is afraid of itself.

Ibid.

When a man is dead, they put money in his coffin, erect monuments to his memory, and celebrate the anniversary of his birthday in set speeches. Would they take any notice of him if he were living? No!

Ibid.

What a sight for sore eyes that would be! <sup>1</sup>

Of Persons One Would Have Seen

A sun-dial quaint and gray.

WILLIAM CROSWELL DOANE [1832-1913]: Horas Non Numero

There is a softness and a harmony in the words and in the thought unparalleled.

On a Sun-Dial

If our hours were all serene, we might probably take almost as little note of them, as the dial does of those that are clouded.

Ibid.

No young man believes he shall ever die.

The Feeling of Immortality in Youth

There is a feeling of Eternity in youth, which makes us amends for everything. To be young is to be as one of the Immortal Gods.

Ibid.

The young are prodigal of life from a superabundance of it; the old are tenacious on the same score, because they have little left, and cannot enjoy even what remains of it.

Ibid.

As we advance in life, we acquire a keener sense of the value of time. Nothing else, indeed, seems of any consequence; and we become misers in this respect.

Ibid.

The only true retirement is that of the heart; the only true leisure is the repose of the passions. To such persons it makes little difference whether they are young or old; and they die as they have lived, with graceful resignation.

Ibid.

If I have not read a book before, it is, to all intents and purposes, new to me, whether it was printed yesterday or three hundred years ago.

On Reading New Books

When I take up a work that I have read before (the oftener the better) I know what I have to expect. The satisfaction is not lessened by being anticipated.

On Reading Old Books

Persons without education certainly do not want either acuteness or strength of mind in what concerns themselves, or in things immediately within their observation; but they have no power of abstraction, no general standard of taste, or scale of opinion. They see their objects always near, and never in the horizon. Hence arises that egotism which has been remarked as the characteristic of self-taught men.

The Round Table. I, 26

It is better to be able neither to read nor write than to be able to do nothing else.

On the Ignorance of the Learned

Men of genius do not excel in any profession because they labour in it, but they labour in it, because they excel.

Characteristics

We are not hypocrites in our sleep.

On Dreams

"The English," says Froissart, "amused themselves sadly after the fashion of their country." They have indeed a way of their own. Their mirth is a relaxation from gravity, a challenge to dull care to be gone; and one is not always clear at first, whether the appeal is successful.

Merry England

Lord St. Leonards attributes this phrase to Sir Charles Wetherell, who used it on the occasion referred to by Lord Campbell.

never despairs of the cause of Christ and human virtue: I do and I must reverence human nature. I bless it for its kind affections. I honor it for its achievements in science and art, and still more for its examples of heroic and saintly virtue. These are marks of a divine origin and the pledges of a celes-

A wind that follows fast,

It is an impression, of which we can

Be it ever so humble, there's no place

ne'er met with elsewhere.

An exile from home splendour dazzles

The birds singing gayly, that came at my call,

Give me them, and that peace of mind

63, by SIR EDWARD ELGAR [1857-1934].

For love and beauty and delight,
There is no death nor change.

*The Sensitive Plant.
Conclusion, Stanza 6*

We rest. A dream has power to poison
sleep;

We rise. One wandering thought pollutes the day.

Mutability. I, Stanza 3

Man's yesterday may ne'er be like his morrow;

Naught may endure but Mutability.

Ibid. Stanza 4

The flower that smiles to-day

To-morrow dies;

All that we wish to stay

Tempts and then flies.

What is this world's delight?

Lightning that mocks the night,

Brief even as bright.

Ibid. II, Stanza 1

There is no sport in hate when all the rage

Is on one side.

Lines to a Reviewer

The weary Day turned to his rest,

Lingering like an unloved guest.

To Night. Stanza 3

When the lamp is shattered

The light in the dust lies dead: —

When the cloud is scattered

The rainbow's glory is shed.

*When the Lamp Is Shattered.
Stanza 1*

Once, early in the morning,

Beelzebub arose,

With care his sweet person adorning,

He put on his Sunday clothes.<sup>1</sup>

*The Devil's Walk, A Ballad.
Stanza 1*

How wonderful is Death,

Death and his brother Sleep.

Queen Mab. I

Power, like a desolating pestilence,

Pollutes whate'er it touches; and obedience,

Bane of all genius, virtue, freedom,
truth,

Makes slaves of men, and, of the human frame,

A mechanized automaton.

Ibid. III

<sup>1</sup> See Southey, page 321.

Heaven's ebon vault,
Studded with stars unutterably bright,
Through which the moon's unclouded
grandeur rolls,
Seems like a canopy which love had spread
To curtain her sleeping world.

Queen Mab. IV

Poets are the hierophants of an un-apprehended inspiration; the mirrors of the gigantic shadows which futurity casts upon the present.<sup>1</sup>

A Defence of Poetry

Poetry is the record of the best and happiest moments of the happiest and best minds.

Ibid.

Poets are the unacknowledged legislators of the world.

SEBA SMITH ("MAJOR JACK DOWNING")

[1792-1868]

The cold winds swept the mountain-height,

And pathless was the dreary wild,
And 'mid the cheerless hours of night

A mother wandered with her child:
As through the drifting snows she press'd,

The babe was sleeping on her breast.

The Snow Storm. Stanza 1

'Twas autumn, and the leaves were dry,

And rustled on the ground;
And chilly winds went whistling by
With low and pensive sound.

Three Little Graves. Stanza 1

JEFFERYS TAYLOR

This moral, I think, may be safely attached;

Reckon not on your chickens before they are hatched.<sup>2</sup>

JOHN CLARE

[1793-1864]

I am! yet what I am who cares, or knows?

My friends forsake me like a memory lost.

Written in Northampton County Asylum

The daisy lives, and strikes its little root

Into the lap of time: centuries may come,

And pass away into the silent tomb,
And still the child, hid in the womb of
time,

Shall smile and pluck them, when this simple rhyme

Shall be forgotten.

The Daisy's Eternity

With its little brimming eye

And its yellow rims so pale

And its crimp and curdled leaf,

Who can pass its beauties by?

The Primrose Bank

The world was on thy page

Of victories but a comma.

To Napoleon

The wind and clouds, now here, now
there,

Hold no such strange dominion

As woman's cold, perverted will,

And soon estranged opinion.

SAMUEL GRISWOLD GOOD- RICH ("PETER PARLEY")

[1793-1860]

The earth is round, and like a ball

Seems swinging in the air;

A sky extends around it all,

<sup>1</sup> Compare the epitaph written for himself (at the age of 22) by Benjamin Franklin: "Benjamin Franklin, Printer. . . Will Appear Once More, In a New and More Elegant Edition, Revised and Corrected by the Author."

And stars are shining there.
 Water and land upon the face
 Of this round world we see;
 The land is man's safe dwelling place,
 But ships sail on the sea.

The Earth

FELICIA DOROTHEA
 HEMANS
 [1793-1835]

The stately homes of England!
 How beautiful they stand,
 Amidst their tall ancestral trees,
 O'er all the pleasant land!

The Homes of England. Stanza 1

The breaking waves dashed high
 On a stern and rock-bound coast,
 And the woods, against a stormy sky,
 Their giant branches tossed.

The Landing of the Pilgrim Fathers. Stanza 1

A band of exiles moored their bark
 On a wild New England shore.

Ibid. Stanza 2

What sought they thus afar?
 Bright jewels of the mine?
 The wealth of seas, the spoils of war? —

They sought a faith's pure shrine.

Ibid. Stanza 9

Ay, call it holy ground,
 The soil where first they trod!
 They have left unstained what there they found —

Freedom to worship God.

The boy<sup>1</sup> stood on the burning deck,
 Whence all but he had fled;<sup>2</sup>

<sup>2</sup> The first American edition of Mrs. Hemans' Poems [1826] gave this line "whence all but him had fled." English editions and subsequent American editions seem evenly divided between "but him" and "but he." The

The flame that lit the battle's wreck
 Shone round him o'er the dead.

Casabianca. Stanza 1

There came a burst of thunder sound;
 The boy, — oh! where was he?

Ibid. Stanza 9

Leaves have their time to fall,
 And flowers to wither at the northwind's breath,
 And stars to set; — but all,
 Thou hast all seasons for thine own,
 O Death!

The Hour of Death. Stanza 1

Come to the sunset tree!
 The day is past and gone;
 The woodman's axe lies free,
 And the reaper's work is done.

Tyrolese Evening Song. Stanza 1

In the busy haunts of men.

*Tale of the Secret Tribunal.
 Part 1*

Oh, call my brother back to me!

I cannot play alone:

The summer comes with flower and bee, —

Where is my brother gone?

The Child's First Grief. Stanza 1

I have looked o'er the hills of the stormy North,
 And the larch has hung all his tassels
 forth.

The Voice of Spring. Stanza 3

But tell us, thou bird of the solemn strain!

Can those who have loved forget?

We call — and they answer not
 again —

Do they love — do they love us yet?

The Messenger Bird

Wave may not foam nor wild wind sweep

Where rest not England's Dead.

England's Dead

'Twas a lovely thought to mark the hours

As they floated in light away, last edition published while Mrs. Hemans was still living and presumably approved the contents (Blackwood, Edinburgh, 1829, P. 243), gives "but he."

By the opening and the folding flowers,
That laugh to the summer's day.

The Dial of Flowers [of Linnaeus]

So moved they calmly to the field,
Thence never to return,
Save bearing back the Spartan shield,
Or on it proudly borne.

The Spartans' March. Stanza 9

The bark that held a prince went down,
The sweeping waves rolled on;
And what was England's glorious crown

To him that wept a son?

He lived — for life may long be borne Ere sorrow break its chain; —

Why comes not death to those who mourn? —

He never smiled again! <sup>1</sup>

He Never Smiled Again <sup>2</sup>

EDWARD T. TAYLOR

Simon Stone, he spied a boat,
"Oh, here is a boat," cried Simon Stone.

"I've a mind to see if this boat will float,

I'll fish a spell, if I go alone."

Simon Stone (a Ballad of the Disciple, Simon Peter). Stanza 1

WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT

Here the free spirit of mankind, at length, Throws its last fetters off; and who <sup>1</sup> Prince William, son of King Henry I, perished, in 1120, when the White Ship of the royal fleet struck a rock and sank instantly.

J. R. GREEN, in A Short History of the English People, says: "It was not till the morning that the fatal news reached the King. He fell unconscious to the ground, and rose never to smile again."

A limit to the giant's unchained strength,
Or curb his swiftness in the forward race?

The Ages. Stanza 33

death,

Thou go not, like the quarry-slave at
night,

Scourged to his dungeon, but, sustained and soothed

The innumerable caravan that moves
To the pale realms of shade, where each shall take.

So live, that when the mighty caravan,
Which halts one night-time in the vale of
death,

Shall strike its white tents for the morning
march,

Thou shalt mount onward to the Eternal Hills,

Thy foot unwearied, and thy strength renewed,

Like the strong eagle's, for its upward flight.

EDWARD PAYSON WESTON [1819-1879]:
A Vision of Immortality, A Reply to Thanatopsis

By an unfaltering trust, approach thy grave,
Like one that wraps the drapery of his couch
About him, and lies down to pleasant dreams.

Thanatopsis

He who, from zone to zone, Guides through the boundless sky thy certain flight,
In the long way that I must tread alone,
Will lead my steps aright.

To a Waterfowl. Stanza 8

God made his grave, to men unknown,
Where Moab's rocks a vale infold,
And laid the aged seer alone
To slumber while the world grows old.

"No Man Knoweth His Sepulchre." <sup>1</sup> Stanza 2

The stormy March has come at last,
With wind, and cloud, and changing skies;

I hear the rushing of the blast,
That through the snowy valley flies.

March. Stanza 1

But 'neath yon crimson tree Lover to listening maid might breathe his flame,
Nor mark, within its roseate canopy,
Her blush of maiden shame.

Autumn Woods. Stanza 9

The groves were God's first temples.

A Forest Hymn

Thou com'st from Jersey meadows,

To a Mosquito. Stanza 3

Rogue's Island once—but when the rogues were dead,

<sup>1</sup> So Moses the servant of the Lord died there in the land of Moab, according to the word of the Lord. And he buried him in a valley in the Land of Moab, over against Bethpeor; but no man knoweth of his sepulchre unto this day. — Deuteronomy, XXXIV, 5, 6

And no man knows that sepulchre,
And no man saw it e'er,
For the angels of God upturned the sod,
And laid the dead man there.

These are the gardens of the Desert,
these

The unshorn fields, boundless and beautiful,

For which the speech of England has

EDWARD EVERETT

[1794-1865]

When I am dead, no pageant train
 Shall waste their sorrows at my bier,
 Nor worthless pomp of homage vain
 Stain it with hypocritic tear.

Alaric the Visigoth. Stanza 1

Ye shall not pile, with servile toil,
 Your monuments upon my breast,
 Nor yet within the common soil Lay down the wreck of power to rest,

Where man can boast that he has trod
 On him that was "the scourge of God."

Ibid. Stanza 2

But ye the mountain-stream shall turn,
 And lay its secret channel bare
 And hollow, for your sovereign's urn,
 A resting-place forever there.

Ibid. Stanza 3

As a work of art, I know few things more pleasing to the eye, or more capable of affording scope and gratification to a taste for the beautiful, than a well-situated, well-cultivated farm.

Address at Buffalo, New York
 [October 9, 1857]

No gilded dome swells from the lowly roof to catch the morning or evening beam; but the love and gratitude of united America settle upon it in one eternal sunshine. From beneath that humble roof went forth the intrepid and unselfish warrior, the magistrate who knew no glory but his country's good; to that he returned, happiest when his work was done. There he lived in noble simplicity, there he died in glory and peace. While it stands, the latest generations of the grateful children of America will make this pilgrimage to it as to a shrine; and when it shall fall, if fall it must, the memory and the name of Washington shall shed an eternal glory on the spot.

Oration on the Character of Washington

I am no aristocrat. I do not own a quadruped larger than a cat, and she vehicle, with the exception, possibly, of a wheelbarrow.

Mount Vernon Papers. No. 7

The days of palmy prosperity are not those most favorable to the display of public virtue or the influence of wise and good men. In hard, doubtful, un-prosperous, and dangerous times, the disinterested and patriotic find their way, by a species of public instinct, unopposed, joyfully welcomed, to the control of affairs.

Ibid. No. 14

When I contemplate the extent to which the moral sentiments, the intelligence, the affections of so many millions of people, — sealed up by a sa-

 — daily circulate through a country, I am compelled to regard the Post-office, next to Christianity, as the right arm of our modern civilization.

ities of the earth, and to the latest generations.

Early Letters. To Mr. R. Mitchell

Except by name, Jean Paul Friedrich Richter is little known out of Germany. The only thing connected with him, we think, that has reached this country is his saying, — imported by Madame de Staël, and thankfully pocketed by most newspaper critics, — "Providence has given to the French the empire of the land; to the English that of the sea; to the Germans that of — the air!"

Richter (In Edinburgh Review, June, 1827)

True humour springs not more from the head than from the heart; it is not contempt, its essence is love; it issues not in laughter, but in still smiles, which lie far deeper.

Ibid.

The great law of culture is: Let each become all that he was created capable of being; expand, if possible, to his full growth; resisting all impediments, casting off all foreign, especially all noxious adhesions; and show himself at length in his own shape and stature, be these what they may.

We are firm believers in the maxim that, for all right judgment of any man or thing, it is useful, nay essential, to see his good qualities before pronouncing on his bad.

Ibid.

If an individual is really of consequence enough to have his life and character recorded for public remembrance, we have always been of the opinion that the public ought to be made acquainted with all the inward springs and relations of his character.

Sonnet on Fame

The day is gone, and all its sweets are gone!

Sweet voice, sweet lips, soft hand,
and softer breast.

Sonnet, The Day Is Gone

Mortality

Weights heavily on me like unwilling sleep.

Sonnet, On Seeing the Elgin Marbles

Shed no tear — O shed no tear!
The flower will bloom another year.
Weep no more — O weep no more!
Young buds sleep in the root's white core.

Faery Songs. I

Sweet Hope, ethereal balm upon me shed,
And wave thy silver pinions o'er my head.

To Hope. Stanza 1

Disappointment, parent of Despair.

Ibid. Stanza 3

I stood tip-toe upon a little hill,
The air was cooling, and so very still.

I Stood Tip-toe. Line 1

Open afresh your round of starry folds,
Ye ardent marigolds!

Ibid. Line 47

The moon lifting her silver rim
Above a cloud, and with a gradual swim
Coming into the blue with all her light.

Ibid. Line 113

Nought but a lovely sighing of the wind

Along the reedy stream; a half-heard
strain,

Full of sweet desolation — balmy pain.

Ibid. Line 160

And no birds sing.

La Belle Dame Sans Merci. Stanza 1

Bright star, would I were stedfast as thou art —

Not in lone splendour hung aloft the
night

And watching, with eternal lids apart,
Like nature's patient, sleepless Eremite,

The moving waters at their priestlike task

Of pure ablution round earth's human shores.

The Last Sonnet

Pillow'd upon my fair love's ripening
breast,

To feel for ever its soft fall and swell,
Awake for ever in a sweet unrest.

The poetry of earth is never dead.

Sonnet, On the Grasshopper and Cricket

Four Seasons fill the measure of the year;

There are four seasons in the mind of man.

Sonnet, The Human Seasons

Blue! Gentle cousin of the forest-green, Married to green in all the sweetest flowers, —

Forget-me-not, — the blue bell, — and, that Queen

Of secrecy, the violet.

Sonnet, Blue

It keeps eternal whisperings around Desolate shores, and with its mighty swell

Gluts twice ten thousand caverns.

Sonnet, On the Sea

I am certain of nothing but of the holiness of the heart's affections, and the truth of Imagination. What the Imagination seizes as Beauty must be Truth.

JAMES GATES PERCIVAL

[1795-1856]

Hail to the land whereon we tread,

Our fondest boast!

The sepulchres of mighty dead,

The truest hearts that ever bled,

Who sleep on glory's brightest bed,

A fearless host:

No slave is here: — our unchained feet,

Walk freely as the waves that beat

Our coast.

New England

On thy fair bosom, silver lake,

The wild swan spreads his snowy sail,

And round his breast the ripples break,

As down he bears before the gale.

SIR THOMAS NOON

TALFOURD

[1795-1854]

'Tis a little thing

To give a cup of water; yet its draught

Of cool refreshment, drained by fevered lips,

May give a shock of pleasure to the frame

More exquisite than when nectarean juice

Renews the life of joy in happiest hours.

The Armada. Line 34

Oh! wherefore come ye forth, in triumph
from the North,
With your hands, and your feet, and your raiment all red?
And wherefore doth your rout send forth a joyous shout?
And whence be the grapes of the wine-press which ye tread?

The Battle of Naseby. Stanza 1

From a shore no search hath found,
from a gulf no line can sound,
Without rudder or needle we steer;
Above, below, our bark dies the sea-
fowl and the shark,
As we fly by the last Buccaneer.

LUCIUS O'BRIEN

[? - 1841]

To our old Alma Mater, our rock-bound Highland home, We'll cast back many a fond regret, as o'er life's sea we roam, Until on our last battlefield the lights of heaven shall glow, We'll never fail to drink to her and Benny Havens, oh!

His food

Was glory, which was poison to his mind

And peril to his body.

He that lacks time to mourn, lacks time to mend.

Eternity mourns that. 'Tis an ill cure
For life's worst ills, to have no time to feel them.

Where sorrow's held intrusive and turned out,

There wisdom will not enter, nor true power,

Nor aught that dignifies humanity.

Ibid.

We figure to ourselves

The thing we like; and then we build it up,

As chance will have it, on the rock or sand, —

For thought is tired of wandering o'er the world,

And homebound Fancy runs her bark ashore.

First Lieutenant. December 1, 1839.

RICHARD BETHELL,
LORD WESTBURY

[1800-1873]

A solicitor, after hearing Lord Westbury's opinion, ventured to say that he had turned the matter over in his mind, and thought that something might be said on the other side; to which he replied, "Then, sir, you will turn it over once more in what you are pleased to call your mind."

Medical men all over the world having merely entered into a tacit agreement to call all sorts of maladies people are liable to, in cold weather, by one name; so that one sort of treatment may serve for all, and their practice be thereby greatly simplified.

Letter to John Welsh
[March 4, 1837]

Some new neighbours, that came a month or two ago, brought with them an accumulation of all the things to be guarded against in a London neighbourhood, viz., a pianoforte, a lap-dog, and a parrot.

Letter to Mrs. Carlyle [May 6,

Where you threw aside all fetters,
Spoke your thoughts and mind out freely
In your own delightful style.

BESSIE CHANDLER: To Mrs. Carlyle,

Lead, kindly Light, amid the encircling gloom;

Lead thou me on!

Keep thou my feet: I do not ask to see

If he be an unbeliever, he will be too profound and large-minded to ridicule religion or to act against it; he is too wise to be a dogmatist or fanatic in his infidelity. Campaign Song for William Henry Harrison [1840]

A song for our banner! The watchword recall
Which gave the Republic her station:

"United we stand, divided we fall!" <sup>3</sup>
It made and preserves us a nation! <sup>4</sup>
*The Flag of Our Union.
Stanza 1*

The union of lakes, the union of lands,
The union of States none can sever,

<sup>2</sup> Harrison had distinguished himself in a victorious battle with Indians, near Tippecanoe River [Indiana], November 7, 1811. Morris's words, sung to the tune of "The Old Oaken Bucket," were immensely popular. For the first time in our land the power of song was invoked to aid a Presidential candidate. — BEN PERLEY POORE [1820-1887]: Reminiscences, Vol. I, P. 233.

Old Ironsides at anchor lay,
In the harbor of Mahon;
A dead calm rested on the bay, —
The waves to sleep had gone;
When little Hal, the captain's son,
A lad both brave and good,
In sport, up shroud and rigging ran,
And on the main truck stood!

EDWARD COOTE PINKNEY

[1802-1828]

I fill this cup to one made up
Of loveliness alone,
A woman, of her gentle sex
The seeming paragon;
To whom the better elements
And kindly stars have given
A form so fair, that, like the air,
'Tis less of earth than heaven.

A Health

Her every tone is music's own,
Like those of morning birds,
And something more than melody
Dwells ever in her words.

A Health

Look out upon the stars, my love,
And shame them with thine eyes.

WINTHROP MACKWORTH PRAED

[1802-1839]

My debts are paid; but Nature's debt
Almost escaped my recollection:
Tom! we shall meet again; and yet
I cannot leave you my direction.

Ibid. Stanza 13

Dame Fortune is a fickle gipsy,
And always blind, and often tipsy;
Sometimes for years and years together,
She'll bless you with the sunniest
weather,

Bestowing honour, pudding, pence,
You can't imagine why or whence; —
Then in a moment — Presto, pass! —
Your joys are withered like the grass.

Some a light sigh.

Dream-Pedlary

Tell me how many beads there are

In a silver chain

Of evening rain,

Unravell'd from the tumbling main,

That divinest hope, which none can

Who have not laid their dearest in the grave.

LAMAN BLANCHARD

[1803-1845]

Sooth 'twere a pleasant life to lead,

With nothing in the world to do

But just to blow a shepherd's reed,

The silent season thro'

And just to drive a flock to feed, —

Sheep — quiet, fond and few!

Dolce far Niente. Stanza 1

Give me to live with Love alone

And let the world go dine and dress;

For Love hath lowly haunts. . . .

If life's a flower, I choose my own —

'Tis "love in Idleness."

<sup>1</sup> If there were dreams to sell,

Do I not know full well

What I would buy?

Hope's dear delusive spell,

It's happy tale to tell,

Joy's fleeting sigh.

LOUISE, CHANDLER MOUTTON

[1835-1908]: If There Were

Dreams to Sell, St. 1

Pleasures lie thickest where no pleasures seem:

There's not a leaf that falls upon the ground

But holds some joy of silence 'or of sound,

Some sprite begotten of a summer dream.

GEORGE BORROW

[1803-1881]

O England! long, long may it be ere the sun of thy glory sink beneath the wave of darkness! Though gloomy and portentous clouds are now gathering rapidly around thee, still, still may it please the Almighty to disperse them, and to grant thee a futurity longer in duration and still brighter in renown than thy past! Or, if thy doom be at hand, may that doom be a noble one, and worthy of her who has been styled the Old Queen of the waters! May thou sink, if thou dost sink, amidst blood and flame, with a mighty noise, causing more than one nation to participate in thy downfall!

The Bible in Spain [1842]

O ye gifted ones, follow your calling, for, however various your talents may be, ye can have but one calling capable of leading ye to eminence and renown; follow resolutely the one straight path before you, it is that of your good angel, let neither obstacles nor temptations induce ye to leave it; bound along if you can; if not, on hands and knees follow in it, perish in it, if needful; but ye need not fear that; no one ever yet died in the true path of his calling before he had attained the pinnacle. Turn into other paths, and for a momentary advantage or gratification ye have sold your inheritance, your immortality. Ye will never be heard of after death.

Lavengro. Chap. 21 [1851]

Trust not a man's words if you please, or you may come to very erroneous conclusions; but at all times place implicit confidence in a man's countenance in which there is no deceit;

and of necessity there can be none. If people would but look each other more in the face, we should have less cause to complain of the deception of the world; nothing so easy as physiognomy nor so useful.

Lavengro. Chap. 22

Translation is at best an echo.

Ibid. Chap. 25

There's night and day, brother, both sweet things; sun, moon, and stars, brother, all sweet things; there's likewise a wind on the heath.<sup>1</sup> Life is very sweet, brother; who would wish to die?

Ibid.

I have known the time when a pugilistic encounter between two noted champions was almost considered in the light of a national affair; when tens of thousands of individuals, high and low, meditated and brooded upon it, the first thing in the morning and the last at night, until the great event was decided.

Ibid. Chap. 26

I learnt . . . to fear God, and to take my own part.

Ibid. Chap. 86

Youth is the only season for enjoyment, and the first twenty-five years of one's life are worth all the rest of the longest life of man, even though those five-and-twenty be spent in penury and contempt, and the rest in the possession of wealth, honours, respectability.

I fetched my sea-born treasures home;
But the poor, unsightly, noisome things

Ibid. Stanza 3

I like a church; I like a cowl;

Yet not for all his faith can see
Would I that cowléd churchman be.

The hand that rounded Peter's dome,

Who gave you, Old Glory, the name that you

Thou art not my friend and I'm not thine.<sup>2</sup>

Good-bye. Stanza 1

Oh, when I am safe in my sylvan home,
I tread on the pride of Greece and Rome;

And when I am stretched beneath the pines

Where the evening star so holy shines, I laugh at the lore and the pride of
man,

At the sophist schools, and the learned clan;

For what are they all in their high conceit,

When man in the bush with God may meet.<sup>3</sup>

Ibid. Stanza 4

It is as impossible for a man to be

There is no luck in literary reputa-

I trust a good deal to common fame, as we all must. If a man has good corn, or wood, or boards, or pigs to sell, or can make better chairs or knives, crucibles or church organs than anybody else, you will find a broad, hard-beaten road to his house, though it be in the woods.<sup>1</sup>

Journals, edited by Edward Waldo Emerson and Waldo Emerson Forbes [1912], Vol. 8, P. 528-529, 1855

<sup>1</sup> The editors appended a footnote: "There has been much inquiry in the newspapers recently as to whether Mr. Emerson wrote a sentence very like the above, which has been attributed to him in print. The editors do not find the latter in his works, but there can be little doubt that it was a memory quotation by some hearer, or quite probably correctly reported from one of his lectures — the same image in differing words."

The West Publishing Company, St. Paul, Minnesota, in an advertisement of the National Reporting System, adapted the Emerson passage to read: "If you write a better book, or preach a better sermon, or build a better mousetrap than your neighbor, the world will make a beaten path to your door."

In Borrowings, compiled by MRS. SARAH S. B. YULE and MARY S. KEENE [Dodge Publishing Company, 1889], Mrs. Yule includes the "mousetrap quotation" as written in her notebook, copied from an address heard many years before, this being the first known definite credit to Emerson.

In a Roycroft publication, The Philistine, July, 1912, H. T. MORGAN claimed the authorship for Elbert Hubbard [1859-1915], but did not state where and when Mr. Hubbard had printed the "modern proverb," as he termed it. In an earlier Roycroft periodical, The Fra, May, 1911, it is said that Mr. Hubbard wrote the "mousetrap" paragraph, and to give it "specific gravity," attributed it to Ralph Waldo Emerson.

A New York shoe store proprietor claimed that Mr. Hubbard wrote the paragraph for his store, and exhibits a framed copy of it.

[1803-1874]

Let to-morrow take care of to-morrow, —

Leave things of the future to fate;
What's the use to anticipate sorrow? —
Life's troubles come never too late!

Though poor be our purse, and though

Let us all try to do a good turn when Star of resplendent front! Thy glorious eye

Shines on me still from out yon clouded

Arcturus (To Edgar Allan Poe)

Tell him I lingered alone on the shore,
Where we parted, in sorrow, to meet
nevermore;

The night-wind blew cold on my deso-

But colder those wild words of doom,
— "Ye must part."

Our Island of Dreams

The sweet imperious mouth, whose haughty valor

Defied all portents of impending doom.

The Portrait [of Poe]

Warm lights are on the sleepy uplands

Beneath soft clouds along the horizon

Till the slant sunbeams through the Bathe all the hills in melancholy gold.

On the Night's Plutonian shore,<sup>2</sup>

Oft I hear thy dusky pinions

Wave and flutter round my door —

See the shadow of thy pinions

Float along the moonlit floor.

[1804-1881]

are a very old race; we have a civilization of a thousand years. A thousand years ago, at a time when your ancestors were savages hunt-

my ancestors had discovered that a man who tells the truth is very likely to be disagreeable.

A. EDWARD NEWTON: Derby Day, Chap. 14

There were miscreants among them, however, also, and it must certainly have been from one of these that Disraeli descended. He possesses just the qualities of the impenitent thief who died upon the Cross, whose name, I verily believe, must have been Disraeli.

It is a good lesson — though it may often be a hard one — for a man who has dreamed of literary fame, and of making for himself a rank among the world's dignitaries by such means, to step aside out of the narrow circle in which his claims are recognized, and to find how utterly devoid of significance, beyond that circle, is all that he achieves, and all he aims at.

[1805-1875]

The island of Sardinia, consisting chiefly of marshes and mountains, has from the earliest period to the present been cursed with a noxious air, an ill-cultivated soil, and a scanty population.
The convulsions produced by its poisonous plants gave rise to the expression of sardonic smile, which is as old as Homer (Odyssey, xx. 302).<sup>1</sup> meaning of "sardonic smile" is to be sure the traditional one, and was believed in by the late classical writers. But in the Homeric passage referred to, the word is "sardanion" (σαρδάνιον), not "sardonion." There is no evidence that Sardinia was known to the composers of what we call Homer. It looks as

LORD CHARLES NEAVES [1800-1876]:

The Origin of Species

See Benjamin Disraeli, page 419.

False facts are highly injurious to the progress of science, for they often endure long; but false views, if supported by some evidence, do little harm, for every one takes a salutary pleasure in proving their falseness.

The Descent of Man. Chap. 21

Physiological experiment on animals is justifiable for real investigation, but not for mere damnable and detestable curiosity.<sup>1</sup>

Letter to E. Ray Lankester

I love fools' experiments. I am always making them.

Remark cited in Life of Darwin

As for a future life, every man must judge for himself between conflicting vague probabilities.

Life and Letters

Believing as I do that man in the distant future will be a far more perfect creature than he now is, it is an intolerable thought that he and all other sentient beings are doomed to complete annihilation after such long-continued slow progress. To those who fully admit the immortality of the human soul, the destruction of our world will not appear so dreadful.

Ibid.

Among the scenes which are deeply impressed on my mind, none exceed in sublimity the primeval forests undefaced by the hand of man. No one can stand in these solitudes unmoved, and not feel that there is more in man than the mere breath of his body.

Journal during the Voyage of H. M. S. BEAGLE. Chap. 21

<sup>1</sup> The main cause of this unparalleled progress in physiology, pathology, medicine and surgery has been the fruitful application of the experimental method of research, just the same method which has been the great lever of all scientific advance in modern times. — DR. WILLIAM H. WELCH [1850-1934]: Argument against Antivivisection Bill (Senate No. 34), Fifty-sixth Congress, First Session, February 21, 1900. Quoted in HARVEY CUSHING: Life of Sir William Osler, Vol. I, P. 521.

[1809-1883]

Whether we wake or we sleep,
Whether we carol or weep,
The Sun with his Planets in chime,
Marketh the going of Time.

Chronomoros

The King in a carriage may ride,
And the Beggar may crawl at his side;
But in the general race,
They are traveling all the same pace.

Ibid.

Mrs. Browning's death was rather a relief to me, I must say; no more Aurora Leighs, thank God!

Letter [July 15, 1861]<sup>2</sup>

The soul indeed is far away,
But we would reverence the clay
In which she made so long a stay.

On the Death of Bernard Barton

I have heard tell of another Poet's saying that he knew of no human outlook so solemn as that from an Infant's Eyes.

Euphranor

'Tis a dull sight
To see the year dying,
When winter winds
Set the yellow wood sighing.

Stanza 1*

<sup>2</sup> I chanced upon a new book yesterday;
I opened it, and where my fingers lay
'Twixt page and uncut page these words
I read —

Some six or seven at most — and learned thereby

That you, Fitzgerald, whom by ear and
eye

She never knew, thanked God my wife was dead.

Aye, dead! and were yourself alive, good Fitz,

How to return your thanks would pass
my wits.

Kicking you seems the common lot of curs,

While more appropriate greeting lends
you grace.

Surely to spit there glorifies your face,
Spitting with lips once sanctified by hers.

ROBERT BROWNING in The Athenaeum,

Speech, Plumstead [1878]

I have always regarded that Constitution as the most remarkable work known to me in modern times to have been produced by the human intellect, at a single stroke (so to speak), in its application to political affairs.<sup>1</sup>

Letter to the Committee in charge of the celebration of the Centennial Anniversary of the American Constitution [July 20 1887]

Selfishness is the greatest curse of the human race.

Speech, Hawarden [May 28, 1890]

Tell him, O gracious Lord, if it may be, how much I love him and miss him and long to see him again; and if there be ways in which he may come, vouchsafe him to me as a guide and guard, and grant me a sense of his nearness, in such degree as Thy laws permit.

A Prayer for a Friend Out of Sight

Within the short and narrow bound,
From morn to eventide
In quick, successive train,

<sup>1</sup> As the British Constitution is the most subtle organism which has proceeded from progressive history, so the American Constitution is the most wonderful work ever struck off at a given time by the brain and purpose of man. — Kim Beyond the Sea (in The North American Review, September, 1878)

Whether or not the world would be vastly benefited by a total and final banishment from it of all intoxicating drinks seems to me not now an open question. Three-fourths of mankind confess the affirmative with their tongues, and, I believe, all the rest acknowledge it in their hearts. Ought any, then, to refuse their aid in doing what good the good of the whole de-

But, in a larger sense, we cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow this ground. Address, Sanitary Fair, Baltimore
[April 18, 1864]

It is no fault in others that the Methodist Church sends more soldiers to the field, more nurses to the hospital, and more prayers to heaven than any. God bless the Methodist Church. Bless all the churches, and blessed be God, who, in this our great trial, giveth us the churches.

To a Methodist Delegation
[May 14, 1864]

I have not permitted myself, gentlemen, to conclude that I am the best man in the country; but I am reminded in this connection of a story of an old Dutch farmer, who remarked to a com-

Letter to Secretary Stanton, refusing to dismiss Postmaster-General Montgomery Blair
[July 18, 1864]

It has long been a grave question whether any government, not too strong for the liberties of its people, can be strong enough to maintain its existence in great emergencies.

Response to a Serenade
[November 10, 1864]

Human nature will not change. In any future great national trial, compared with the men of this, we shall have as weak and as strong, as silly and as wise, as bad and as good.

Ibid.

I pray that our Heavenly Father may assuage the anguish of your bereavement and leave you only the cherished memory of the loved and lost, and the solemn pride that must be yours to have laid so costly a sacrifice upon the altar of freedom.

Letter to Mrs. Bixby, whose five sons were reported killed in battle [November 21, 1864]

The religion that sets men to rebel and fight against their Government, because, as they think, that Government does not sufficiently help some men to eat their bread in the sweat of other men's faces, is not the sort of religion upon which people can get to heaven.

Reply to two women who had pleaded for the release of their husbands [Washington Chronicle, December 7, 1864]

The Almighty has His own purposes.

Second Inaugural Address
[March 4, 1865]

Fondly do we hope, fervently do we pray, that this mighty scourge of war may speedily pass away. Yet, if God wills that it continue until all the wealth piled by the bondman's two-hundred and fifty years of unrequited toil shall be sunk, and until every drop of blood drawn with the lash shall be paid by another drawn with the sword, as was said three thousand years ago, so still it must be said, that the judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether.

Second Inaugural Address
[March 4, 1865]

With malice toward none; with charity for all; with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right,<sup>1</sup> let us strive on to finish the work we are in; to bind up the nation's wounds; to care for him who shall have borne the battle, and for his widow and his orphan—to do all which may achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations.

Ibid.

Men are not flattered by being shown that there has been a difference of purpose between the Almighty and them.

Letter to Thurlow Weed
[March 15, 1865]

Important principles may and must be flexible.

Last public address, Washington [April 11, 1865]

If you once forfeit the confidence of your fellow citizens, you can never regain their respect and esteem. It is true that you may fool all the people some of the time; you can even fool some of the people all the time; but you can't fool all of the people all the time.

One night he dreamed that he was in a crowd, when someone recognized him as the President, and exclaimed in surprise, "He is a very common-looking man." Whereupon he answered, "Friend, the Lord prefers common-looking people. That is the reason he makes so many of them."

If I were to try to read, much less answer, all the attacks made on me, this shop might as well be closed for any other business. I do the very best I know how — the very best I can; and I mean to keep doing so until the end. If the end brings me out all right, what is said against me won't amount to anything. If the end brings me out wrong, ten angels swearing I was right would make no difference.

Poems [1831], Introduction, Letter to Mr. B——

With me poetry has been not a purpose, but a passion; and the passions should be held in reverence: they must not — they can not at will be excited, with an eye to the paltry compensations, or the more paltry commendations, of mankind.

Poems [1845], Preface

The object Truth, or the satisfaction of the intellect, and the object Passion, or the excitement of the heart, are, although attainable, to a certain extent, in poetry, far more readily attainable in prose.

The Philosophy of Composition

I would define, in brief, the Poetry of words as the Rhythmical Creation of Beauty. Its sole arbiter is Taste.

The Poetic Principle

Can it be fancied that Deity ever vin-

Made in his image a mannikin merely to madden it? <sup>1</sup>

of the chivalrous.

Glitter — and in that one word how much of all that is detestable do we

Philosophy of Furniture

There is something in the unselfish and self-sacrificing love of a brute, which goes directly to the heart of him who has had frequent occasion to test the paltry friendship and gossamer fidelity of mere Man.

The Black Cat

Perverseness is one of the primitive

There are chords in the hearts of the most reckless which can not be touched

The Masque of the Red Death

The boundaries which divide Life from Death are at best shadowy and vague. Who shall say where the one ends, and where the other begins?

The Premature Burial

The question is not yet settled, whether madness is or is not the loftiest Intelligence — whether much that is glorious — whether all that is profound — does not spring from disease of thought — from moods of mind exalted at the expense of the general intellect.

[1809–1894]

Our Country,<sup>1</sup> — whether bounded by the St. John's and the Sabine, or however otherwise bounded<sup>2</sup> or described, and be the measurements more or less, — still our Country, to be cherished in all our hearts, to be defended by all our hands.

Address on Boston Common [1862]

Our country! In her intercourse with for-

but our country, right or wrong. —STEPHEN DECATUR [1779–1820]: Toast, Norfolk, Vir-

I hope to find my country in the right
however, I will stand by her, right or wrong.

north by the Aurora Borealis, on the south by the precession of the equinoxes, on the east by the primeval chaos, and on the west by the Day of Judgment. —JOHN FISKE [1842–
1901]: Bounding the United States

Slavery is but half abolished, emancipation is but half completed, while millions of freemen with votes in their hands are left without education. Justice to them, the welfare of the States in which they live, the safety of the whole Republic, the dignity of the elective franchise, — all alike demand that the still remaining bonds of ignorance shall be unloosed and broken, and the minds as well as the bodies of the emancipated go free.

[1810-1856]

Her suffering ended with the day,
Yet lived she at its close,
And breathed the long, long night away
In statue-like repose.

She passed through Glory's morning-

And on the helm there rests a hand
Other than mine.

We ought to be together, you and I.

Is Dr. Jones, the dentist in?
An aching tooth has made me fret;

But something seems to lull the pain —
Perhaps, sir, you can save it yet.
The Toothache. Stanza 8

The tooth is out; once more again
The throbbing, jumping nerves are stilled;
Reader, would you avoid this pain?
Then have your crumbling teeth well filled.

By thine own soul's law learn to live,
And if men thwart thee, take no heed,
And if men hate thee, have no care;
Sing thou thy song, and do thy deed, Hope thou thy hope, and pray thy prayer.

Self-Reliance. Stanza 1

WILLIAM HENRY CHANNING

[1810-1884]

To live content with small means; to seek elegance rather than luxury, and refinement rather than fashion; to be worthy, not respectable, and wealthy,
not rich; to study hard, think quietly, talk gently, act frankly; to listen to stars and birds, to babes and sages, with open heart; to bear all cheerfully,
do all bravely, await occasions, hurry never. In a word, to let the spiritual, unbidden and unconscious, grow up through the common. This is to be my symphony.

JAMES FREEMAN CLARKE

[1810-1888]

Beneath the shadow of the Great Protection,
The soul sits, hushed and calm.
The Shadow. Stanza 2

Nought that He has made, below,
above,
Can part us from His love.

Ibid. Stanza 3

Dear friend, whose presence in the house,
Whose gracious word benign,
Could once, at Cana's wedding feast,
Change water into wine,
Come, visit us and when dull work
Grows weary, line on line,
Revive our souls, and let us see
Life's water turned to wine.

Every inmost aspiration is God's angel

Couplet 8*

DANIEL CLEMENT
COLESWORTHY
[1810-1893]

Ay, soon upon the stage of life,
Sweet, happy children, you will rise,
To mingle in its care and strife,
Or early find the peaceful skies.
Then be it yours, while you pursue
The golden moments, quick to haste
Some noble work of love to do,
Nor suffer one bright hour to waste.

School is Out

A little word in kindness spoken,
A motion or a tear,
Has often healed the heart that's broken,
And made a friend sincere.

A Little Word. Stanza 1

Then deem it not an idle thing
A pleasant word to speak;
The face you wear — the thoughts you bring —
The heart may heal or break.

<sup>1</sup> Thy love is but a girdle of the love I bear to thee,
And sleeping in thy "Come, O Lord!"
there lies "Here, son!" from me.
WILLIAM ROUNSEVILLE ALGER [1822-1905]: The Contents of Piety

MARY STANLEY BUNCE
DANA

I saw the young bride in her beauty and pride,
Bedecked in her snowy array.
Pass Under the Rod. Stanza 1
'Twas the voice of her God:
"I love thee, I love thee — pass under the rod."

SAMUEL DODGE
[Floruit 1868]

You may go through this world, but
'twill be very slow
If you listen to all that is said as you go;
You'll be worried and fretted and kept in a stew,
For meddlesome tongues must have something to do,
For people will talk, you know.

People Will Talk. Stanza 1

SIR FRANCIS HASTINGS DOYLE
[1810-1888]

Last night, among his fellow roughs,
He jested, quaffed, and swore;
A drunken private of the Buffs,
Who never looked before.
To-day, beneath the foeman's frown,
He stands in Elgin's place,
Ambassador from Britain's crown,
And type of all her race.

<sup>1</sup> Doyle's poem is prefaced by the following news item from the London Times, correspondence from China:

Some Seiks, and a private of the Buffs, East Kent Regiment, having remained behind with the grog-carts, fell into the hands of the Chinese. On the next morning they were brought before the authorities, and commanded to perform the kotou. The Seiks obeyed; but Moyse, the English soldier, declaring that he would not prostrate himself before any Chinaman alive, was immediately knocked upon the head, and his body thrown on a dunghill.

In JOHN GALSWORTHY'S novel, Flowering Wilderness, Wilfrid Desert becomes a Mohammedan in order to save his life when taken prisoner by a band of fanatical Arabs.

Vain, mightiest fleets of iron framed;
Vain, those all-shattering guns;
Unless proud England keep, untamed,
The strong heart of her sons.

The Private of the Buffs. Stanza 5
So we made women with their children
go,

The oars ply back again, and yet
again;

Whilst, inch by inch, the drowning
ship sank low,

Still, under steadfast men.

The Loss of the "Birkenhead."<sup>1</sup>

Stanza 10

Not hopeless, round this calm sepulchral spot,

A wreath, presaging life, we twine;
If God be love, what sleeps below was not

Without a spark divine.

Epitaph on a Favourite Dog

GASKELL

[1810-1865]

A man is so in the way in the house.

Cranford. Chap. 1

Correspondence, which bears much the same relation to personal intercourse that the books of dried plants I sometimes see ("Hortus Siccus," I think they call the thing) do to the

and meadows.

Ibid. Chap. 3

People talk a great deal about ideal-

JAMES SLOANE GIBBONS

[1810-1892]

We are coming, Father Abraham, three hundred thousand more,

From Mississippi's winding stream and from New England's shore;

We leave our ploughs and workshops,
our wives and children dear,

With hearts too full for utterance, with but a silent tear.

Three Hundred Thousand More.<sup>1</sup>

Stanza 1

ORRIN GOODRICH

[Floruit 1855]

A stranger preached last Sunday,

And crowds of people came

To hear a two-hour sermon

On a theme I scarce can name.

'Twas all about some heathen,

Thousands of miles afar,

Who lived in a land of darkness

Called Borrioboola Gha.

Alas, for the cold and hungry

That met me every day,

While all my tears were given

To the suffering far away!

Ibid. Stanza 8

WILLIAM MILLER

[1810-1872]

Wee Willie Winkie rins through the toun,

Upstairs and dounstairs, in his night-
goun,

Tirlin' at the window, cryin' at the lock,

"Are the weans in their bed? for it's nou ten o'clock."

OSSOLI

[1810-1850]

What I mean by the Muse is that unimpeded clearness of the intuitive powers, which a perfectly truthful adherence to every admonition of the higher instincts would bring to a finely organized human being. . . . Should these faculties have free play, I believe they will open new, deeper and purer sources of joyous inspiration than have yet refreshed the earth.

Woman in the 19th Century
[circa 1832]

It does not follow because many books are written by persons born in America that there exists an American literature. Books which imitate or represent the thoughts and life of Europe do not constitute an American literature. Before such can exist, an original idea must animate this nation and fresh currents of life must call into life fresh thoughts along its shores.

In the New York Tribune [1833]

Truth is the nursing mother of genius. No man can be absolutely true to himself, eschewing cant, compromise, servile imitation, and complaisance, without becoming original for there is in every creature a fountain of life which, if not choked back by stones and other dead rubbish, will create a fresh atmosphere, and bring to life fresh beauty.

Ibid.

When an immortal poet was secure only of a few copyists to circulate his works, there were princes and nobles to patronize literature and the arts. Here is only the public, and the public must learn how to cherish the nobler and rarer plants, and to plant the aloe, able to wait a hundred years for its bloom, or its garden will contain, presently, nothing but potatoes and pot-herbs.

Ibid.

Beware of over-great pleasure in being popular or even beloved. As far as an amiable disposition and powers of entertainment make you so, it is happiness, but if there is one grain of plausibility, it is a poison.

Letter to her brother Arthur
[December 20, 1840]

I myself am more divine than any I see.

Letter to R. W. Emerson
[March 1, 1838]

Put up at the moment of greatest suffering a prayer, not for thy own escape, but for the enfranchisement of some being dear to thee, and the sovereign spirit will accept thy ransom.

Recipe to prevent the cold of January from utterly destroying life [January 30, 1841]

The golden-rod is one of the fairy, magical flowers; it grows not up to seek human love amid the light of day, but to mark to the discerning what wealth lies hid in the secret caves of earth.

Journal. September, 1840

This was one of the rye-bread days. all dull and damp without.

Diary. Quoted by THOMAS WENTWORTH HIGGINSON: Life of Margaret Fuller Ossoli, Chap. 7

For precocity some great price is always demanded sooner or later in life.

Ibid. Chap. 18

Genius will live and thrive without training, but it does not the less reward the watering-pot and pruning-knife.

Ibid.

It does not follow, because the United States print and read more books, magazines, and newspapers than all the rest of the world, that they really have therefore a literature.

Quoted by WALT WHITMAN in an article on American National Literature

THEODORE PARKER

[1810-1860]

Truth never yet fell dead in the streets; it has such affinity with the soul of man, the seed however broadcast will catch somewhere and produce its hundredfold.

A Discourse of Matters Pertaining to Religion

Truth stood on one side and Ease on the other; it has often been so.

Ibid.

Man never falls so low that he can see nothing higher than himself.

Essay, A Lesson for the Day

A democracy,—that is a government of all the people, by all the people, for all the people;<sup>1</sup> of course, a government of the principles of eternal justice, the unchanging law of God; for shortness' sake I will call it the idea of Freedom.

The American Idea<sup>2</sup>

All men desire to be immortal.

A Sermon on the Immortal Life
[September 20, 1846]

We look to Thee; Thy truth is still the Light

Which guides the nations, groping
on their way,
Stumbling and falling in disastrous
night,

Yet hoping ever for the perfect day.

Stanza 2

EDMUND HAMILTON SEARS
[1810-1876]

Calm on the listening ear of night
Come Heaven's melodious strains,
Where wild Judea stretches far
Her silver-mantled plains.

Christmas Song

It came upon the midnight clear,
That glorious song of old.

The Angels' Song

For lo! the days are hastening on,
By prophet-bards foretold,
When with the ever-circling years,
Comes round the age of gold;

Parker used the same phrase in a speech delivered in Boston [May 31, 1854] and in a sermon in Music Hall, Boston [July 4, 1858]. WILLIAM H. HERNDON visited Boston and on his return to Springfield, Illinois, took with him some of Parker's sermons and addresses. In his Abraham Lincoln, Vol. 2, P. 65, Herndon says that Lincoln marked with pencil the portion of the Music Hall address, "Democracy is direct self-government, over all the people, by all the people, for all the people."

When Peace shall over all the earth

Its ancient splendors fling

Which now the angels sing.

GEORGE SHARSWOOD

Of Education

Analogy is milk for babes, but abstract truths are strong meat.

God, from a beautiful necessity, is Love.

Of Immortality

Error is a hardy plant: it flourisheth in every soil.

Of Truth in Things False

Wait, thou child of hope, for Time shall teach thee all things.

Of Good in Things Evil

Clamorous pauperism feasteth While honest Labor, pining, hideth his sharp ribs.

Of Discretion

<sup>1</sup> I have never regretted reading a first volume of Blackstone through, or not going on to the second; his frank declaration that the law was a jealous mistress and would brook no divided love, was upon reflection quite enough for one whose heart was given to a different muse.—WILLIAM DEAN HOWELLS: Years of My Youth, II, XI

A similar passage occurs in HOWELLS: My Literary Passions, Chap. 19.

Well-timed silence hath more eloquence than speech.

Of Discretion

It is well to lie fallow for a while.

Of Recreation

A good book is the best of friends, the same to-day and for ever.

Of Reading

Who can wrestle against Sleep? — Yet is that giant very gentleness.

Of Beauty

Never give up! — if adversity presses, Providence wisely has mingled the cup,

And the best counsel, in all your distresses,

Is the stout watchword of "Never give up!"

Never Give Up. Stanza 3

Nature's own Nobleman, friendly and frank,

Is a man with his heart in his hand!

A widow of doubtful age will marry almost any sort of a white man.

Letter to Dr. Rufus Wilmot Griswold

And now, having fully expressed our conviction that the punishment of death is one which should sometimes be inflicted, we may add that we would have it resorted to as unfrequently as possible. Nothing, in our view, but cold-blooded, premeditated, unpalliated murder, can fully justify it. Let this continue to be visited with the sternest penalty.

The New Yorker [June, 1836]

If, on a full and final review, my life of some to adorn them by a suitable life and conversation. To unerring time

[1811-1892]

Soft lies the turf on those who find their rest

Beneath our common mother's ample
breast,

Unstained by meanness, avarice, or
pride;

They never cheated, and they never lied;

They ne'er intrigued a rival to dispose;
They ran, but never betted on the race;

Content with harmless sport and simple
food,

Boundless in faith and love and grati-

Happy the man, if there be any such —
Of whom his epitaph can say as much.

WILLIAM MAKEPEACE THACKERAY

[1811-1863]

Although I enter not,
Yet round about the spot
Ofttimes I hover;
And near the sacred gate,
With longing eyes I wait,
Expectant of her.

At the Church Gate<sup>2</sup>

The play is done; the curtain drops,
Slow falling to the prompter's bell:
A moment yet the actor stops,
And looks around, to say farewell.
It is an irksome word and task;
And when he's laughed and said his say,

He shows, as he removes the mask,
A face that's anything but gay.

Was there naught better than to enjoy?
 No feat which, done, would make

Abt Vogler.<sup>1</sup> Stanza 7

There shall never be one lost good!
 What was, shall live as before;
 The evil is null, is naught, is silence
 implying sound;

What was good shall be good, with for evil so much good more;

On the earth the broken arcs; in the

Ibid. Stanza 9

The high that proved too high, the he-

 The passion that left the ground to lose

Ibid. Stanza 10

Sorrow is hard to bear, and doubt is slow to clear,

Each sufferer says his say, his scheme
 of the weal and woe:

But God has a few of us whom he whis-

The rest may reason and welcome:
 'tis we musicians know.

Ibid. Stanza 12

Grow old along with me!

The best is yet to be,

The last of life, for which the first was made.

Our times are in his hand.

<sup>1</sup> The Abt or Abbé George Joseph Vogler was born at Würzburg, Bavaria, in 1749, and died at Darmstadt in 1824. He was a composer, professor, Kapellmeister, and writer on music. Weber and Meyerbeer were among his pupils. He invented a musical instrument, a type of organ, called an orchestron.

<sup>2</sup> Rabbi ben Ezra was a universal genius and wanderer, whose travels brought him as far as England. — SIR WILLIAM OSLER: Address, Jewish Historical Society of England [April 27, 1914], quoted in CUSHING: Life of Sir William Osler, Vol. II, Chap. 34, P 404

Then welcome each rebuff
 That turns earth's smoothness rough,
 Each sting that bids nor sit nor stand,
 but go!

Be our joys three-parts pain!
 Strive, and hold cheap the
 strain;

Learn, nor account the pang; dare, never grudge the throe!

Rabbi Ben Ezra. Stanza 6

What I aspired to be,
 And was not, comforts me.

Ibid. Stanza 7

Therefore I summon age

WILLIAM JAMES LINTON

[1812-1898]

He boasts nor wealth nor high descent, yet he may claim to be

A gentleman to match the best of any pedigree:

It borders upon Swat. — G. T. LANIGAN: Dirge of the Moola of Kotai, Rival of the Ahkoond of Swat, St. 1

His blood hath run in peasant veins through many a noteless year;

Yet, search in every prince's court,
you'll rarely find his peer.

For he's one of Nature's Gentlemen,
the best of every time.

Nature's Gentleman. Stanza 1

Be patient, O be patient! Put your ear against the earth;

Listen there how noiselessly the germ
o' the seed has birth;

How noiselessly and gently it upheaves its little way

Till it parts the scarcely broken ground, and the blade stands up in day.

Patience<sup>1</sup>

NORMAN MACLEOD

[1812-1872]

Courage, brother! do not stumble,
Though thy path be dark as night;

There's a star to guide the humble,
Trust in God and do the Right.

Trust in God. Stanza 1

FRANCES SARGENT OSGOOD

[1812-1850]

Work — for some good, be it ever so slowly;

Cherish some flower, be it ever so lowly;

Labor! — all labor is noble and holy!

Let thy great deeds be thy prayer to thy God!

Laborare est Orare.<sup>2</sup> Stanza 6

A whisper woke the air —

A soft, light tone, and low,

Yet barbed with shame and woe.

Calumny. Stanza 1

From ear to lip, from lip to ear,

Until it reached a gentle heart

That throbbed from all the world apart

And that — it broke!

<sup>2</sup> To labor is to pray. — Motto of BENEDICT [480-543], founder of the Benedictine Order.

WILLIAM EDMONDSTOUNE
AYTOUN
[1813-1865]

News of battle! — news of battle!

Hark! 'tis ringing down the street;
And the archways and the pavement
Bear the clang of hurrying feet.

Edinburgh after Flodden.

Stanza 1

The German heart is stout and true,
the German arm is strong,
The German foot goes seldom back where armed foemen throng;
But never had they faced in field so stern a charge before,
And never had they felt the sweep of Scotland's broad claymore.

The Island of the Scots

'Twas I that led the Highland host through wild Lochaber's snows, What time the plaided clans came down to battle with Montrose.

The Execution of Montrose.

Stanza 2

Had I been there with sword in hand,
and fifty Camerons by,
That day through high Dunedin's streets had pealed the slogan cry.

Ibid. Stanza 6

HENRY WARD BEECHER
[1813-1887]

If there were no religion, if that vast sphere, out of which glow all the super-eminent truths of the Bible, was a mere emptiness and void, yet, methinks, the very idea of Fatherland, the exceeding preciousness of the laws and liberties of a great people, would enkindle such a high and noble enthusiasm that all baser feelings would be consumed.

The Dishonest Politician

A thoughtful mind, when it sees a Nation's flag, sees not the flag only,
but the Nation itself; and whatever may be its symbols, its insignia, he reads chiefly in the flag the Government, the principles, the truths, the history which belongs to the Nation that sets it forth.

The American Flag

Nothing marks the increasing wealth of our times and the growth of the public mind toward refinement, more than the demand for books.

Star Papers. Subtleties of Book Buyers

Where is human nature so weak as in the book-store!

Ibid.

No subtle manager or broker ever saw through a maze of financial embarrassments half so quick as a poor book-buyer sees his way clear to pay for what he must have.

JOHN WILLIAM BURGON
[1813-1888]

It seems no work of man's creative
hand

By labor wrought as wavering fancy planned,

But from the rock as if by magic grown,

Eternal, silent, beautiful, alone!

JOSEPH EDWARDS
CARPENTER
[1813-1885]

What are the wild waves saying,<sup>2</sup>

Sister, the whole day long,
That ever amid our playing

I hear but their low, lone song?

*What Are the Wild Waves
Saying? Stanza 1*

Yes, but the waves seem ever
Singing the same sad thing,

<sup>2</sup> See Dickens, page 496.

And vain is my weak endeavor
 To guess what the surges sing.
What Are the Wild Waves
Saying? Stanza 3

Yes! but there's something greater
 That speaks to the heart alone:
 'Tis the voice of the great Creator
 Dwells in that mighty tone.

Ibid. Refrain

For her voice lives on the breeze,
 And her spirit comes at will,
 In the midnight on the seas,
 Her bright smile haunts me still.
Her Bright Smile Haunts Me
Still. Stanza 1

WILLIAM LORENZO CARTER [1813-1860]

Young Charlotte lived by a mountainside in a wild and lonely spot,
 There was no village for miles around except her father's cot;
 And yet on many a wintry night young boys would gather there, —
 Her father kept a social board, and she was very fair.

Young [or Fair] Charlotte.<sup>1</sup>

Stanza 1

"O daughter, dear," her mother said,
 "this blanket round you fold,
 'Tis such a dreadful night abroad you will catch your death of cold."

Ibid. Stanza 3

Young ladies, think of this fair girl and always dress aright,
 And never venture thinly clad on such a wintry night.

Ibid. Last stanza

CHRISTOPHER PEARSE CRANCH [1813-1892]

Thought is deeper than all speech,
 Feeling deeper than all thought;

<sup>1</sup> Carter was a Vermont man, but his ballad has become a folk-song of the South and a cowboy song of the West. There is a sketch, William Carter, the Bensontown Homer, by PHILLIPS BARRY, in the Journal of American Folk-Lore, April-June, 1912. The ballad is included in the published collections of Lomax, Spaeth, Cox, Pound, and others.

Souls to souls can never teach
 What unto themselves was taught.
Thought [Gnosis]. Stanza 1

We are spirits clad in veils;
 Man by man was never seen;
 All our deep communing fails
 To remove the shadowy screen.

Ibid. Stanza 2

We are columns left alone
 Of a temple once complete.

Ibid. Stanza 3

No night so wild but brings the constant sun
 With love and power untold;
 No time so dark but through its woof
 there run
 Some blessed threads of gold.

Oh, Love Supreme

O Light divine! we need no fuller test
 That all is ordered well;
 We know enough to trust that all is best
 Where Love and Wisdom dwell.

Ibid.

JOHN SULLIVAN DWIGHT [1813-1893]

Is not true leisure
 One with true toil? <sup>1</sup>

Rest.<sup>2</sup> Stanza 1

Rest is not quitting
 The busy career,
 Rest is the fitting
 Of self to its sphere.

Ibid. Stanza 4

'Tis the brook's motion,
 Clear without strife,
 Fleeing to ocean
 After its life.

Ibid. Stanza 5

'Tis loving and serving
 The Highest and Best!
 'Tis onwards! unswerving,
 And that is true rest.

Ibid. Stanza 7

Work, and thou wilt bless the day
 Ere the toil be done;
 They that work not, can not pray,
 Can not feel the sun.

<sup>1</sup> Absence of occupation is not rest.

COWPER: Retirement, L. 615

<sup>2</sup> Wrongly attributed to Goethe.

God is living, working still,
 All things work and move;
 Work, or lose the power to will,
 Lose the power to love.

JOSEPH HOOKER

[1813-1879]

Well, General, we have not had many dead cavalymen lying about lately.

*Remark to General William Woods Averell, of the Cavalry
 [November, 1862]*

JESSE HUTCHINSON, JR.<sup>1</sup>

[1813-1853]

Of all the mighty nations
 In the east or in the west,
 O this glorious Yankee nation
 Is the greatest and the best.
 We have room for all creation,
 And our banner is unfurled,
 Here's a general invitation

To the people of the world.

Uncle Sam's Farm. Stanza 1

Uncle Sam is rich enough

To give us all a farm.

Ibid. Refrain

Then ho, brothers, ho,
 To California go;
 There's plenty of gold in the world
 we're told

On the banks of the Sacramento.

Ho for California [1849]. Refrain

The gold is thar, most anywhar,
 And they dig it out with an iron bar.

Ibid. Stanza 3

ELIJAH KELLOGG

[1813-1901]

If ye are men, follow me! Strike down your guard, gain the mountain passes, and then do bloody work, as did your sires at old Thermopylae! Is Sparta dead? Is the old Grecian spirit frozen in your brains, that you do cower like a belabored hound beneath his master's lash? O comrades, warriors, Thracians! If we must fight, let us fight for ourselves. If we must slaughter, let it be under the clear sky, by the bright waters, in noble, honorable battle!

Spartacus to the Gladiators

EPES SARGENT

[1813-1881]

A life on the ocean wave,
 A home on the rolling deep;
 Where the scattered waters rave,
 And the winds their revels keep!

Like an eagle caged I pine

On this dull, unchanging shore:

Oh, give me the flashing brine,

The spray and the tempest's roar!

A Life on the Ocean Wave.

Stanza 1

JONES VERY

[1813-1880]

'Tis all a great show,

The world that we're in —

None can tell when 'twas finished —

None saw it begin.

The World. Stanza 1

HENRY STEVENSON

WASHBURN

[1813-1903]

We shall meet, but we shall miss him,
 There will be one vacant chair;

We shall linger to caress him

When we breathe our evening prayer.<sup>1</sup>

The Vacant Chair. Stanza 1

THOMAS OSBORNE DAVIS

[1814-1845]

Come in the evening, or come in the morning,

Come when you're looked for, or come without warning.

The Welcome. Stanza 1

The starlight of heaven above us shall quiver

<sup>1</sup> See Longfellow, page 435.

As our souls flow in one down eternity's river.

The Welcome. Stanza 3

AUBREY THOMAS DE VERE

[1814-1902]

Count each affliction, whether light or
grave,

God's messenger sent down to thee; do thou

With courtesy receive him.

Sorrow

Grief should be

Like joy, majestic, equable, sedate, Confirming, cleansing, raising, making
free;

Strong to consume small troubles; to commend

Great thoughts, grave thoughts, thoughts lasting to the end.

Ibid.

Sad is our youth, for it is ever going,
Crumbling away beneath our very feet;

Sad is our life, for onward it is flowing
In current unperceived, because so fleet.

Sad Is Our Youth. Stanza 1

Of all great Nature's tones that sweep Earth's resonant bosom, far or near,
Low-breathed or loudest, shrill or deep,
How few are grasped by mortal ear.

Implicit Faith. Stanza 1

In holy music's golden speech

Remotest notes to notes respond:

Each octave is a world: yet each
Vibrates to worlds its own beyond.

Ibid. Stanza 4

FREDERICK WILLIAM

FABER

[1814-1863]

For right is right, since God is God,

And right the day must win;

To doubt would be disloyalty,

To falter would be sin.

On the Field

The sea, unmated creature, tired and lone,

Makes on its desolate sands eternal moan.

The Sorrowful World

O majesty unspeakable and dread!

Wert thou less mighty than Thou
art,

Thou wert, O Lord, too great for our belief,

Too little for our heart.

The Greatness of God

Hark! Hark! my soul, angelic songs are swelling

O'er earth's green fields, and ocean's wave-beat shore;

How sweet the truth those blessed strains are telling

Of that new life when sin shall be no more!

Pilgrims of the Night

O Paradise! O Paradise!

Who doth not crave for rest?

Who would not seek the happy land

Where they that love are blest?

Paradise

CHARLES MACKAY

[1814-1889]

Cleon hath a million acres, — ne'er a one have I;

Cleon dwelleth in a palace, — in a cottage I.

Cleon and I. Stanza 1

But the sunshine aye shall light the sky,

As round and round we run;

And the truth shall ever come uppermost,

And justice shall be done.

Eternal Justice. Stanza 4

Men of thought and men of action,

Clear the way!

Clear the Way. Stanza 1

Aid the dawning, tongue and pen;

Aid it, hopes of honest men!

Ibid. Stanza 2

Some love to roam o'er the dark sea's
foam,

Where the shrill winds whistle free.

Some Love to Roam

There's a good time coming, boys! <sup>1</sup>
A good time coming.

The Good Time Coming. Stanza 1

Cannon-balls may aid the truth,
But thought's a weapon stronger;
We'll win our battles by its aid; —
Wait a little longer.

Ibid.

The smallest effort is not lost,
Each wavelet on the ocean tost
Aids in the ebb-tide or the flow;
Each rain-drop makes some floweret
blow;
Each struggle lessens human woe.

The Old and the New

There is no such thing as death.
In Nature nothing dies.

From each sad remnant of decay
Some forms of life arise.

There Is No Such Thing as Death

To every dungeon comes a ray
Of God's interminable day.

The Ivy in the Dungeon.

Stanza 10

Whenever a rascal strove to pass,
Instead of silver, a coin of brass,
He took his hammer, and said, with a frown,

"The coin is spurious, nail it down." <sup>2</sup>

The Coin Is Spurious. Stanza 1

Old Tubal Cain was a man of might,
In the days when earth was young.

Tubal Cain. Stanza 1

Not alone for the blade was the bright steel made,

And he fashioned the first plowshare. <sup>3</sup>

Ibid. Stanza 4

To the West! to the West! to the land of the free,

Where the mighty Missouri rolls down to the sea.

To the West. Stanza 1

Where the prairies, like seas where the billows have rolled,

<sup>2</sup> There was an old custom that all counterfeit coins taken in a shop should be nailed to the counter, door-frame, or any solid wood-work, so that they could not be passed again.

<sup>3</sup> Tubal fashioned the hand-flung spears

And showed his neighbours peace.

KIPLING: Jubal and Tubal Cain, St. 3

Are broad as the kingdoms and empires of old.

To the West. Stanza 2

A traveler through a dusty road
strewed acorns on the lea,
And one took root and sprouted up,
and grew into a tree.

Small Beginnings. Stanza 1

A nameless man, amid a crowd that thronged the daily mart, Let fall a word of Hope and Love, unstudied, from the heart;
A whisper on the tumult thrown, — a transitory breath, —
It raised a brother from the dust; it saved a soul from death.

Ibid. Stanza 4

Croesus! hast thou riches
That with mine can vie?
Pope! hast thou dominion
Absolute as I?

Day Dreams

Make my coffee strong!

The Quarrel

The king can drink the best of wine —
So can I;

And has enough when he would dine —
So have I;

And can not order rain or shine —
Nor can I.

Then where's the difference — let me see —

Betwixt my lord the king and me?

You have no enemies, you say?

Alas! my friend, the boast is poor —
He who has mingled in the fray

Of duty, that the brave endure, Must have made foes! If you have Small is the work that you have done;

You've hit no traitor on the hip;
You've dashed no cup from perjured

You've never turned the wrong to right —

You've been a coward in the fight! <sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> At the time of his trial in England, Warren Hastings related to his friends an Indian tale which had given him much comfort: A monarch, who suffered many hours of discouragement, urged his courtiers to devise a motto, short enough to be engraved on a ring, which should be suitable alike in prosperity and in adversity. After many suggestions had been rejected, his daughter offered an emerald bearing the inscription in Arabic, "This, too, will pass."

This greatest mortal consolation, which we derive from the transitoriness of all things — from the right of saying, in every conjuncture, — "This, too, will pass away."

And remember the Spider and King.<sup>1</sup>

Try Again. Stanza 16

JOHN BALLANTINE GOUGH

[1817-1886]

What is a minority? The chosen heroes of this earth have been in a minority. There is not a social, political, or religious privilege that you enjoy today that was not bought for you by the blood and tears and patient suffering of the minority. It is the minority that have stood in the van of every moral conflict, and achieved all that is noble in the history of the world.

What Is a Minority?

Everywhere water is a thing of beauty, gleaming in the dewdrop; singing in the summer rain; shining in the ice-gems till the leaves all seem to turn to living jewels; spreading a golden veil over the setting sun; or a white gauze around the midnight moon.

A Glass of Water

My old gray mare run up the hill, and as she turned the top, she waved her tail back at me, seemingly to say — fare ye well, brother Watkins.

Brother Watkins

"Because he scatters halfpence to Tramps and such-like." — DICKENS: Christmas Stories, Tom Tiddler's Ground

<sup>1</sup> Bruce, banned and hunted on his native soil,

With curious eyes surveyed a spider's
toil;

Six times the little climber strove and failed;

Six times the chief before his foe had quailed.

"Once more," he cried, "in thine my doom
I read,

Once more I dare the fight if thou succeed."

'Twas done; the insect's fate he made his own;

Once more the battle waged, and gained a throne.

CHARLES SPRAGUE [1791-1875]: Curiosity

FRANCIS DE HAES JANVIER
[1817-1885]

The woes of thirty millions filled his burdened heart with grief, Embattled hosts on land and sea acknowledged him their chief,
And yet amid the din of war he heard the plaintive cry
Of that poor soldier as he lay in prison, doomed to die.

The Sleeping Sentinel.<sup>1</sup> Stanza 10

SIR AUSTEN HENRY LAYARD
[1817-1894]

I have always believed that success would be the inevitable result if the two services, the army and the navy, had fair play, and if we sent the right man to fill the right place.

Speech in Parliament<sup>2</sup>
[January 15, 1855]

TOM TAYLOR
[1817-1880]

You lay a wreath on murdered Lincoln's bier,
You, who, with mocking pencil,
wont to trace,
Broad for self-complacent British sneer,
His length of shambling limb, his furrowed face.

*Abraham Lincoln Foully
Assassinated.*<sup>3</sup> Stanza 1

In 1936 the Vermont Historical Society published a book on the subject by WALDO F. GLOVER, presenting various documents in Scott's case.

There are other versions of the legend, in both verse and prose, one being The Soldier's Reprieve: The Generous Soldier Saved in Tiffany's Gems for the Fireside.

<sup>3</sup> Printed in Punch, London, May 6, 1865. (Taylor became editor of Punch in 1874.) It was at a performance of Taylor's play, Our American Cousin, that Lincoln was shot.

Yes: he had lived to shame me from my sneer,
To lame my pencil, and confute my
pen;
To make me own this hind of Princes
peer,
This rail-splitter a true-born king of men.

*Abraham Lincoln Foully
Assassinated. Stanza 5*

How his quaint wit made home-truth seem more true.

Ibid. Stanza 6

He went about his work — such work
as few Ever had laid on head and heart and
hand —
As one who knows, where there's a task
to do,
Man's honest will must Heaven's good grace command.

Ibid. Stanza 8

The Old World and the New, from sea
to sea,
Utter one voice of sympathy and shame.
Sore heart, so stopped when it at last beat high!
Sad life, cut short, just as its triumph came!

Ibid. Stanza 17

HENRY DAVID THOREAU
[1817-1862]

My life is like a stroll upon the beach,
As near the ocean's edge as I can go.

The Fisher's Boy.<sup>1</sup> Stanza 1

I have but few companions on the shore, —

They scorn the strand who sail upon the sea;

Yet oft I think the ocean they've sailed o'er

Is deeper down upon the strand to me.

Ibid. Stanza 3

Whate'er we leave to God, God does
And blesses us.

Inspiration. Proem

<sup>1</sup> Entitled The Fisher's Son in Thoreau's Journal [1840] and Upon the Beach in some anthologies.

I hear beyond the range of sound,
I see beyond the range of sight,
New earths and skies and seas around,
And in my day the sun doth pale his light.

Inspiration. Stanza 7

She with one breath attunes the spheres,
And also my poor human heart.

Ibid. Stanza 15

I am a parcel of vain strivings tied
By a chance bond together.

Sic Vita.<sup>1</sup> Stanza 1

Great God, I ask thee for no meaner pelf
Than that I may not disappoint myself,
That in my action I may soar as high
As I can now discern with this clear eye.

I have travelled a good deal in Concord.

Walden. I, Economy

What a man thinks of himself, that it is which determines, or rather indicates, his fate.

Ibid.

As if you could kill time without injuring eternity.

Ibid.

Most of the luxuries, and many of the so-called comforts, of life are not only not indispensable, but positive hindrances to the elevation of mankind.

Ibid.

It is true, I never assisted the sun materially in his rising; but, doubt not, it was of the last importance only to be present at it.

Ibid.

For many years I was self-appointed inspector of snow-storms and rain-storms, and did my duty faithfully.

Ibid.

Beware of all enterprises that require new clothes.

Ibid.

The swiftest traveller is he that goes

Walden. I, Economy

The man who goes alone can start to-day;
but he who travels with another must wait till that other is ready.

There is no odor so bad as that which arises from goodness tainted.

Ibid. Philanthropy

There are a thousand hacking at the branches of evil to one who is striking at the root.

Ibid.

Philanthropy is almost the only virtue which is sufficiently appreciated by mankind.

To him whose elastic and vigorous thought keeps pace with the sun, the day is a perpetual morning.

Ibid. II, What I Lived For

To be awake is to be alive.

Ibid.

I went to the woods because I wished to live deliberately, to front only the essential facts of life, and see if I could not learn what it had to teach, and not, when I came to die, discover that I had not lived.

Ibid.

Our life is frittered away by detail.
. . . Simplify, simplify.

Ibid.

Time is but the stream I go a-fishing in.

Books must be read as deliberately and reservedly as they were written.

Ibid. III, Reading

The works of the great poets have never yet been read by mankind, for only great poets can read them.

Ibid.

I love a broad margin to my life.

Ibid. IV, Sounds

Our horizon is never quite at our elbows.

Ibid. V, Solitude

I never found the companion that was so companionable as solitude.

Society is commonly too cheap. We meet at very short intervals, not having had time to acquire any new value for each other.

Walden. V, Solitude

I had three chairs in my house: one for solitude, two for friendship, three for society.

Ibid. VI, Visitors

I was determined to know beans.

Ibid. VII, The Beanfield

If the day and the night are such that you greet them with joy, and life emits a fragrance like flowers and sweet-scented herbs, is more elastic, more starry, more immortal, — that is your success.

Ibid. XI, Higher Laws

There is never an instant's truce between virtue and vice. Goodness is the only investment that never fails.

Every man is the builder of a temple, called his body.

While men believe in the infinite, some ponds will be thought to be bottomless.

Ibid. XVI, The Pond in Winter

Through our own recovered innocence we discern the innocence of our neighbors.

Ibid. XVII, Spring

If one advances confidently in the direction of his dreams, and endeavors to live the life which he has imagined, he will meet with a success unexpected in common hours.

Ibid. XVIII, Conclusion

If a man does not keep pace with his companions,<sup>1</sup> perhaps it is because he hears a different drummer. Let him step to the music which he hears, however measured or far away.

Ibid.

Love your life, poor as it is. You may perhaps have some pleasant, thrilling, glorious hours, even in a poorhouse. The setting sun is reflected from the windows of the almshouse as brightly as from the rich man's abode.

Walden. XVIII, Conclusion

It is life near the bone where it is sweetest.

Ibid.

Rather than love, than money, than fame, give me truth.

Ibid.

Only that day dawns to which we are awake. There is more day to dawn. The sun is but a morning star.

Ibid.

I saw a delicate flower had grown up two feet high between the horses' feet and the wheel track. An inch more to right or left had sealed its fate, or an inch higher. Yet it lived to flourish, and never knew the danger it incurred. It did not borrow trouble, nor invite an evil fate by apprehending it.

Samuel Sullivan ("Sunset") Cox [1824-1889], Democratic member from New York, had attacked Butler savagely. In his reply, Butler took no notice of Cox until the close of his argument.

The song, Shoo Fly, Don't Bodder Me, was written by THOMAS BRIGHAM BISHOP, set to music by FRANK CAMPBELL, popularized by Billy Reeves, in the late 1860s.

It would get to running through his head, like the "shoo-fly" song which Butler sings in the House.

I like not only to be loved, but also to be told that I am loved. I am not sure that you are of the same kind. But the realm of silence is large enough beyond the grave. This is the world of light and speech, and I shall take leave to tell you that you are very dear.

All biography diminishes in interest when the subject has won celebrity — or some reputation that hardly comes up to a celebrity. But autobiography at least saves a man or woman that the world is curious about from the publication of a string of mistakes called "Memoirs."

THOMAS DUNN ENGLISH [1819-1902]

Don't you remember sweet Alice, Ben Bolt?

Sweet Alice, whose hair was so brown;

Who wept with delight when you gave her a smile,

And trembled with fear at your frown!

Ben Bolt<sup>1</sup>

Your eyes were filled with love, Kate Vane;

Ah, would that we were young again!

Kate Vane

Up with three cheers and a tiger!

Let the flags wave as they come!

Give them the blare of the trumpet!

Give them the roll of the drum!

*The Charge by the Ford.
Stanza 11*

<sup>1</sup> First published in The New York Mirror, Sept. 2, 1843. It was set to music, an adaptation of an old German melody, by NELSON KNEASS, and sung in a play, The Battle of Buena Vista. In 1894, GEORGE DU MAURIER used the song in his novel, Trilby, and it became popular at once.

For one on the ocean of crime long tossed,

Who loves his mother, is not quite lost.

Smiting the Rock

Less good from genius we may find
Than that from perseverance flowing;

So have good grist at hand to grind,
And keep the mill a-going.

Keep the Mill a-Going. Stanza 1

Though little dangers they may fear,
When greater dangers men environ
Then women show a front of iron;
And, gentle in their manner, they Do bold things in a quiet way.

Betty Zane.<sup>1</sup> Stanza 1

Not one has lineage prouder than (Be he poor or rich) the man
Who boasts that in his spotless strain
Mingles the blood of Betty Zane.

JOSIAH GILBERT HOLLAND [1819-1881]

Heaven is not reached at a single bound;

But we build the ladder by which we rise

From the lowly earth to the vaulted skies,

And we mount to its summit round by round.<sup>2</sup>

Gradatim. Stanza 1

Wings for the angels, but feet for men.

Ibid. Stanza 6

Only in dreams is a ladder thrown

From the weary earth to the sapphire walls;

But the dreams depart, and the vision falls,

And the sleeper wakes on his pillow of stone.

Ibid. Stanza 7

<sup>1</sup> Fort Henry (now Wheeling, West Virginia) was attacked by Simon Girty and a band of Wyandot Indians, September 27-28, 1777. Betty Zane ran from the blockhouse to the log hut on the hill, and returned with a cask of gunpowder wrapped in her apron. Zanesville, Ohio, is named for the Zane family.

<sup>2</sup> Step after step the ladder is ascended. — HERBERT: Jacula Prudentum

He could see naught but vanity in beauty,
And naught but weakness in a fond caress,
And pitied men whose views of Chris-

Allowed indulgence in such foolishness.

Daniel Gray. Stanza 9

More human, more divine than we —
In truth, half human, half divine
Is woman when good stars agree
To temper with their beams benign
The hour of her nativity.

Kathrina

Who can tell what a baby thinks?

Cradle Song. Stanza 2

My dear dumb friend, low lying there,
A willing vassal at my feet —
Glad partner of my home and fare,
My shadow in the street.

To My Dog, Blanco. Stanza 1

God give us men! A time like this demands

Strong minds, great hearts, true faith, and ready hands;

Men whom the lust of office does not kill;

Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy;

Men who possess opinions and a will;
Men who have honor; men who will not lie;

Men who can stand before a demagogue
And damn his treacherous flatteries without winking;

Tall men, sun-crowned, who live above
the fog

In public duty and in private thinking.

The Day's Demand

Hearts, like apples, are hard and sour,
Till crushed by Pain's resistless power.

Bitter-Sweet. First Episode

For lives devote to love and truth
Do only multiply their youth.

JULIA WARD HOWE

[1819-1910]

Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord;

He is trampling out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored;

He hath loosed the fateful lightning of
His terrible, swift sword;
His truth is marching on.

Battle Hymn of the Republic.

Stanza 1

In the beauty of the lilies Christ was born across the sea,

With a glory in His bosom that trans-figures you and me;

As He died to make men holy, let us die
to make men free.

Ibid. Stanza 5

Weave no more silks, ye Lyons looms,
To deck our girls for gay delights!

The crimson flower of battle blooms,
And solemn marches fill the nights.

Our Orders

I gave my son a palace
And a kingdom to control:
The palace of his body,
The kingdom of his soul.

Palace and Kingdom

Don't trouble more to celebrate this natal day of mine,

But keep the grasp of fellowship which warms us more than wine.

Let us thank the lavish hand that gives world beauty to our eyes,

And bless the days that saw us young,
and years that make us wise.

Growing Old

I have made a voyage upon a golden
river,

'Neath clouds of opal and of ame-

Along its banks bright shapes were moving ever,

And threatening shadows melted into mist.

[1819-1891]

Thou belongest to that hopeless, sal-low tribe which no wine of this world will ever warm; and for whom even Pale Sherry would be too rosy-strong; but with whom one sometimes loves to sit, and feel poor-devilish, too; and grow convivial upon tears; and say to them bluntly, with full eyes and empty glasses, and in not altogether unpleasant sadness — Give it up, Sub-Subs! For by how much the more pains ye <sup>1</sup> May one cry of human distress interpolate here? The editors of BARTLETT confess the complete inadequacy of these few quotations from Moby Dick. For that great book there is no substitute; it cannot be represented in excerpts; to attempt that would require (as we have said before) a Moby Dictionary.

"He sank without a ripple of renown" was the fine valediction of RAYMOND M. WEAVER in his Herman Melville, Mariner and Mystic (1921). Melville died the same year that John Bartlett completed the Ninth Edition of this work. Neither then, nor in Dole's Tenth Edition (1914) was Melville's name mentioned. It was his centennial in 1919, coming in the general quickening and disgust of After-War, that brought him alive for a new generation. But he is too dense with intuition to be parcelled out in clippings.

"To read Moby Dick and absorb it is the crown of one's reading life." — VIOLA MEYNELL, introduction to World's Classics Edition.

We forward the problem to the editor of the Twelfth Edition, which should be due about 1960.

Thou great democratic God! who didst not refuse to the swart convict, Bunyan, the pale poetic pearl; Thou who didst clothe with doubly hammered leaves of finest gold, the stumped and paupered arm of old Cervantes; Thou who didst pick up Andrew Jackson from the pebbles; who didst hurl him upon a warhorse; who didst thunder him higher than a throne!

Ibid. Chap. 26

The starred and stately nights seemed haughty dames in jewelled velvets, nursing at home in lonely pride the memory of their absent conquering Earls, the golden helmeted suns!

The choice hidden handful of the Divine Inert.

And noblest deeds they are undone,
Even truth itself decays, and lo,
From truth's sad ashes pain and falsehood grow.

JOHN RUSKIN [1819-1900]

He is the greatest artist who has embodied, in the sum of his works, the greatest number of the greatest ideas.

Modern Painters. Vol. I, Part I, Chap. 2, Sect. 9

The greatest thing a human soul ever does in this world is to see something, and tell what it saw in a plain way. Hundreds of people can talk for one who can think, but thousands can think for one who can see. To see clearly is poetry, prophecy, and religion, all in one.

Ibid. Vol. III, Part IV, Chap. 16, Sect. 28

In order that people may be happy in their work, these three things are needed: They must be fit for it: They must not do too much of it: And they must have a sense of success in it.

Pre-Raphaelitism

No great intellectual thing was ever done by great effort; a great thing can only be done by a great man, and he does it without effort.

It is chiefly by private, not by public, effort that your city must be adorned.

Blue colour is everlastingly appointed by the Deity to be a source of delight.

Life being very short, and the quiet hours of it few, we ought to waste none of them in reading valueless books.<sup>2</sup>

Sesame and Lilies. Preface

The greatest efforts of the race have always been traceable to the love of praise, as its greatest catastrophes to the love of pleasure.

Ibid. Of Kings' Treasuries, Sect. 3

At the portières of that silent Faubourg St. Germain, there is but brief question, "Do you deserve to enter? Pass. Do you ask to be the companion of nobles? Make yourself noble, and you shall be. Do you long for the conversation of the wise? Learn to understand it, and you shall hear it. But on other terms? — no. If you will not rise to us, we cannot stoop to you."

Ibid. Sect. 12

There are masked words abroad, I say, which nobody understands, but which everybody uses, and most people will also fight for, live for, or even die for, fancying they mean this, or that, or the other, of things dear to them.

Ibid. Sect. 16

The very cheapness of literature is making even wise people forget that if a book is worth reading, it is worth buying. No book is worth anything which is not worth much; nor is it serviceable, until it has been read, and re-read, and loved, and loved again; and marked, so that you can refer to the passages you want in it.

Sesame and Lilies.

Of King's Treasuries, Sect. 32

The power of the press in the hands of highly-educated men, in independent position, and of honest purpose, may indeed become all that it has been hitherto vainly vaunted to be.

Ibid. Sect. 37, Footnote

When men are rightly occupied, their amusement grows out of their work, as the colour-petals out of a fruitful flower.

Ibid. Sect. 39

He only is advancing in life, whose heart is getting softer, whose blood warmer, whose brain quicker, whose spirit is entering into Living peace. And the men who have this life in them are the true lords or kings of the earth — they, and they only.

Ibid. Sect. 42

This is the true nature of home — it is the place of Peace; the shelter, not only from all injury, but from all terror, doubt, and division.

That country is the richest which nourishes the greatest number of noble and happy human beings; that man is richest who, having perfected the functions of his own life to the utmost, has also the widest helpful influence, both personal, and by means of his possessions, over the lives of others.

Either simple or gentle from Vanity Fair.

Vanity Fair

This rhyme is the commonplace passion

That glows in a fond woman's heart;
Lay it by in some sacred deposit
For relics, — we all have a few!
Love, some day they'll print it, because it

Was written to you.

For an arm!

To My Grandmother

The world's as ugly, ay, as Sin, —
And almost as delightful.

GEORGE JOHN WHYTE-MELVILLE
[1821-1878]

When you sleep in your cloak there's no lodging to pay.

Boots and Saddles

For everything created
In the bounds of earth and sky
Has such longing to be mated,
It must couple or must die.

Like to Like

Ah, better to love in the lowliest cot
Than pine in a palace alone.

Chastelar

There are men both good and wise who hold that in a future state Dumb creatures we have cherished here below

Shall give us joyous greeting when we

In the choice of a horse and a wife,

One lesson, Nature, let me learn of thee.
Sonnet 1, Quiet Work

Be his

My special thanks, whose even-balanced soul,
From first youth tested up to extreme old age,
Business could not make dull, nor Passion wild:

Who saw life steadily and saw it whole.
Sonnet 2, To a Friend

Others abide our question. Thou art
free.

We ask and ask: Thou smilest and art
still,

Out-topping knowledge.

Sonnet 3, Shakespeare

The will is free:

Strong is the Soul, and wise, and beautiful:

The seeds of godlike power are in us
still:

Gods are we, Bards, Saints, Heroes, if we will.

With aching hands and bleeding feet

We dig and heap, lay stone on stone;

We bear the burden and the heat

Of the long day, and wish 'twere

All we have built do we discern.

Calm Soul of all things! make it mine

To feel, amid the city's jar,

That there abides a peace of thine,

He took the suffering human race,

He read each wound, each weakness clear —

And struck his finger on the place

And said — Thou ailest here, and here.

Time may restore us in his course

Goethe's sage mind and Byron's force;

Ah, love, let us be true

MARY BAKER EDDY

[1821-1910]

The prayer that reforms the sinner and heals the sick is an absolute faith that all things are possible to God, — a spiritual understanding of Him, an unselfed love.

Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures. Page 1

The basis of all health, sinlessness, and immortality is the great fact that God is the only Mind; and this Mind

for Boucicault's play Arrah-na-Pogue. [1865]

must be not merely believed, but it must be understood.

Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures. Page 339

Being is holiness, harmony, immortality. It is already proved that a knowledge of this, even in small degree, will uplift the physical and moral standard of mortals, will increase longevity, will purify and elevate character. Thus progress will finally destroy all error, and bring immortality to light.

Ibid. Page 492

Divine Love always has met and always will meet every human need.

How would you define Christian Science?

As the law of God, the law of good, interpreting and demonstrating the divine Principle and rule of universal harmony.

To live and let live, without clamor for distinction or recognition; to wait on divine Love; to write truth first on the tablet of one's own heart, — this is the sanity and perfection of living, and my human ideal.

Message to the Mother Church for 1902. Page 2

To live so as to keep human consciousness in constant relation with the divine, the spiritual, and the eternal, is to individualize infinite power; and this is Christian Science.

The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany. Page 160

O'er the hillside steep,
How to gather, how to sow,

Lest my footsteps stray,
I will follow and rejoice
All the rugged way.

Shepherd, Show Me How to Go. Stanza 1

O'er waiting harp-strings of the mind
There sweeps a strain,

My prayer, some daily good to do

Labor disgraces no man; unfortunately you occasionally find men disgrace labor.

Speech at Midland International Arbitration Union, Birmingham, England [1877]

They [the Pilgrim Fathers] fell upon an ungenial climate, where there were nine months of winter and three months of cold weather and that called out the best energies of the men, and of the women too, to get a mere subsistence out of the soil, with such a climate. In their efforts to do that they cultivated industry and frugality at the same time — which is the real foundation of the greatness of the Pilgrims.

Behind all these men you have to do with, behind officers, and government, and people even, there is the Country Herself, your Country, and . . . you belong to Her as you belong to your own mother. Stand by Her, boy, as you would stand by your mother.

4. "I agree, in general, with my friend the other side of the room."

My Double and How He Undid Me

It is not necessary to finish your sentences in a crowd, but by a sort of mumble, omitting sibilants and dentals. This, indeed, if your words fail you, answers even in public extempore speech, but better where other talking is going on.

Somewhere beneath the sun,
These quivering heart-strings prove it,
Somewhere there must be one
Made for this soul, to move it.

Amaturus

Oh, earlier shall the rosebuds blow,
In after years, those happier years;
And children weep, when we lie low,
Far fewer tears, far softer tears.

A Song. Stanza 1

For waste of scheme and toil we grieve,
For snowflakes on the wave we sigh,
For writings on the sand that leave Naught for to-morrow's passer-by.

On Livermead Sands. Stanza 1

You come not, as aforetime, to the headstone every day,
And I, who died, I do not chide because, my friend, you play;
Only, in playing, think of him who once was kind and dear,
And, if you see a beauteous thing, just say, he is not here.

Remember

They told me, Heraclitus, they told me
you were dead;
They brought me bitter news to hear and bitter tears to shed.

I wept, as I remembered, how often you and I

Had tired the sun with talking and sent him down the sky.

And now that thou art lying, my dear old Carian guest,

A handful of grey ashes, long long ago
at rest,

Still are thy pleasant voices, thy Nightingales,<sup>1</sup> awake,
For Death, he taketh all away, but them he cannot take.

Heraclitus,<sup>2</sup> Paraphrase from Callimachus<sup>3</sup>

BARTHOLOMEW DOWLING

[1823-1863]

We meet 'neath the sounding rafter,
And the walls around are bare;
As they shout back our peals of laughter

It seems that the dead are there.
Then stand to your glasses, steady!
We drink in our comrades' eyes:
One cup to the dead already —
Hurrah for the next that dies!

<sup>2</sup> They told me, Herakleitos, thou wast dead.
What tears I shed!

As I remembered how we two as one Talked down the sun.

Well, Halicarnessian friend, long since thou must

Have turned to dust;
Yet live thy Nightingales, and Hades, who Doth all subdue,

Shall never until Time itself shall close Lay hand on those.

Translation by BASIL LANNEAU GILDER-SLEEVE [1831-1924]

One told me, Heraclitus, of thy fate;
He brought me tears, he brought me memories;

Alas, my Carian friend, how oft, how late,
We twain have talked the sun adown the skies,
And somewhere thou art dust without a date!
But of thy songs death maketh not his prize,
In death's despite, that stealeth all, they wait,
The new year's nightingale that never dies!

ANDREW LANG [1844-1912]: Heraclitus
They tell me, Heraclitus, thou art dead,
And many are the tears for thee I shed,
With memories of those summer nights opprest

When we together talked the sun to rest.
Alas! my guest, my friend! no more art thou;
Long, long ago wert ashes, and yet now
Thy Nightingales live on, I hear them sing, E'en death spares them, who spares not anything.

LILLA CABOT PERRY [1848-1933]:
translated from Callimachus, Greek Anthology, Book VII, Epigram 80

<sup>4</sup> Commemorating those who died in a great cholera epidemic in India.

There's a mist on the glass congealing,
'Tis the hurricane's sultry breath;
And thus does the warmth of feeling
Turn ice in the grasp of Death.

The Revel. Stanza 6

Who dreads to the dust returning?
Who shrinks from the sable shore,
Where the high and haughty yearning
Of the soul can sting no more?

Ibid. Stanza 7

AUGUSTINE JOSEPH HICKEY DUGANNE

[1823-1884]

"Heimgang!" So the German people
Whisper when they hear the bell
Tolling from some gray old steeple,
Death's familiar tale to tell;
When they hear the organ surges
Swelling out from chapel dome,
And the singers chanting dirges,
"Heimgang!" Always going home.

Heimgang. Stanza 1

[1823-1911]

To be parochial is to turn away from the great and look at the little. . . .
To look out of the little world into the great, that is enlargement; all else is parochialism.

Margaret Fuller Ossoli, Chap. 9

The test of an author is not to be found merely in the number of his phrases that pass current in the corner of newspapers . . . but in the number of passages that have really taken root in younger minds.

Ibid. Chap. 18

When a thought takes one's breath away, a lesson on grammar seems an impertinence.

*Preface to EMILY DICKINSON'S

An easy thing, O Power Divine,
To thank Thee for these gifts of Thine,
For summer's sunshine, winter's snow,
For hearts that kindle, thoughts that

But when shall I attain to this —
To thank Thee for the things I miss?

The Toys

Some who do not consider that Christianity has proved a failure, do, nevertheless, hold that it is open to question whether the race, as a race, has been much affected by it, and whether the external and visible evil and good which have come of it do not pretty nearly balance one another.

Christianity and Progress

Atheism in art, as well as in life, has only to be pressed to its last consequences in order to become ridiculous.

Emotional Art

The poet, as a rule, should avoid religion altogether as a direct subject.

We read Virginia's blazoned roll

Of heroes, and forthwith

Greets us upon the starry scroll

That homeliest name, — *John

No record of her high descent

There needs, nor memory of her

Enough that Raphael's colors blent

To give her features deathless fame.

[1825-1913]

Fair the cabin-walls were gleaming in the sunbeams' golden glow,
On that lovely April morning, near a hundred years ago;
And upon the humble threshold stood
the young wife, Margery Grey,
With her fearless blue eyes glancing down the lonely forest way.

How can I cease to pray for thee?
Somewhere

In God's great universe thou art today:

Can He not reach thee with His tender

Can He not hear me when for thee I pray?

G. W. HUNT

We don't want to fight, but, by jingo,
if we do,

We've got the ships, we've got the men
we've got the money, too.

We've fought the Bear before, and while we're Britons true,

The Russians shall not have Constantinople.

Our Kings are sepulchred, a king of song,

<sup>1</sup> The sculpture by Augustus Saint Gaudens for the grave of Mrs. Henry Adams, Rock Creek Cemetery, Washington, D. C.

This is not death, nor sorrow, nor sad Hope;
Nor rest that follows strife, but oh, more dread!

'Tis Life, for all its agony, serene,

Immortal, and unmournful and content.

RICHARD WATSON GILDER: The Saint Gaudens Memorial

Yes, I have lived! Pass on And trouble me with questions nevermore —
I suffered. I have won

A solemn peace — my peace forevermore.
Leave me in silence here.

I have no hope, no care,

I know no fear;

For I have borne — but now no longer bear.

(Farrell) [1845-1901], "the great Macder-to political vocabulary, though it had been used earlier by Oliver Goldsmith and Thomas Hood.George Jacob Holyoake [1817-1906], a re-

To all the gossip that I hear I'll give no faith; to what I see

THOMAS HENRY HUXLEY [1825-1895]

I cannot but think that he who finds a certain proportion of pain and evil inseparably woven up in the life of the very worms, will bear his own share with more courage and submission.

On the Educational Value of the National History Sciences
[1854]

To a person uninstructed in natural history, his country or seaside stroll is a walk through a gallery filled with wonderful works of art, nine-tenths of which have their faces turned to the wall.

Ibid.

Education is the instruction of the intellect in the laws of Nature, under which name I include not merely things and their forces, but men and their ways; and the fashioning of the affections and of the will into an earnest and loving desire to move in harmony with those laws.

A Liberal Education [1868]

For every man the world is as fresh as it was at the first day, and as full of

A Liberal Education [1868]

It is much better to want a teacher than to want the desire to learn.

Ibid.

Literature is the greatest of all sources of refined pleasure, and one of the great uses of a liberal education is to enable us to enjoy that pleasure.

Ibid.

The rung of a ladder was never meant to rest upon, but only to hold a man's foot long enough to enable him to put the other somewhat higher.

That mysterious independent variable of political calculation, Public Opinion.

Universities, Actual and Ideal
[1874]

Veracity is the heart of morality.

Ibid.

Becky Sharp's acute remark that it is not difficult to be virtuous on ten thousand a year<sup>1</sup> has its application to nations; and it is futile to expect a hungry and squalid population to be anything but violent and gross.

Joseph Priestley [1874]

Size is not grandeur, and territory does not make a nation.

On University Education [1876]

The chess-board is the world, the pieces are the phenomena of the universe, the rules of the game are what we call the laws of Nature. The player on the other side is hidden from us. We know that his play is always fair, just, and patient. But also we know, to our cost, that he never overlooks a mistake, or makes the smallest allowance for ignorance.

Lay Sermons

Perhaps the most valuable result of all education is the ability to make yourself do the thing you have to do, when it ought to be done, whether you like it or not; it is the first lesson that ought to be learned; and however early a man's training begins, it is probably the last lesson that he learns thoroughly.

Technical Education [1877]

The great end of life is not knowledge but action.

If a little knowledge is dangerous, where is the man who has so much as to be out of danger?

Irrationally held truths may be more harmful than reasoned errors.

The Coming of Age of "The Origin of Species"

It is the customary fate of new truths to begin as heresies and to end as superstitions.

If some great Power would agree to make me always think what is true and do what is right, on condition of being turned into a sort of clock and wound up every morning before I got out of bed, I should instantly close with the offer.

Are we to blame for being caterpillars?
Will the same God that doomed us crawl the earth

A prey to every bird that's given birth,
Forgive our captor as he eats and sings,
And damn poor us because we have not wings?

That they drink from the same canteen.

EUGENE FIELD: From the Same Canteen, St. 3

<sup>2</sup> In the early seventeenth century a petition of protest against some taxation was sent to Parliament, commencing: "We, the People of England." There were nine signers, all discovered to be tailors on Tooley Street, on the south side of the Thames, near London Bridge. Hence, "It comes from the nine tailors of Tooley Street" has come to mean a protest of small importance.

The epochs in our lives are three:
And here we grope in rifts between The Is, the Was, the Might Have Been.

Onnalinda

<sup>1</sup> Said after the death of George Holland, a well-loved old actor, in December 1870. A certain rector declined to hold the funeral in his church and recommended Jefferson to "A little church around the corner." You are underrating the President [Lincoln]. I grant that he lacks higher education and his manners are not in accord with European conceptions of the dignity of a chief magistrate. He is a well-developed child of nature and is not skilled in polite phrases and poses. But he is a man of profound feeling, correct and firm principles and incorruptible honesty. His motives are unquestionable, and he possesses to a remarkable degree the characteristic,

My Summer in a Garden.

Preliminary

Broad acres are a patent of nobility; and no man but feels more of a man in the world if he have a bit of ground that he can call his own. However small it is on the surface, it is four thousand miles deep; and that is a very handsome property.

What a man needs in gardening is a cast-iron back, with a hinge in it.

Lettuce is like conversation: it must be fresh and crisp, so sparkling that you scarcely notice the bitter in it.

[Floruit 1880]

We meet upon the Level and we part upon the Square;<sup>4</sup>
What words sublimely beautiful those Words Masonic are.
They fall like strains of melody upon the listening ears,

<sup>3</sup> Sweet Robin, I have heard them say
That thou wert there upon the day
That Christ was crowned in cruel scorn,
And bore away one bleeding thorn;
That so the blush upon thy breast
In shameful sorrow was imprest,
And thence thy genial sympathy
With our redeemed humanity.

WILLIAM CROSWELL DOANE [1832-1913]: Robin Redbreast

A little bird that warbled near,
That memorable day,
Flitted around and strove to wrench
One single thorn away;
The cruel spike impaled his breast,
And thus, 'tis sweetly said,
The robin wears his silver vest
In panoplies of red.

JAMES RYDER RANDALL [1839-1908]:

Why the Robin's Breast Is Red

<sup>4</sup> We met upon the Level an' we parted on the Square,
An' I was Junior Deacon in my Mother-
Lodge out there!

MRS. DAVID PORTER
[Floruit 1860]

Thou hast wounded the spirit that loved thee
And cherish'd thine image for years;
Thou hast taught me at last to forget
thee,
In secret, in silence, and tears.
Thou Hast Wounded the Spirit.
Stanza 2

CHRISTINA GEORGINA ROSSETTI
[1830-1894]

Hope is like a harebell trembling from its birth,
Love is like a rose the joy of all the earth,
Faith is like a lily lifted high and white,
Love is like a lovely rose the world's delight.
Harebells and sweet lilies show a thorn-less growth,
But the rose with all its thorns excels them both.

Hope Is Like a Harebell
In life our absent friend is far away:
But death may bring our friend exceeding near.

Sonnet 28, Later Life
My heart is like a singing bird.
A Birthday. Stanza 1
When I am dead, my dearest,
Sing no sad songs for me;
Plant thou no roses at my head,
Nor shady cypress tree.

Song. Stanza 1
I shall not see the shadows,
I shall not feel the rain.

Ibid. Stanza 2
Beyond the sea of death Love lies
For ever, yesterday, to-day.

One Day. Stanza 3
Remember me when I am gone away,
Gone far away into the silent land.

Remember

Better by far you should forget and smile
Than that you should remember and be sad.

Remember
Does the road wind up-hill all the way?
Yes, to the very end.

Up-Hill. Stanza 1
All earth's full rivers can not fill
The sea, that drinking thirsteth still.
By the Sea

One day in the country
Is worth a month in town.
Summer
Silence more musical than any song.
Rest

Let bygones be bygones.
"No, Thank You, John." Stanza 5
Somewhere or other there must surely be
The face not seen, the voice not heard,
The heart that not yet — never yet —
ah, me!
Made answer to my word.
Somewhere or Other. Stanza 1

ALEXANDER SMITH
[1830-1867]

Some books are drenchèd sands
On which a great soul's wealth lies all in heaps,
Like a wrecked argosy.
A Life Drama. Sc. 2
Like a pale martyr in his shirt of fire.
Ibid.

In winter, when the dismal rain
Comes down in slanting lines,
And Wind, that grand old harper, smote
His thunder-harp of pines.
Ibid.

A poem round and perfect as a star.
Ibid.
The saddest thing that can befall a soul
Is when it loses faith in God and woman.

Ibid. Sc. 12
We twain have met like the ships upon the sea,<sup>1</sup>
Who hold an hour's converse, so short,
so sweet;

<sup>1</sup> See Longfellow. page 437.

One little hour! And then, away they speed
 On lonely paths, through mist and cloud and foam,
 To meet no more.

A Life Drama. Part IV

I loved you, and above my life still hangs that love intact —
 Like a mild consoling rainbow, or a savage cataract.

Love has saved me, Barbara!

Barbara. Stanza 6

We hear the wail of the remorseful winds
 In their strange penance. And this wretched orb
 Knows not the taste of rest; a maniac
 world,
 Homeless and sobbing through the deep she goes.

Unrest and Childhood

The soul of man is like the rolling
 world,
 One half in day, the other dipt in night;
 The one has music and the flying cloud,
 The other, silence and the wakeful stars.

Horton

Each time we love,
 We turn a nearer and a broader mark
 To that keen archer, Sorrow, and he strikes.

A Boy's Dream

Time has fallen asleep in the afternoon sunshine.

Dreamthorp. First Essay

The man who in this world can keep the whiteness of his soul, is not likely to lose it in any other.

Ibid.

It is not of so much consequence what you say, as how you say it. Memorable sentences are memorable on account of some single irradiating word.

Ibid. On the Writing of Essays

The world is not so much in need of new thoughts as that when thought grows old and worn with usage it should, like current coin, be called in, and, from the mint of genius, reissued fresh and new.

Ibid.

Death is the ugly fact which Nature has to hide, and she hides it well.

Dreamthorp. Of Death and the Fear of Dying

Everything is sweetened by risk.

Ibid.

In life there is nothing more unexpected and surprising than the arrivals and departures of pleasure. If we find it in one place to-day, it is vain to seek it there to-morrow. You can not lay a trap for it.

Ibid.

A man's real possession is his memory. In nothing else is he rich, in nothing else is he poor.

Ibid.

Scotland had invaded England more than once, but the blue bonnets never went over the border<sup>1</sup> so triumphantly as when they did so in the shape of songs and ballads.

Ibid. William Dunbar

A large proportion of mankind feel a quite peculiar interest in famous writers.

Ibid. Men of Letters

Just consider what a world this would be if ruled by the best thoughts of men of letters! Ignorance would die at once, war would cease, taxation would be lightened, not only every Frenchman, but every man in the world, would have his hen in the pot.<sup>2</sup>

Ibid.

I would rather be remembered by a song than by a victory. I would rather build a fine sonnet than have built St.
 Paul's.

<sup>2</sup> A chicken in every pot. — Republican campaign slogan [1932].

Trifles make up the happiness or the misery of mortal life. The majority of men slip into their graves without having encountered on their way thither any signal catastrophe or exaltation of fortune or feeling.

Dreamthorp. Men of Letters

The skin of the man of letters is peculiarly sensitive to the bite of the critical mosquito; and he lives in a climate in which such mosquitoes swarm. He is seldom stabbed to the heart — he is often killed by pin-pricks.

Ibid.

Every man's road in life is marked by the graves of his personal likings.

Ibid. On the Importance of a Man to Himself

In the wide arena of the world, failure and success are not accidents as we so frequently suppose, but the strictest justice. If you do your fair day's work, you are certain to get your fair day's wage — in praise or pudding, whichever happens to suit your taste.

Ibid.

The great man is the man who does a thing for the first time.

Ibid.

Turn where you will, some fragment of a ballad is sure to meet you. Go into the loneliest places of experience and passion, and you discover that you are walking in human footprints.

Ibid. A Shelf in My Bookcase

How deeply seated in the human heart is the liking for gardens and gardening.

Ibid. Books and Gardens

If you have once planted a tree for other than commercial purposes, — and in that case it is usually done by your orders and by the hands of hirelings, — you have always in it a peculiar interest. You care more for it than you care for all the forests of Norway or America. You have planted it, and that is sufficient to make it peculiar amongst the trees of the world.

Ibid.

A man does not plant a tree for himself, he plants it for posterity.

Dreamthorp. Books and Gardens

It is high time, it seems to me, that a moral game-law were passed for the preservation of the wild and vagrant feelings of human nature.

Ibid. On Vagabonds

A good portrait is a kind of biography, and neither painter nor biographer can carry out his task satisfactorily unless he be admitted behind the scenes.

Ibid.

MATTHIAS BARR

[1831-?] ]

Only a baby small,
Dropt from the skies;
Small, but how dear to us,
God knoweth best.

Only a Baby Small

Moon, so round and yellow,
Looking from on high,
How I love to see you Shining in the sky.

Moon, So Round and Yellow

Come, give me your hand, sir, my friend and my brother:

If honest, why sure that's enough.
One hand, if it's true, is as good as another,

No matter how brawny or rough.

Give Me Your Hand

Though it toil for a living at hedges or ditches,

Or make for its owner a name,
Or fold in its hand all the dainties of riches,

If honest I love it the same.

Ibid.

CHARLES STUART CALVERLEY

[1831-1884]

I have a liking old
For thee, though manifold Stories, I know, are told,
Not to thy credit!

Ode to Tobacco. Stanza 2

I sit alone at present, dreaming darkly of a Dun.

In the Gloaming

I can not sing the old songs now!
It is not that I deem them low;
'Tis that I can't remember how
They go.<sup>1</sup>

O my own, my beautiful, my blue-eyed!

To be young once more and bite my thumb

At the world and all its cares with you, I'd

Give no inconsiderable sum.

First Love. Stanza 7

A clod — a piece of orange peel —

An end of a cigar —

Once trod on by a Princely heel,

How beautiful they are! <sup>2</sup>

Precious Stones. Stanza 6

The farmer's daughter hath soft brown
hair

(Butter and eggs and a pound of cheese)

And I met with a ballad, I can't say
where,

That wholly consisted of lines like these.

Ballad, after William Morris [The Auld Wife]. Part I,

Stanza 6

And this song is considered a perfect gem,

And as to the meaning, it's what you please.

Ibid. Part II, Stanza 4

'Twas ever thus from childhood's hour!

My fondest hopes would not decay:

I never loved a tree or flower

Which was the first to fade away.<sup>3</sup>

Disaster, after Moore. Stanza 1

But ah! disasters have their use;

And life might e'en be too sunshiny.

Ibid. Stanza 5

The boundless ineffable prairie;

The splendor of mountain and lake

With their hues that seem ever to vary;

The mighty pine forests which shake

His Son. Stanza 7*

O Memory! That which I gave thee
To guard in thy garner yest'reen — Little deeming thou e'er couldst behave
thee

Thus basely — hath gone from thee clean!

Flight. Stanza 1

Mine was a joke for the ages;
Full of intricate meaning and pith;
A feast for your scholars and sages —
How it would have rejoiced Sydney
Smith!

'Tis such thoughts that ennoble a mortal;

And, singling him out from the herd,
Fling wide immortality's portal —

— But what was the word?

Ibid. Stanza 9

As the flight of a bird in the air
Is the flight of a joke.

Ibid. Stanza 10

Forever; 'tis a single word!

Our rude forefathers deemed it two:
Can you imagine so absurd

A view?

Forever

Ere the morn the East has crimsoned,

When the stars are twinkling there

(As they did in Watts' hymns, and Made him wonder what they were)

When the forest-nymphs are beading

Fern and flower with silvery dew

My infallible proceeding

Is to wake, and think of you.

I tread my days;

I know that all the threads will run

Appointed ways;

I know each day will bring its task,

And, being blind, no more I ask.

On the king's gate the moss grew gray;

The king came not. They called him

dead

But "Emigrated to another star!"

How I have wasted half my day,

One sun surer — thus much more Than I loved thee, love, before.

Let any man once show the world that he feels

Afraid of its bark, and 'twill fly at his heels:

Let him fearlessly face it, 'twill leave him alone:

But 'twill fawn at his feet if he flings it

The Italians have voices like peacocks;
the Spanish

Smell, I fancy, of garlic; the Swedish and Danish

Have something too Runic, too rough

Their accent for mouths not descended

German gives me a cold in the head, sets me wheezing

And coughing; and Russian is nothing

We may live without poetry, music and art;

We may live without conscience and

We may live without friends; we may

But civilized man can not live without

He may live without books, — what is knowledge but grieving?

He may live without hope, — what is hope but deceiving?

He may live without love, — what is passion but pining?

But where is the man that can live without dining?

Ibid. Canto 6, XX

In Rome, — in the Forum, — there opened one night

A gulf. All the augurs turned pale at the sight.

In this omen the anger of Heaven they read.

Men consulted the gods: then the oracle said: —

“Ever open this gulf shall endure, till at last

That which Rome hath most precious within it be cast.”

The Romans threw in their corn and their stuff,

But the gulf yawned as wide. Rome seemed likely enough

To be ruined ere this rent in her heart
she could choke.

Then Curtius, revering the oracle, spoke:

“O Quirites! to this Heaven’s question has come:

What to Rome is most precious? The manhood of Rome.”

He plunged, and the gulf closed.<sup>2</sup>

C. P. CRANCH: Life and Death

<sup>2</sup> Edward Sylvester Ellis [1840-1916] reported that after Custer's fight with Black Kettle's band of Cheyenne Indians, the Comanche Chief Toch-a-way (Turtle Dove) was presented to General Sheridan. The Indian said: "Me Toch-a-way, me good Indian." The General's reply has become a familiar quotation.

And very hard the task I find
Of governing it well.

Life, Letters and Journals.

Chap. 3, My Kingdom,<sup>1</sup> Stanza 1

I do not ask for any crown
But that which all may win;
Nor try to conquer any world
Except the one within.

Ibid. Stanza 4

I had a pleasant time with my mind,
for it was happy.

Ibid.

I know what death means, — a liberator for her, a teacher for us.<sup>2</sup>

Ibid. Chap. 5

Resolved to take Fate by the throat and shake a living out of her.

Ibid.

Life is my college. May I graduate well, and earn some honors!

Ibid.

For such as he there is no death; —
His life the eternal life commands;
Above man's aims his nature rose.
The wisdom of a just content
Made one small spot a continent,
And tuned to poetry Life's prose.<sup>3</sup>

Life, Letters and Journals.

Chap. 7, Thoreau's Flute,<sup>4</sup> Stanza 2

My definition [of a philosopher] is of a man up in a balloon, with his family and friends holding the ropes which confine him to earth and trying to haul him down.

Ibid. Chap. 10

To smooth the rough and thorny way
Where other feet begin to tread;
To feed some hungry soul each day
With sympathy's sustaining bread.

Ibid. Chap. 11, My Prayer,

Stanza 4

Now I am beginning to live a little,
and feel less like a sick oyster at low tide.

Ibid. Chap. 11

A child her wayward pencil drew
On margins of her book:

<sup>1</sup> Written at the age of thirteen years.

Garlands of flowers, dancing elves,
Bird, butterfly and brook.

Lessons undone, and play forgot,

Seeking with hand and heart

The teacher whom she learned to love
Before she knew 'twas Art.

Our Madonna,<sup>1</sup> Stanza 1

Death, the stern sculptor, with a touch
No earthly power can stay,
Changes to marble in an hour
The beautiful, pale clay.

Ibid. Stanza 6

Philosophers sit in their sylvan hall
And talk of the duties of man,
Of Chaos and Cosmos, Hegel and Kant,
With the Oversoul well in the van;
All on their hobbies they amble away
And a terrible dust they make;
Disciples devout both gaze and adore,
As daily they listen and bake.

ELIZABETH AKERS ALLEN

[1832-1911]

Backward, turn backward, O Time, in your flight,
Make me a child again just for tonight!

Rock Me to Sleep,<sup>3</sup> Stanza 1

Backward, flow backward, O tide of the years!

I am so weary of toil and of tears —
Toil without recompense, tears all in vain —

Take them and give me my childhood
again!

Ibid. Stanza 2

Over my heart in the days that have flown,

No love like mother-love ever has shone;

No other worship abides and endures,

<sup>3</sup> Written by Elizabeth Akers in May, 1860, and sent to The Saturday Evening Post under her pen-name, "Florence Percy." The poem was published in that periodical on June 9, 1860.

Faithful, unselfish, and patient, like yours.

Rock Me to Sleep. Stanza 4

How much the heart may bear, and yet not break!

How much the flesh may suffer and not die!

I question much if any pain or ache
Of soul or body brings our end more nigh:

Death chooses his own time.

Endurance. Stanza 1

Behold, we live through all things —
famine, thirst,

Bereavement, pain; all grief and misery,

All woe and sorrow; life inflicts its worst

On soul and body — but we can not die,
Though we be sick, and tired, and faint,
and worn, —

Lo, all things can be borne!

Ibid. Stanza 5

Unremembered and afar

I watched you as I watched a star,
Through darkness struggling into view,
And loved you better than you knew.

Left Behind. Stanza 5

And all the pain of lonely days,

And nights with sleepless sorrow
wild,

Hides in the quaint and stilted phrase,
"An amiable child."

"An Amiable Child." 1 Stanza 15

Let all unselfish spirits heed

The story of Johnny Appleseed.

He had another and prouder name

In far New England, whence he came,
But by this title, and this alone,

<sup>1</sup> On the stone marking the grave of St. Clair Pollock, near Grant's Tomb, on Riverside Drive, New York, is inscribed: "Erected to the memory of an amiable child." The boy died July 15, 1797, at the age of five years.

At Riverside, on the slow hill-slant,

Two memoried graves are seen;

A granite dome is over Grant,

And over a child the green.

ANNA CATHERINE MARKHAM:
An Amiable Child

Was the kindly wanderer loved and known.

Johnny Appleseed. 1 Stanza 1

Carve not upon a stone when I am dead
The praises which remorseful mourners give

To women's graves — a tardy recompense —

But speak them while I live.

Till Death. Stanza 6

SIR EDWIN ARNOLD

[1832-1904]

He who died at Azan sends

This to comfort all his friends: —

Faithful friends! It lies I know

Pale and white and cold as snow;

And ye say, "Abdallah's dead!"

Weeping at the feet and head.

I can see your falling tears,

I can hear your sighs and prayers;

Yet I smile and whisper this:

I am not the thing you kiss.

Cease your tears and let it lie;

It was mine — it is not I.

After Death in Arabia

Farewell, friends! Yet not farewell;

Where I am, ye too shall dwell.

I am gone before your face,

A moment's time, a little space.

Ibid.

Ay! it will come, — the bitter hour! — but bringing

A better love beyond, more subtle-sweet;

A higher road to tread, with happier
singing,

And no cross-ways to part familiar
feet!

The New Lucian

Not a face below the sun

But is precious — unto one!

<sup>1</sup> John Chapman [1775-1847].

From Penn-land cider-presses.

Long, long after,

When settlers put up beam and rafter,

They asked of the birds: "Who gave this fruit?"

Appleseed, Part III*

Not an eye, however dull,
But seems — somewhere — beautiful.

And richer than red gold that dull bronze seems,
Since it was bought with lavish waste of worth

Whereto the wealth of Earth's gold-sanded streams
Were but a lack, and dearth.

The First Distribution of the Victoria Cross, 1856. Stanza 4

Don't poets know

Better than others?

God can't be always everywhere: and,
so,

Invented Mothers.

Mothers. Stanza 6

Somewhere there waiteth in this world
of ours

For one lone soul, another lonely
soul —

Each chasing each through all the weary hours,

And meeting strangely at one sudden goal;

Then blend they — like green leaves
with golden flowers,

Into one beautiful and perfect
whole —

And life's long night is ended, and the way

Lies open onward to eternal day.<sup>1</sup>

Destiny

<sup>1</sup> A sublime hope cheers ever the faithful heart, that elsewhere, in other regions of the universal powers, souls are now acting, enduring and daring, which can love us, and which we can love.

R. W. EMERSON: Friendship

Two shall be born the whole wide world apart
And speak in different tongues and have no thought

Each of the other's being and no heed.

And these o'er unknown seas to unknown lands

Shall cross, escaping wreck, defying death;

And all unconsciously shape every act

And bend each wandering step to this one end,

We are the voices of the wandering
wind,

Which moan for rest and rest can never find;

Lo! as the wind is, so is mortal life,
A moan, a sigh, a sob, a storm, a strife.

The Deva's Song

Never the spirit was born; the spirit shall cease to be never;

Never was time it was not; End and Beginning are dreams!

Birthless and deathless and changeless remaineth the spirit for ever;

Death hath not touched it at all, dead
though the house of it seems.

The Song Celestial (Translated from The Bhagavad-Gita)

The end of birth is death; the end of death is birth: this is ordained.

SON ("LEWIS CARROLL")
[1832-1898]

Alice! a childish story take
And with a gentle hand Lay it where childhood's dreams are twined

In Memory's mystic band,
Like pilgrim's withered wreath of flowers

Plucked in a far-off land.

Alice's Adventures in Wonderland. Introduction

"You are old, Father William," the young man said,

"And your hair has become very white;

And yet you incessantly stand on your head —

Do you think, at your age, it is right?"<sup>1</sup>

Ibid. Chap. 5

"Really, now you ask me," said Alice, very much confused, "I don't

"Then you shouldn't talk," said the Hatter.

Ibid. Chap. 7

"Tut, tut, child," said the Duchess.
"Everything's got a moral if only you

What Alice Found There. In-

'Twas brillig, and the slithy toves

And the mome raths outgrabe.

"The horror of that moment," the King went on, "I shall never, never forget!"

"You will, though," the Queen said,
"if you don't make a memorandum of it."

Ibid.

"A slow sort of country," said the Queen. "Now, here, you see, it takes all the running you can do, to keep in the same place. If you want to get somewhere else, you must run at least twice as fast as that!"

Ibid. Chap. 2

"The time has come," the Walrus said,
"To talk of many things:

Of shoes — and ships — and sealing-wax —

Of cabbages — and kings —

And why the sea is boiling hot —

And whether pigs have wings."

Ibid. Chap. 4, The Walrus and the Carpenter, Stanza 11

"The rule is, jam to-morrow, and jam yesterday — but never jam today."

"It must come sometimes to 'jam today,'" Alice objected.

"No, it can't," said the Queen. "It's jam every other day: to-day isn't any other day, you know."

Ibid. Chap. 5

"When I use a word," Humpty-

Fit the Second, Stanza 2

"What's the good of Mercator's North

You may charge me with murder — or want of sense —

And summed it so well that it came to far more Than the Witnesses ever had said!
Ibid. Fit the Sixth, Stanza 11

There are certain things — as, a spider,
 a ghost,
 The income-tax, gout, an umbrella for three —
 That I hate, but the thing that I hate the most
 Is a thing they call the Sea.
A Sea Dirge. Stanza 1

Then, if you'd be impressive,
 Remember what I say,
 That abstract qualities begin
 With capitals alway:

The Good, the True, the Beautiful, —
 Those are the things that pay!
Poeta Fit, non Nascitur.
Stanza 5

Such epithets, like pepper,
 Give zest to what you write;

BENJAMIN H. HILL

[1832-1882]

He was a foe without hate, a friend without treachery, a soldier without cruelty, and a victim without murmuring. He was a public officer without vices, a private citizen without wrong,
 a neighbor without reproach, a Christian without hypocrisy, and a man without guilt. He was Caesar without his ambition, Frederick without his tyranny, Napoleon without his selfishness, and Washington without his reward.

[1832-1896]

Tying her bonnet under her chin,
 She tied her raven ringlets in;
 But not alone in the silken snare
 Did she catch her lovely floating hair,
 For, tying her bonnet under her chin,
 She tied a young man's heart within.

The Love-Knot. Stanza 1

O, did you see him riding down,
 And riding down, while all the town
 Came out to see, came out to see,
 And all the bells rang mad with glee?

Riding Down. Stanza 1

What silences we keep, year after year,
 With those who are most near to us,
 and dear! <sup>1</sup>

Too Late. Stanza 1

Some day of days, threading the street
 With idle, heedless pace,
 Unlooking for such grace,
 I shall behold your face!

Some Day of Days. Stanza 1

Who knows the thoughts of a child?

Who Knows? Stanza 1

Gayly and gayly rang the gay music,
 The blithe merry music of harp and of horn,

The mad, merry music, that set us a-dancing

Till over the midnight came stealing the morn.

That Waltz of von Weber's. Stanza 1

They sat and combed their beautiful
 hair,

Their long, bright tresses, one by one,

As they laughed and talked in the chamber there,

After the revel was done.

After the Ball. Stanza 1

<sup>1</sup> Often, the sayings which are dearest to our hearts are least frequent on our lips; and those great ideas which cheer men in their direst struggles are not things which they are likely to inflict by frequent repetition upon those they live with. At the captain's forequarters they said

So they've grafted him into the

Grafted into the Army. Stanza 1

So we made a thoroughfare for Free-

An' we's gwine to occupy de land?

Babylon Is Fallen. Chorus

Nicodemus, the slave, was of African

But he died, years ago, very old.

Wake Nicodemus. Stanza 1

There's a good time coming, it's almost
 here,

'Twas a long, long time on the way.

Ibid. Chorus

Father, dear father, come home with me now,

The clock in the steeple strikes one;

You said you were coming right home
 from the shop

As soon as your day's work was done.

Come Home, Father. Stanza 1

My grandfather's clock was too large

So it stood ninety years on the floor.

I am weary of the commonplace, to dul-

These dinner speeches tire me, they are

[1833-1870]

Question not, but live and labour

Till yon goal be won,

*Eulogy on Benjamin Hill,

In the democracy of the dead, all men at last are equal. There is neither rank nor station nor prerogative in the republic of the grave.

On the Death of Senator Barnes

Next in profusion to the divine profusion of water, light and air, those three physical facts which render existence possible, may be reckoned the universal beneficence of grass.

Blue Grass

Grass is the forgiveness of nature — her constant benediction. Fields trampled with battle, saturated with blood, torn with the ruts of the cannon, grow green again with grass, and carnage is forgotten. Forests decay, harvests perish, flowers vanish, but grass is immortal.

Ibid.

It bears no blazonry of bloom to charm the senses with fragrance or splendor, but its homely hue is more enchanting than the lily or the rose. It yields no fruit in earth or air, and yet, should its harvest fail for a single year, famine would depopulate the world.

Ibid.

I knock unbidden once at every gate!
If sleeping, wake; if feasting, rise before
I turn away. It is the hour of fate.

Opportunity

ROBERT GREEN INGERSOLL
[1833-1899]

These heroes are dead. They died for liberty — they died for us. They are at rest. They sleep in the land they made free, under the flag they rendered stainless, under the solemn pines, the sad hemlocks, the tearful willows, the embracing vines. They sleep beneath the shadows of the clouds, careless alike of sunshine or storm, each in the windowless palace of rest. Earth may run red with other wars — they are at peace. In the midst of battles, in the roar of conflict, they found the serenity of death.

Vision of War [Speech at Indianapolis, Indiana, September 21, 1876; repeated by request in the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, May 30, 1888]

Life is a narrow vale between the cold and barren peaks of two eternities. We strive in vain to look beyond the heights. We cry aloud — and the only answer is the echo of our wailing cry. From the voiceless lips of the unreplying dead there comes no word. But in the night of Death Hope sees a star and listening Love can hear the rustling of a wing.

*At the Grave of his Brother,
Ebon Clark Ingersoll [June, 1879]*<sup>1</sup>

He added to the sum of human joy, and were every one to whom he did some loving service to bring a blossom to his grave, he would sleep to-night beneath a wilderness of flowers.

Ibid.

I am the inferior of any man whose rights I trample under foot. Men are not superior by reason of the accidents of race or color. They are superior who have the best heart — the best brain.

Liberty

The superior man is the providence of the inferior. He is eyes for the blind, strength for the weak, and a shield for the defenseless. He stands erect by bending above the fallen. He rises by lifting others.

Every cradle asks us, "Whence?" and every coffin, "Whither?" The poor barbarian, weeping above his dead, can answer these questions as intelligently as the robed priest of the most authentic creed.

Address at a Little Boy's Grave

We, too, have our religion, and it is this: Help for the living, hope for the dead.

Address at a Little Boy's Grave

I would rather have been a French peasant and worn wooden shoes. I would rather have lived in a hut with a vine growing over the door and the grapes growing purple in the kisses of the Autumn sun. I would rather have been that poor peasant with my loving wife by my side, knitting as the day died out of the sky, with my children upon my knee and their arms about me. I would rather have been that man and gone down to the tongueless silence of the dreamless dust than to have been that imperial impersonation of force and murder known as Napoleon the Great.

At the Tomb of Napoleon

And will there, some time, be another world? We have our dream. The idea of immortality, that like a sea has ebbed and flowed in the human heart, beating with its countless waves against the sands and rocks of time and fate, was not born of any creed, nor of any book, nor of any religion. It was born of human affection, and it will continue to ebb and flow beneath the mists and clouds of doubt and darkness, as long as love kisses the lips of death.

And here the world, through all the years,

As long as day returns,
The tribute of its love and tears

[August 19, 1878]

Justice is the only worship.
Love is the only priest.
Ignorance is the only slavery.
Happiness is the only good.
The time to be happy is now,
The place to be happy is here,
The way to be happy is to make others so.

Is there beyond the silent night
An endless day?
Is death a door that leads to light?
We cannot say.

Industry in Art is a necessity — not a virtue — and any evidence of the same, in the production, is a blemish, not a quality; a proof, not of achievement, but of absolutely insufficient work, for work alone will efface the footsteps of work.

<sup>1</sup> It's gude to be merry and wise,
It's gude to be honest and true;
It's gude to be off with the old love,
Before you are on with the new.

ANONYMOUS [1816]. Quoted by AN-THONY TROLLOPE in Barchester Towers, Chap. 46.

See G. B. Shaw, page 720.

The work of the master reeks not of the sweat of the brow — suggests no effort and is finished from the beginning.

The Gentle Art of Making Enemies. Propositions, 2

The masterpiece should appear as the flower to the painter — perfect in its bud as in its bloom — with no reason to explain its presence — no mission to fulfil — a joy to the artist, a delusion to the philanthropist — a puzzle to the botanist — an accident of sentiment and alliteration to the literary man.

Ibid.

Art should be independent of all clap-trap — should stand alone, and appeal to the artistic sense of eye and ear, without confounding this with emotions entirely foreign to it, as devotion, pity, love, patriotism, and the like. All these have no kind of concern with it.

Ibid.

The imitator is a poor kind of creature. If the man who paints only the tree, or flower, or other surface he sees before him were an artist, the king of artists would be the photographer. It is for the artist to do something beyond this: in portrait painting to put on canvas something more than the face the model wears for that one day; to paint the man, in short, as well as his features.

Ibid.

Nature sings her exquisite song to the artist alone, her son and her master — her son in that he loves her, her master in that he knows her.

So long as Faith with Freedom reigns,
And loyal Hope survives,

And men are free to think and act,
Life is worth living still.

May I try to tell you again where your only comfort lies? It is not in for-lose our grief, because our grief is bound up with our love and we could robbed of our affections.

SAMUEL BUTLER

[1835-1902]

It is far safer to know too little than too much. People will condemn the one, though they will resent being called upon to exert themselves to follow the other.

The Way of All Flesh.<sup>1</sup> Chap. 5

Adversity, if a man is set down to it by degrees, is more supportable with equanimity by most people than any great prosperity arrived at in a single lifetime.

Ibid.

It is our less conscious thoughts and our less conscious actions which mainly mould our lives and the lives of those who spring from us.

Ibid.

To me it seems that youth is like spring, an over-praised season — delightful if it happen to be a favoured one, but in practice very rarely favoured and more remarkable, as a general rule, for biting east winds than genial breezes.

The Way of All Flesh. Chap. 6

In old age we live under the shadow of Death, which, like a sword of Damocles, may descend at any moment, but we have so long found life to be an affair of being rather frightened than hurt that we have become like the people who live under Vesuvius, and chance it without much misgiving.

Ibid.

A pair of lovers are like sunset and sunrise: there are such things every day but we very seldom see them.

Ibid. Chap. 11

Every man's work, whether it be literature or music or pictures or architecture or anything else, is always a portrait of himself, and the more he tries to conceal himself the more clearly will his character appear in spite of him.

Ibid. Chap. 14

A virtue, to be serviceable, must,
like gold, be alloyed with some commoner but more durable metal.

Ibid. Chap. 19

One great reason why clergymen's households are generally unhappy is because the clergyman is so much at home and close about the house.

Ibid. Chap. 24

The best liar is he who makes the smallest amount of lying go the longest way — who husbands it too carefully to waste it where it can be dispensed with.

Ibid. Chap. 39

If people would dare to speak to one another unreservedly, there would be a good deal less sorrow in the world a hundred years hence.

Ibid. Chap. 44

Everyone has a mass of bad work in him which he will have to work off and get rid of before he can do better — and indeed, the more lasting a man's ultimate good work, the more sure he is to pass through a time, and perhaps a very long one, in which there seems very little hope for him at all. We must all sow our spiritual wild oats.

The Way of All Flesh. Chap. 51

It is in the uncompromisingness with which dogma is held and not in the dogma or want of dogma that the danger lies.

Ibid. Chap. 68

When people get it into their heads that they are being specially favoured by the Almighty, they had better as a general rule mind their p's and q's.

Ibid. Chap. 71

An empty house is like a stray dog or a body from which life has departed.<sup>1</sup>

Ibid. Chap. 72

A man's friendships are, like his will, invalidated by marriage — but they are also no less invalidated by the marriage of his friends.

Ibid. Chap. 75

I reckon being ill as one of the great pleasures of life, provided one is not too ill and is not obliged to work till one is better.

Dear glad faces long away,
Dear the merry cries, and dear
All the glad and happy play.
Dear the thanks, too, that we give
For all of this, Thanksgiving Day.
Every Day Thanksgiving Day.
Stanza 3

CELIA LAUGHTON THAXTER
[1835-1894]

Sad soul, take comfort, nor forget
That sunrise never failed us yet.

*The Sunrise Never Failed
Us Yet. Stanza 4*

I have so loved thee, but cannot, cannot hold thee!

Fading like a dream, the shadows fold thee.

Slowly thy perfect beauty fades away,
Good-bye, sweet day.

Good-bye, Sweet Day. Stanza 1

Already the dandelions

Are changed into vanishing ghosts.
Already

Staunch friends are we, well tried and strong,

The little sandpiper and I.

The Sandpiper. Stanza 3

From wind to wind, earth has one tale to tell;

All other sounds are dulled, and drowned, and lost,

In this one cry, "Farewell."

Farewell. Stanza 6

THEODORE TILTON

[1835-1907]

I won a noble fame,
But, with a sudden frown,
The people snatched my crown,
And in the mire trod down
My lofty name.

Sir Marmaduke's Musings
[1871]. Stanza 1

So, lest I be inclined
To render ill for ill —
Henceforth in me instil,
O God, a sweet good-will
To all mankind.

Ibid. Stanza 7

Once in Persia reigned a king,
Who upon his signet ring
Graved a maxim true and wise,
Which, if held before the eyes,
Gave him counsel at a glance
Fit for every change and chance;
Solemn words, and these are they:
"Even this shall pass away."<sup>1</sup>

Even This Shall Pass Away.
Stanza 1

Toll! Roland, toll!
In old St. Bavon's Tower.
At midnight hour
The great Bell Roland spoke,
And all who slept in Ghent awoke.
The Great Bell Roland<sup>2</sup>

THOMAS BAILEY ALDRICH

[1836-1907]

Somewhere — in desolate wind-swept space —
In Twilight-land — in No-man's land —
Two hurrying Shapes met face to face,
And bade each other stand.

Identity. Stanza 1

"And who are you?" cried one agape,
Shuddering in the gloaming light.
"I know not," said the second Shape,
"I only died last night."

<sup>2</sup> This poem was written the day on which President Lincoln issued his proclamation calling for volunteers, and was distributed to the first regiments and at public meetings, to stir patriotism.

So precious life is! Even to the old
The hours are as a miser's coins!

Broken Music. Stanza 4

A man should live in a garret aloof,
And have few friends, and go poorly
clad,
With an old hat stopping a chink in the roof,
To keep the Goddess constant and glad.
The Flight of the Goddess.

Stanza 1

We knew it would rain, for the poplars showed
The white of their leaves.

Before the Rain. Stanza 3

You do poets and their song
A grievous wrong,
If your own soul does not bring
To their high imagining
As much beauty as they sing.

Appreciation. Stanza 2

I would be the Lyric Ever on the lip,
Rather than the Epic
Memory lets slip.

Lyrics and Epics

When were December and May known to be happy together?

Thalia. Stanza 4

It has become almost an honor
Not to be crowned.

Popularity

Black Tragedy lets slip her grim disguise
And shows you laughing lips and roguish eyes;
But when, unmasked, gay Comedy appears,
How wan her cheeks are, and what heavy tears!

Masks

Some weep because they part,
And languish broken-hearted,
And others — O my heart! —
Because they never parted.

The Difference

Sweet courtesy has done its most
If you have made each guest forget
That he himself is not the host.

Hospitality

'Tis said the seeds wrapped up among the balms
And hieroglyphics of Egyptian kings

Hold strange vitality, and, planted, grow
After the lapse of thrice a thousand years.<sup>1</sup>

At the Funeral of a Mingr Poet

My mind lets go a thousand things,
Like dates of wars and deaths of kings.

Memory

The folk who lived in Shakespeare's day

And saw that gentle figure pass
By London Bridge, his frequent way —
They little knew what man he was.

Guilielmus Rex. Stanza 1

Enamored architect of airy rhyme, Build as thou wilt, heed not what each man says.

Enamored Architect of Airy Rhyme

They fail, and they alone, who have not striven.

Ibid.

From the dead Danish sculptor let us learn

To make Occasion, not to be denied:
Against the sheer precipitous mountainside

Thorwaldsen carved his Lion at Lucerne.

Thorwaldsen

I vex me not with brooding on the years

That were ere I drew breath: why should I then

Distrust the darkness that may fall
again

When life is done?

I Vex Me Not

What is more cheerful, now, in the fall of the year, than an open-wood-fire? Do you hear those little chirps and twitters coming out of that piece of apple-wood? Those are the ghosts of the robins and blue-birds that sang upon the bough when it was in blossom last Spring. In Summer whole flocks of them come fluttering about

<sup>1</sup> In Cairo, I secured a few grains of wheat that had slumbered for more than three thousand years in an Egyptian tomb. — WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN: The Prince of Peace

the fruit-trees under the window: so I have singing birds all the year round.

Miss Mehitabel's Son

It was very pleasant to me to get a letter from you the other day. Perhaps I should have found it pleasanter if I had been able to decipher it. I don't think that I mastered anything beyond the date (which I knew) and the signature (which I guessed at). There's a singular and a perpetual charm in a letter of yours; it never grows old, it never loses its novelty. . . . Other letters are read and thrown away and forgotten, but yours are kept forever — unread. One of them will last a reasonable man a lifetime.

Letter to Professor Edward Sylvester Morse

EDWARD ERNEST BOWEN

[1836-1901]

Forty years on, when afar and asunder Parted are those who are singing today,

When you look back, and forgetfully wonder

What you were like in your work and your play;

Then, it may be, there will often come o'er you

Glimpses of notes like the catch of a song —

Visions of boyhood shall float them before you,

Echoes of dreamland shall bear them along.

Forty Years On, Harrow Football Song [1872]

JOSEPH CHAMBERLAIN

[1836-1914]

I never like being hit without striking back.

Speech on Tariff Reform, Greenock, Scotland [October 7, 1903]

London is the clearing-house of the world.

[January 19, 1904]*

The day of small nations has passed away; the day of Empires has come.

JOHN CLIFFORD

[1836-1923]

Last evening I paused beside a blacksmith's door
And heard the anvil ring the vesper chime.

Hammer and Anvil. Stanza 1
"How many anvils have you had,"
said I,

"To wear and batter all these hammers so?"

"Just one," said he; then said with twinkling eye,

"The anvil wears the hammers out,
you know."

Ibid. Stanza 2

And so, I thought, the anvil of God's Word

For ages skeptic blows have beat upon;

Yet, though the noise of falling blows
was heard,

The anvil is unharmed — the hammers gone.

Ibid. Stanza 3

WILLIAM SCHWENCK

GILBERT<sup>1</sup>

[1836-1911]

Of all the ships upon the blue,
No ship contain'd a better crew
Than that of worthy Captain Reece, Commanding of The Mantelpiece.

Captain Reece. Stanza 1

The Times and Saturday Review
Beguiled the leisure of the crew.

Ibid. Stanza 7

I write the pretty mottoes which you find inside the crackers.

Ferdinando and Elvira

The Ballyshannon foundered off the coast of Cariboo,

<sup>1</sup> His foe was folly and his weapon wit. — Inscription by ANTHONY HOPE HAWKINS on Gilbert memorial, Victoria Embankment, London.

And down in fathoms many went the captain and the crew;

Down went the owners — greedy men
whom hope of gain allured:

Oh, dry the starting tear, for they were heavily insured.

Etiquette. Stanza 1

These passengers, by reason of their clinging to a mast,

Upon a desert island were eventually cast.

They hunted for their meals, as Alexander Selkirk used,

But they couldn't chat together — they had not been introduced.

Ibid. Stanza 3

Oh, I am a cook and a captain bold

And the mate of the Nancy brig,

And a bo'sun tight, and a midshipmite,
And the crew of the captain's gig.

The Yarn of the "Nancy Bell."

Stanza 3

Roll on, thou ball, roll on

Through pathless realms of Space,

Roll on!

To the Terrestrial Globe. Stanza 1

It's true I've got no shirts to wear;

It's true my butcher's bill is due;

It's true my prospects all look blue,

But don't let that unsettle you!

Never you mind!

Roll on! (It rolls on.)

Ibid. Stanza 2

As innocent as a new-laid egg.

Engaged. Act I [1877]

Bad language or abuse,

I never, never use,

Whatever the emergency;

Though "Bother it" I may

Occasionally say,

I never never use a big, big D.

H.M.S. Pinafore. Act I,

I Am the Captain

What, never?

Hardly ever.

Ibid.

And so do his sisters, and his cousins,
and his aunts.

Ibid. I Am the Monarch of the Sea

Now landsmen all, whoever you may be,

If you want to rise to the top of the tree

If your soul isn't fettered to an office stool,

Be careful to be guided by this golden rule —

Stick close to your desks and never go to sea,

And you all may be Rulers of the Queen's Navee!

H.M.S. Pinafore

Act I, When I Was a Lad

Say, why is everything

Either at sixes or at sevens? <sup>1</sup>

Ibid. Act II, Fair Moon

Things are seldom what they seem,

Skim milk masquerades as cream.

Ibid. Duet, Buttercup and Captain

He is an Englishman!

For he himself has said it,

And it's greatly to his credit,

That he is an Englishman!

Ibid. Boatswain's Song

For he might have been a Roosian,

A French or Turk or Proosian,

Or perhaps Itali-an.

But in spite of all temptations

To belong to other nations,

He remains an Englishman.

Ibid.

I know the Kings of England, and I

Ah, take one consideration with another —

A policeman's lot is not a happy one!

Ibid. Act II, Sergeant's Song

Come, friends, who plough the sea,<sup>2</sup>

Truce to navigation,

Take another station;

Let's vary piracee

With a little burglaree.

Ibid. Pirates' Chorus

The enemy of one

The enemy of all is.

Patience. Act I, Dragoons' Chorus

Let things go at sixes and sevens. — CER-VANTES: Don Quixote, Part I, Book IV, Chap. 3

<sup>2</sup> The roystering chorus, "Hail, hail, the gang's all here," is sung to Sir Arthur Sullivan's music for these lines.

The pluck of Lord Nelson on board of the Victory.

Patience. Act I, Colonel's Song

Set them to simmer and take off the scum,

And a Heavy Dragoon is the residuum!

Ibid.

It's one to a million

That any civilian

My figure and form'll surpass.

Ibid. When I First Put This Uniform On

I am not fond of uttering platitudes

In stained-glass attitudes.

Ibid. Bunthorne's Song

If he's content with a vegetable love which would certainly not suit me,

Why, what a most particularly pure young man this pure young man must be!

Ibid.

"High diddle diddle"

Will rank as an idyll,

If I pronounce it chaste!

Ibid. Duet, Bunthorne and Grosvenor

None shall part us from each other,

One in life and death are we:

All in all to one another —

I to thee and thou to me!

Thou the tree and I the flower —

Thou the idol; I the throng —

Thou the day and I the hour —

Thou the singer; I the song!

Iolanthe. Act I, Duet, Strephon and Phyllis

The Law is the true embodiment

Of everything that's excellent.

It has no kind of fault or flaw,

And I, my Lords, embody the Law.

Ibid. Lord Chancellor's Song

Here's a pretty kettle of fish!

Ibid. Act II, Peers' Chorus

Did nothing in particular

And did it very well.

Ibid. Lord Mountararat

I love my fellow-creatures — I do all the good I can —
